Rosemary Mann: Age 72, Sept. 12, 2010

Rosemary Mann, age 72, of Cedar Springs, formerly of Charlevoix, passed away on Sunday, Sept. 12, 2010, at Metron of Cedar Springs, following a brave and courageous battle with multiple sclerosis. Growing up in Charlevoix, Rosemary was active in 4-H, graduated from high school, and volunteered as a candy stripper at Charlevoix Area Hospital. After her marriage to husband, Philip, she became a stay-at-home wife and eventually mother of four sons. Rosemary and Philip enjoyed motorcycles and traveling to races where she was very good at racing her own Yamaha in the women's class. Together they traveled in their motor-home to races, and to see the country. Rosemary was creative in home decorating and crafts, Rosemary was a speed reader whose interests included Michigan history, family history, and geology. She will be remembered as an encourager to her family, for her "stick-to-your-ribs" soups, the very best apple pie, and homemade cookies that were cherished by all. Rosemary is survived by her husband, Philip W. Mann Jr., sons, Philip (Debra) Mann of Rockford, Michael (Leslie) Mann, Keith (Linda) Mann,

"God saw you getting tired and a cure was not to be, so he put his arms around you and whispered 'Come to Me.'"

With tearful eyes we watched you and saw you pass away, and although we love you dearly we could not make you stay.

A golden heart stopped beating, hard working hands at rest. God broke our hearts to prove to us he only takes the best.

Cremation has taken place by Reynolds/Jonkhoff Funeral Home, a memorial service celebrating John's life will take place at a later date. Please sign John's online guestbook at www.reynolds-jonkhoff.com to share your thoughts and memories with the family.

A call for help: 24-HOUR INFORMATIONAL LINE GOES LIVE

RYAN BENTLEY

An information and referral system newly launched in Emmet and Charlevoix counties can help direct users to a wide range of community services via a single phone number.

Char-Em United Way has been spearheading development of this system for several years. In recent days, it became available free of charge, 24 hours a day in Northwest Michigan via the interim phone number (877) 211-5253.

By next spring, organizers hope to make the service accessible locally by dialing 2-1-1, a number designated nationally for this type of service.

"It's an easy-to-remember number that people can call for non-emergency services regarding health and human service needs," said Ella Fowler, who recently completed a stint working at Char-Em United Way as part of the AmeriCorps VISTA national service program.

Those using the system will be connected to a trained specialist who can provide information and referrals to local services. The service can aid callers seeking housing and utility assistance, volunteer opportunities, details about after-school programs, senior care services, help dealing with mortgage foreclosure and more.

"The local database has been developed, and the information and referral specialists are trained and ready to take calls from our community," Char-Em United Way executive director Martha Lancaster said in a news release. "We are working with seven other counties in northwest lower Michigan to submit our application for certification to the Michigan Alliance of Information and Referral Systems and apply to the Michigan Public Service Commission for use of the 2-1-1 phone number."

Once these have been secured, the service will become available locally via the 2-1-1 number.

Calls to the service from Emmet and Charlevoix counties will be routed to a regional center in Muskegon, Fowler said. Specialists there will have details available about health and human service providers' offerings in Northwest Michigan.

The service is offered to callers on a confidential basis, Fowler said. She said projections are that the service could field about 260 calls per month from Emmet and Charlevoix counties in its first year of operation.

Currently, Michigan 2-1-1 call centers serve 80 percent of Michigan's population, Char-Em United Way noted, with expansion projects under way in 26 additional counties.

Funding to launch the 2-1-1 system locally has been secured through a challenge grant from CMS Energy, as well as dona-

Health officials: Get your flu shot

Local health officials are urging everyone to get a flu shot this year because of the unpredictability and early arrival of the 2010-11 flu season.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, on average, 5 to 20 percent of people in the United States will get the flu each year and more than 200,000 people will be hospitalized with seasonal flu-related complications.

"We still don't understand all the dynamics of what creates a bad flu season," said Dr. H. Gunner Deery, one of three infectious disease doctors at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital. The season generally begins in November and peaks in February, so getting vaccinated now is not a problem since it will protect you through the whole season.

This year, the CDC is encouraging everyone over the age of 6 months to get the flu vaccine.

The flu shot is good for an entire year, and some immunity exists beyond a year.

Since the flu continually mutates, each year the vaccine is different.

"The trick is predicting what the next season is going to be," Deery explained. "So those working on the vaccine pick the three most likely strains and put those into one vaccine."

This year, the H1N1 vaccine is part of the seasonal flu vaccine, since doctors believe there may be some carry over of the swine flu into this season.

The flu vaccine is safe with limited complications for a very small percentage of the population, Deery said. You can't get the flu from a flu shot, since the vaccine contains a dead virus. Many people may mistake the flu as another respiratory virus since it is a time of year when many viruses are at their peak.

The CDC does not expect a shortage of the flu vaccine this year.

Local health care providers will be receiving the flu vaccine in the coming weeks if they haven't already and flu shot clinics for the public generally begin in September and run into November.

Doctors stress that you should call ahead first to check on availability.

Patients ages 2 to 49 are also able to receive the FluMist, a vaccine that is inhaled through the nose.

"When it comes to something like the flu, its all about access and availability and getting as many people vaccinated as safely and economically as possible," Deery said. "I've seen young people die from the flu. They come in and there is hardly anything you can do. I never want to see that again."

Hundreds lend a hand on Day of Caring

The seventh annual Char-Em United Way Day of Caring connected nearly 600 volunteers in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties with 47 service projects needed by non-profit community agencies, the elderly community, schools, cities and counties.

This event promotes community volunteerism and gives people the opportunity to give back while making a difference and working together. Day of Caring matches teams of volunteers from businesses, schools, faith communities, and community groups with non-profit organizations in need of hands-on help.

"We are so thankful for all the support from area businesses and organizations who allowed their staff to assist with projects throughout the day," Char-Em United Way Program Coordinator Savannah Zednick said. "Special thanks goes out to Harbor Industries and St. Marys Cement for providing several volunteer teams to assist with various projects, especially for assisting Charlevoix area seniors with home repair and upkeep. Without all of your support Day of Caring would not be the same."

Zednick also offered her thanks to those who helped plan the event, including: Bay Winds Federal Credit Union, Harbor Industries, Huntington National Bank, Charlevoix Commission on Aging, Charlevoix Public Library, and Charlevoix High School.

Project sites ranged from the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay's Hiland Cottage Good Samaritan Family Services and geographically from Brutus to East Jordan. Volunteers cleaned, painted, weeded, cleared brush, sealed roofs, skirting mobile homes and much more. With 583 volunteers donating an average of three hours each, the hours provided to non-profit agencies totaled 1,749. Since the estimated value of a volunteer is $20.85 per hour, Day of Caring provided nearly $36,500 of person-value to the community on Sept. 14.

Volunteer Connections allows agencies to post volunteer opportunities and individuals are able to search those opportunities based on their skills and interests among other criteria. Anyone interested in learning more about Volunteer Connections is encouraged to contact Savannah Zednick at the Char-Em United Way office.

VOLLEYBALL TEAM DEFEATS PELLSTON TO WIN OWN TOURNAMENT

CHARLEVOIX — For a second consecutive weekend, the Charlevoix volleyball team defeated Pellston in a tournament. Only this time around, Charlevoix's victory earned a little more clout.

The Rayders captured their own invitational title Saturday, topping the Hornets, 17-21, 21-18, 15-8, in the championship match.

It was the first time the Rayders, 23-4-1, have ever won their own invitational.

"It was really exciting," Charlevoix coach Liz Grunch said. "The girls didn't give up and didn't get discouraged. We fought back both in the semifinals and finals and got some momentum."

The Rayders went 4-0 in pool play, then defeated Roscommon, 15-21, 21-16, 17-15, in the semifinals.

Charlevoix's Jenna Way and Allison Hankins were named to the six-player all-tournament team. Way finished with 87 assists, 36 digs, 26 kills and nine aces, while Hankins added 51 kills, 12 blocks and five aces.

Also for the Rayders, Katie Mays finished with 25 kills;

Kelsey Way had 25 digs, 18 kills, seven aces and five blocks; Anna Way had 12 kills; Kelly Greyerbichl collected 58 digs; and Chelsea Hoffman had 40 digs.

"We switched our defense up and put some girls in different positions and we focused on our strong points," Grunch said. "We just keep playing better on defense, which is good to see."

"We had pretty good attacking from all sides. All our hitters performed well. Allison (Hankins) played well, but when she came out of the game other people were contributing. It was a team win and not just one person dominated on the court."

In pool play, Charlevoix defeated Ellsworth, 21-11, 21-6; Inland Lakes, 21-13, 21-16; Brimley, 21-8, 22-20; and East Jordan, 21-15, 21-14.

"We made too many unforced errors in the match and Charlevoix capitalized on them," Pellston coach Tim McNitt said. "Both teams played hard and it was a good match. We had a lot of trouble with Hankins; she hit very well in the final two sets giving us problems on our defense."

Rayder soccer team wins two, loses one

After soundly defeating conference rival Harbor Springs 8-0 earlier in the week, the Charlevoix Rayder soccer team fell to non-conference foe Marquette 4-1 Friday.

In Friday's loss to Marquette, Ben Myers scored the Rayder's lone goal and Thomas Rich picked up the assist.

"Our goalie (Matt Baidorff) continues to do a great job in making progress for us in the net," Charlevoix coach Josh Block said. "He's showing a lot of confidence and athletic ability. We're really pleased with how he's coming along."

In the Wednesday, Sept. 15 victory over Harbor Springs,

Thomas Rich and Boog Nitchman scored two goals apiece. Nitchman finished with three assists, while Klooster and Rich added two apiece, and Larsen had one.

Joe Filipiak, Matt Klooster, Wyatt Drost and Will Larsen also scored goals. Matt Baidorff and T.J. Currier split the game in goal and shared the shutout.

The Rayders returned to their winning ways Monday handily defeating Grayling 9-1 in a conference match.

Ben Myers had four goals and two assists, and Boog Nitchman had three goals and three assists.

Thomas Rich added a goal and three assists for the Rayders, while Wade Werth had one goal, and Matt Klooster had an assist.

Matt Baidorff and T.J. Currier split the game in goal for the Rayders.

Charlevoix improved to 7-4 overall, 4-1 league.

RAYDERS' MYERS BREAKS SCHOOL SOCCER SCORING RECORD

CHARLEVOIX — Ben Myers scored a school record seven goals Monday, Sept. 13 as Charlevoix rolled past Kalkaska, 9-2, in a Lake Michigan Conference boys' soccer match.

Myers scored four goals in the first 15 minutes of the game, staking the Rayders to the early lead. Myers, who last season became the first Rayder soccer player to make the All-State first-team, broke Sean Stockman's school record of six goals in a game.

Stockman set the mark in 1999.

Thomas Rich and Matt Klooster also scored for Charlevoix, which improved to 5-3 overall, 3-1 in the conference.

Wyatt Drost finished with two assists, while Klooster, Rich, Boog Nitchman, Justin Pearl, J.J. Bottomly and Will Larsen added one apiece. Matt Baidorff and T.J. Currier split the game in goal for the Rayders.

JV team continues to roll

TEAM REMAINS UNDEFEATED IN 40-19 VICTORY OVER GRAYLING

GRAYLING — The Charlevoix Rayders JV football team continued remained undefeated after soundly beating Grayling on Thursday, 40-19.

The Rayders led the game at halftime, 20-7.

Taylor Seese led Charlevoix on offense running for 118 yards on 13 carries, two touchdowns and a two-point conversion.

Seese replaced Charlie Hamilton who left the game with an injury in the first half.

Tommy Zipp caught four passes for 64 yards and two touchdowns. (A would-be third touchdown on a 56-yard pass reception was called back on a penalty). Quarterback Tanner

Catt was 8-10 for 85 yards, two touchdown passes and two touchdown runs. The other two-point conversion was scored by Chandler Novotny, who also had a would-be 57-yard touchdown run called back on a penalty. Shane Sutherland ran 10 times for 57 yards. Coach Doug Waha said Sutherland also threw many key blocks.

On defense, Zipp led the team with 10 tackles, followed by Andrew Robarge with eight. Catt had eight and Seese had seven. Sutherland and Seese each had an interception. Luke Klinger recovered a fumble caused by Zipp. Zipp, Parker LaVanway and Jake Novotny all each notched a sack.

"I have to give the offensive line a lot of credit," Waha said. "They really opened up some great holes for our backs to run through. I also feel that our defensive coordinator Adam Wood came up with a great scheme to defend Grayling's no huddle passing attack. We had kids that really stepped up during the game. It's fun to watch these young men improve each game."

GRAYLING BLANKS CHARLEVOIX ON MISSED SCORING CHANCES

"We played them pretty tough the first half," said Charlevoix coach Dnn Jess, whose team trailed, 12-0, at the break. "We got in the red zone three times and didn't get any points out of it."

The loss dropped Charlevoix to 1-3 overall, 0-2 Lake Michigan. Grayling is 4-0, 2-0 and ranked third in the Associated Press Division 5 state poll.

Andrew Pitter made 17 tackles to lead Charlevoix's defense, while Jake McLean and Jon Boss made 11 stops apiece. McLean and Jordan

Jones each had an interception for the Rayders, who go to Traverse City St. Francis 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, for a league game.

St. Francis is 2-2, 1-1 after a 49-0 victory over East Jordan on Friday.

The Red Devils are 0-4, 0-2. They go to Grayling on Friday, Sept. 24.

Boyer City approves Lexamar tax abatement

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

BOYNE CITY — On Tuesday evening at the Boyne City City Commission regular board meeting the commission approved a tax abatement request by Lexamar Corporation that could bring additional jobs and income to the city.

The auto parts producer, Lexamar Corporation, is planning to purchase $8 million of new equipment over the next two years to increase efficiency and production, but wanted Boyne City to approve an abatement for half the millage tax for the machinery over a 12-year period.

Boyer City mayor, Chuck Vondra said the agreement would equate to taxes on $4 million from the new equipment, which is no decrease in tax money for the city from what it currently collects from the corporation. Plus, if supported, Lexamar Corporation would be more likely to stay here for a longer period of time, creating more jobs.

Currently Lexamar Corporation employs about 440 full-time, part-time and temporary employees from the area. The purchase of the new equipment would require the company to hire an additional 48 full-time employees to run the machinery.

"I really appreciate Lexamar Corporation coming to Boyne City. One of the biggest things we want for this community is job creation," Vondra said.

Besides the increase in jobs for the community, the collection of half the millage tax from the new machinery would increase local government tax income.

"The tax income for the city and county would be about $60,000 annually from the machinery," said Cindy Grice, Boyne City clerk/treasurer.

The board and community members present for the meeting discussed the proposal from several different angles to make sure the language of the agreement was in the best interest for all parties involved before they decided to move forward. In the end they all agreed the abatement request would be beneficial to the community and Lexamar Corporation.

In an unanimous decision the board voted to approve the request and give Lexamar Corporation an abatement for half the $8 million worth of machinery for a 12 year period.

"This simply means they will only have to pay millage taxes on half the machinery for 12 years. At that point they will have to start paying the full amount of what the machinery is worth at the time in their annual taxes," said Michael Cain, Boyne City manager.

The commission also approved the proposal to comply with Wilson Township's decision to change the name of Boyne City-East Jordan Road to Fall Park Road. Earlier in the month Wilson Township changed the name of the portion of the road which passed through their township to reduce confusion for emergency crews called to the area. Now the short stretch which passes into Boyne City will also be renamed as Fall Park Road.

Also discussed at the meeting were the initial plans for a four-phase marina expansion in the city, which is in the early planning phase, and the consideration to adopt a fraud policy into the city government. These topics will be discussed further at future meetings after more planning by city officials.

Chamber alliance adds member, changes name

The Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance, consisting of the Chambers of Commerce representing Benzie County, Cadillac, Charlevoix, Petoskey, and the Traverse City Area, announce the addition of the Alpena Area Chamber of Commerce and a name change to the Northern Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance.

The Alliance was created in 2004 and will now provide a stronger voice on local and statewide legislative issues for business growth and community development across all of the northern Lower Peninsula. The Northern Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance represents roughly 5,500 members.

"The Alpena Area Chamber of Commerce chose to join the Northern Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance because now more than ever we need to work collaboratively across regions facing the same challenges," Alpena Area Chamber of Commerce executive director Jackie Krawczak said. "We were impressed with the past successes of the Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance and felt it was a good fit for us, giving us a greater and more effective presence in Lansing on behalf of businesses in our region."

Erin Benis, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce added that, "We (as an Alliance) have created a strong voice, involving our members, our legislators and community leaders for our region. The addition of Alpena to the Alliance not only broadens our geographic scope, but solidifies our belief that there are many issues common to businesses across Northern Michigan."

To find out more about the Northern Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance, see the August issue of Northwest Michigan Business magazine.

Rayder soccer coach steps down

JOSH BLOCK HANGS UP HIS WHISTLE EARLY AMID COMPLAINTS FROM PARENTS, PLAYERS

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — Two days after being placed on a non-disciplinary administrative leave from his coaching position, Charlevoix High School varsity soccer coach Josh Block resigned from the post Friday.

District superintendent Chet Janik had placed Block, who also is a teacher in the district, on leave from the coaching position only on Wednesday, Sept. 22 after some parents and players brought concerns about Block's handling of the team to school officials.

School officials placed Block on leave while they investigated the allegations against him.

Block told the Charlevoix Courier that the incident which triggered his being placed on leave happened on the team bus as the team was nearly home from their 9-1 victory over Grayling on Monday, Sept. 20. Block said after repeatedly talking to players about their behavior on the bus, he stood up and screamed at them about their behavior.

Block said, however, that the incident on Sept. 20 was just the culmination of frustration and discord that has been brewing within the team over the season.

Janik agreed with Block's summarization of the concerns that were voiced by some players and parents that prompted Block being placed on leave.

The team's record stood at 7-4 overall and 4-1 in the league when Block was placed on leave. The Rayders have since posted a 4-1 non-conference win at home over Suttons Bay on Saturday.

Block, who has 18 years of coaching experience — 16 in Charlevoix, had not made any official announcement, but had made no secret of the fact that he was planning to retiring from coaching at the end of this season.

Block said he purposefully set up "the most competitive schedule ever assembled in Charlevoix boys soccer history."

"I knew we were going to lose some games, but I believed the playing competition at this level would best prepare us for our ultimate goal — a state championship," Block said. "I believe that athletes should be challenged; pushed to the point of being uncomfortable in order to reach their potential ... Getting athletes to reach their potential has always been one of my greatest goals. Pushing athletes and challenging them in different ways to get there can sometimes be misconstrued."

Last year Block led the Rayders to a 20-2 season that included the school's first ever Lake Michigan Conference and district titles in boys soccer. The Rayder season ended with a 2-1 loss to Tawas in the regional semi-final.

He added, "Early season losses lead to frustration. A frustrated group of people can quickly turn to desperate measures."

"Too often situations are pulled out of context and truly honorable intentions turn out with disastrous effects. The 'butt chewing' I gave the team on Monday was never meant to alienate them as it did. This was certainly a culminating incident that sparked many of the events in the following days," Block said.

"My players are like my children. You don't stop loving them just because of something that happened. I have concerns over how this all went down and I certainly have a lot of remorse from the outcome. I am proud to have been a coach for over 16 years. I am a wiser and stronger person because of it. A little bruised, but certainly better."

John Boss, one of the team's assistant coaches, has been appointed to fill Block's position for the remainder of the season.

Football makes fall 'Pop'

"I served my country. I played high school football." — Al Bundy

I love fall. I like the cooler weather. I like how the leaves change color and crunch under my feet after they fall.

I like all that stuff, but most of all I like fall because it means football.

Can I get an, "Amen?"

Oh sure, I like to watch it on TV and a trip or two to a storied venue such as the Big House or a trip to a game at the alma mater to relive those college days is great, but to me, the last great bastion of football in its purest form is in small-town high schools.

It's in places like these, where the head coach's name is heard more often than the mayor's over eggs and coffee or beer and nachos, that the true spirit of the game lives.

There's nothing like the smell of the damp grass, popcorn from the concessions stand, and the excitement that fills in the air over a football field on a Friday night in the fall. When two neighboring rival schools are going to meet on the gridiron, it doesn't matter what the teams' records are, it just matters that it's (insert hated rival du jour here), and they must be defeated.

I remember those Friday nights when I was growing up in my native Frankenthum. (Yes, we do have more than chicken and Christmas ornaments there.) Sitting in the stands as a fifth, sixth, seventh or eighth grader, hanging on every play, knowing that an Eagle loss would surely cast a pallor over the rest of the weekend — well at least until noon on Saturday.

I thought of all this last Saturday as I stood on the sidelines taking photos at the Pop Warner football games at Kipke Field. I was impressed at how well organized these little guys — er, pardon me, young men (and a few women) are.

It was my first time watching a Pop Warner game, so seeing the players dive on their bellies for a punt or a field goal attempt took a little getting used to. But it was obvious to me that these kids have been coached in the fundamentals and are well on their way to finding all the fun and life lessons that the game has to offer.

It was good to hear the coaches yell encouragement, and yes, sometimes direction and correction to their players. "Max, you need to stay inside there."

"Joe, good job, keeping him in front of you."

"Collin, get your hands out of your sleeves and pay attention."

When I was that age (Geez, I'm still four months from turning 40 and I'm already starting sentences like that) we had nothing like Pop Warner football. The best we had was some four-week flag football program, that was a glorified version of the two-hand touch pickup games we played a recess. You know the ones where the teacher was the "all-time quarterback" plays were drawn out in the dirt or on the palm of someone's hand and defenders had to count to "five Mississippi" before they could rush the passer.

When I played, the first time most of us ever donned helmet and a set of pads was that first day of contact when we were freshman.

I remember jogging in place doing "down-ups" thinking, "What have I gotten myself into?"

I remember the first time hitting someone and being surprised that it didn't really hurt. I also remember being told that if someone put a pane of glass in front of me to hit, I wouldn't break it. Good times.

But, I digress.

Hopefully, these young players appreciate the opportunity they have to play such a great game at such a young age.

I'm sure one day soon you'll see many of them crashing through a paper banner as their school fight song plays on one of those magical fall nights that many of us love so much.

LETTERS to the editor

KUDOS TO NORTHWEST ACADEMY

A new school year has begun. According to the Detroit Free Press, a quarter of Michigan public school students will fail to graduate on time this year; 15 percent will drop out altogether. Any school district with that record is a failure. Fortunately, none of the school districts in Northern Michigan falls into that category; but we all fail to meet the needs of some of our children some of the time.

Institutions like Charlevoix's Northwest Academy, the Suttons Bay School District, and the Traverse City Public Schools are trying to do something about that. All three served as pioneers in the State of Michigan's Seat Time Waiver program. The Seat Time Waiver program waives the rule that every student must be physically seated in a school's classroom to be counted for State financial support. It takes advantage of computer technology's unique ability to serve a segment of our public school population by allowing some students to take classes, on-line, at home.

Seat Time Waiver students enjoy the flexibility offered by learning on-line at home,

East Jordan City Commission appoints Tom Kenyon to vacant seat and Calico Fudge and is married with two children.

Kenyon

The East Jordan City Commission, at its Tuesday, Sept. 21 meeting, appointed Tom Kenyon fill the vacancy created by the recent resignation of former commissioner Jane Booze.

Kenyon, 61, has lived in East Jordan for five years, and is a member of the East Jordan Downtown Development Authority. He works as a manufacturing representative for the Jelly Belly Candy Co.

Commission members voted 5-1 to approve Kenyon's appointment. Thomas Breakey nominated Becky Rowbotham for the position. From the audience, former commissioner Lee Symonds supported Breakey's argument that Rowbotham deserved consideration because of her status as first runner-up in the most recent election for a vacant city commission position. In that election, which took place in February of 2010, Tinea Spence was elected to the commission.

Commissioner Ray Fisher was enthusiastic about Kenyon's appointment to the Commission.

"I think we needed a business person. He'll offer stability," Fisher said.

Kenyon said that he looked forward to working with the commission, and the East Jordan community.

"East Jordan's greatest asset is its people," Kenyon said, citing the spirit of volunteerism within the community.

In other news, Treasurer Susan Grutsch presented updated versions of the city logo, created by Sara Malpass Vron-dran, who created the city logo which is currently in use.

The commission gave its approval to proceed with the purchase of a 1999 International 4900 dump truck, for a price not to exceed $39,900.

The commission accepted a bid in the amount of $9,770 from Ernst Construction to rebuild the Murphy Field concession building, which was destroyed when it was hit by a semi truck attempting to turn around in the park's parking lot. Parks director Tom Cannon's memo stated that even though the bid was not the lowest received, it included electrical work, which the lowest bid did not.

In his report to the commission, city administrator Robert Anderson said the new fire/EMS building which is under construction now has a roof, bay doors are scheduled to be hung at the end of September, and most of the interior work in the main section is complete. The building is on track to meet its October completion target.

The commission also approved permits for the East Jordan Public Schools homecoming parade on Oct. 9, and Pumpkin Fest 2010 on Oct. 16.

EJ woman injured in Boyne Valley crash

An East Jordan woman was injured in a single vehicle traffic crash in Boyne Valley Township Saturday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the injured woman as Mitzi Sue Newberg, 50.

Schneider said the crash happened at about 9 p.m. on Deer Lake Road at Korthase Road.

Police said Newberg was traveling north on Korthase Road in a 1998 Chevrolet Impala when she failed to stop at Deer Lake Road, passed through the intersection and struck a tree head on. Deputies said Newberg claimed to be uninjured and refused treatment from the Boyne Valley Ambulance and the Boyne City paramedic unit.

Police said Newberg later claimed to be injured and was treated at the Charlevoix Area Hospital for minor injuries. The crash remains under investigation.

The Sheriff's Office was also assisted at the scene by the Boyne City Police Department.

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF
WRITER

With the school year just under way, the new educators and staff of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District are getting settled into their new positions.

They come from all over the state and each brings his or her own set of experiences and talents to the area to educate the kids of Northern Michigan.

Erin Sanford joined the district as a special education teacher consultant and will serve the communities of Charlevoix, Ellsworth and Beaver Island. Prior to joining the district she was a special education teacher at Harbor Springs Middle and High schools. She earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Western Michigan University and a master's degree in special education from Ferris State University.

Mark Pontoni is the new teacher at Midtown High School, an alternative education school operated by the district and located in Bellaire. He previously taught at Owosso High School and Gaylord High School and earned a master's degree in education, a master's degree in political science and a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Michigan.

Karen Posnik joined the district as the transportation department assistant. In this role she serves as the liaison for parents who have questions about transporting their child with special needs. She also manages the transporters and maintains their credentials, and creates and maintains bus routes. Prior to joining the district, she worked for 23 years at Traverse City Area Public Schools and has also been a bus driver and dispatcher.

Mitchell Klooster is joining the district's Early Childhood Education Department as a teacher assistant in the Be-Four Program. In this role he helps children meet developmental milestones while sharing resources with their families to assist their child in growth and development. He previously worked at several area day camps and earned an associate degree in child development from Grand Rapids Community College.

Jim Cooper, who previously served as a teacher, principal and superintendent in several districts locally and across the region, has joined the district as the early college coordinator. In this role, among other duties, he will coordinate the new direct credit program to allow high school juniors and seniors to earn college credits while still in high school.

Peggy Bush is the finance assistant at Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Educational Service District through a collaborative arrangement Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District has to provide business services. At COP ESD, Bush works in payroll in human resources. Prior to joining Char-Em ISD she was at Gaylord Community Schools. She earned a bachelor's degree in office administration from Northern Michigan University.

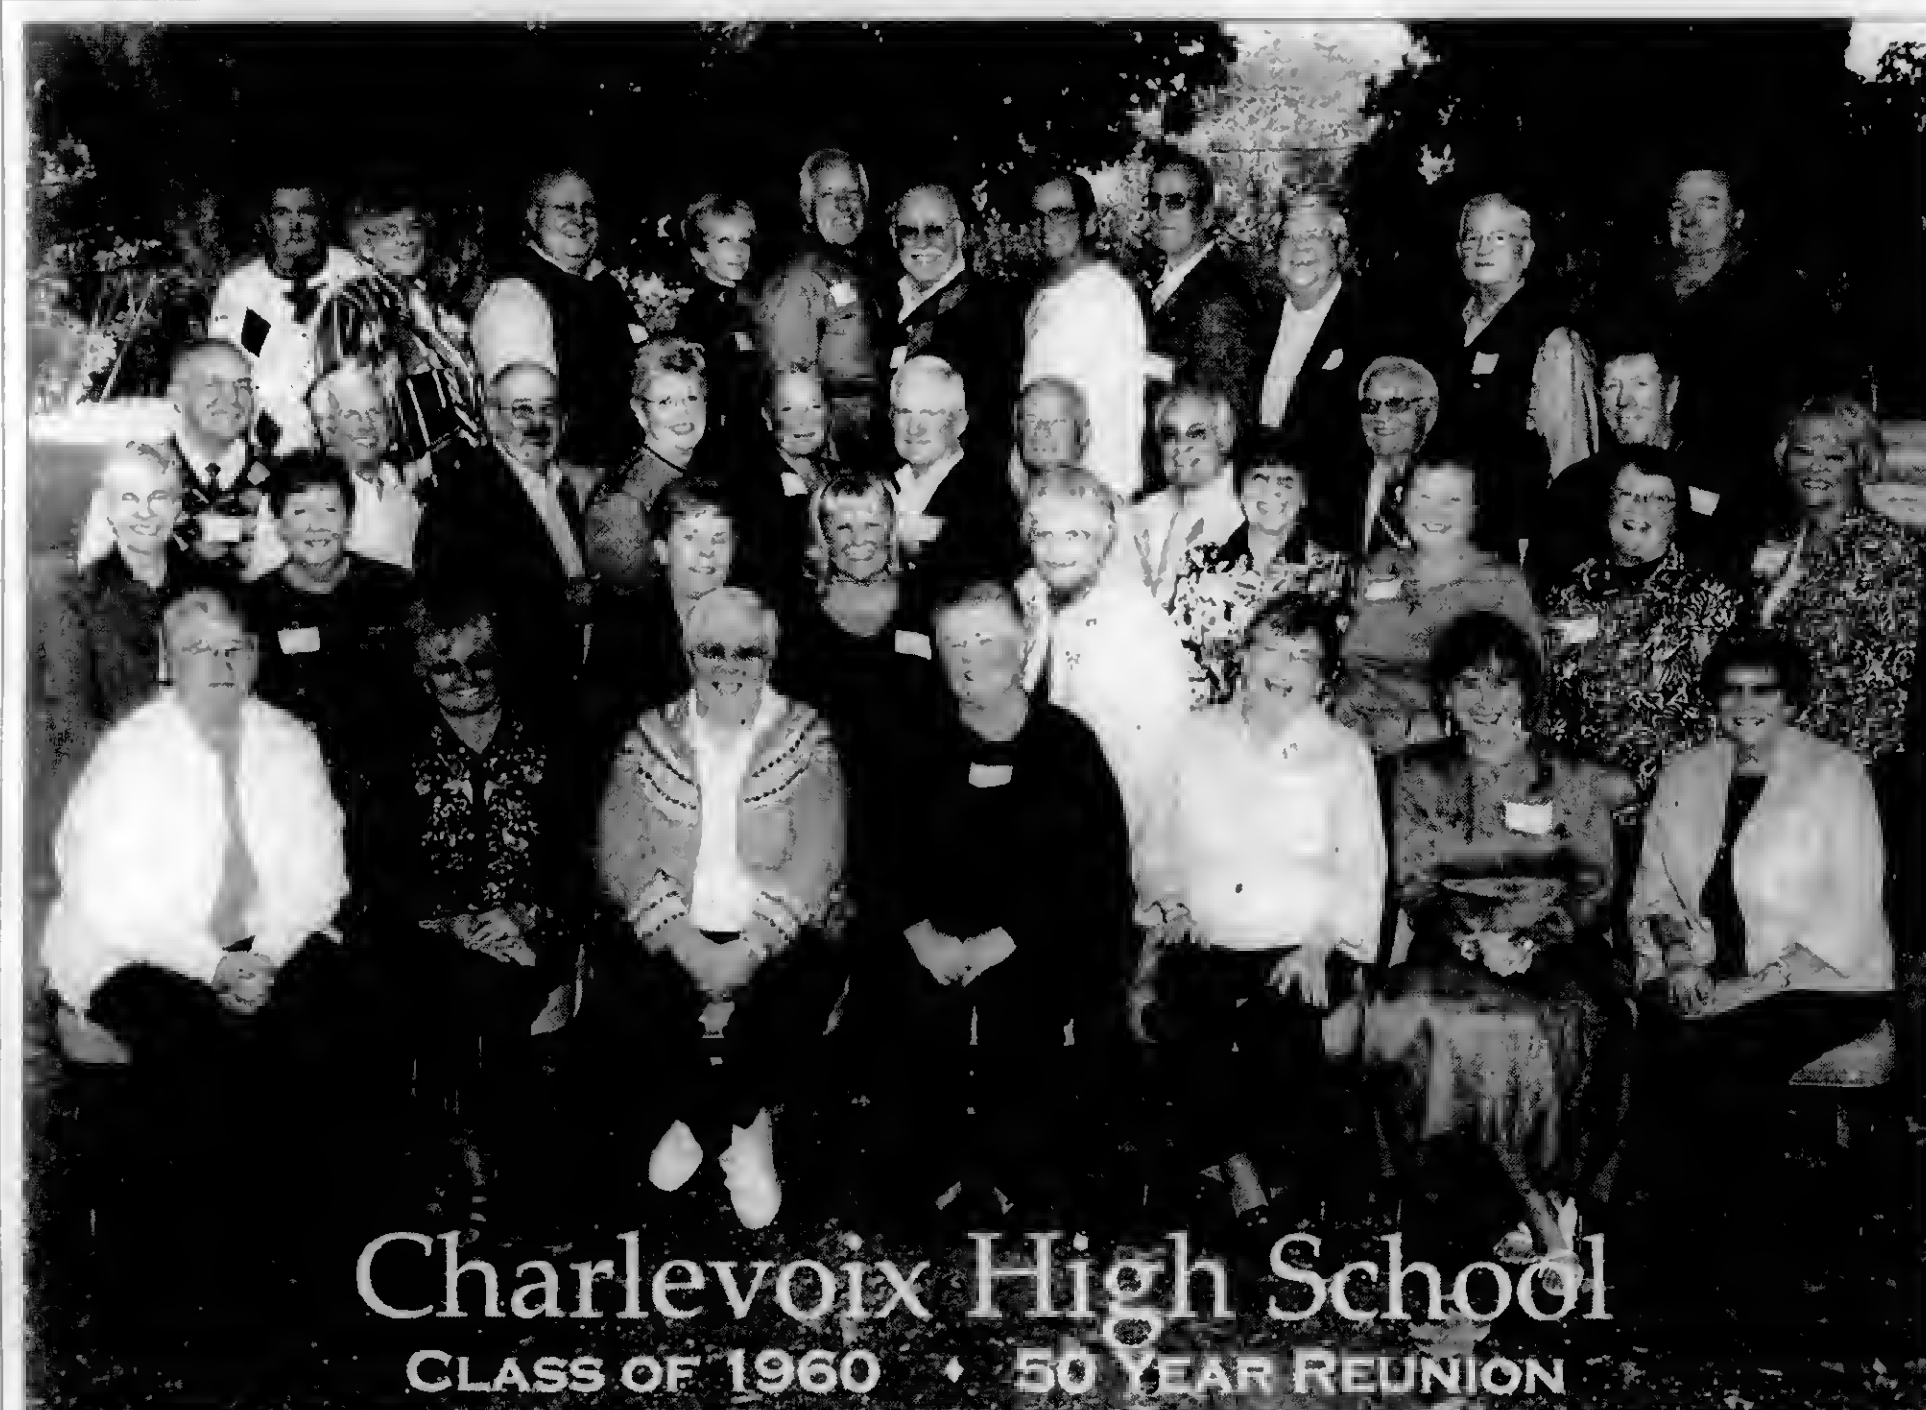

Bob Alger has joined the district as director of instructional services where he oversees literacy consultant staff and services, professional development programs and services offered to more than 900 educators across the district, school improvement initiatives, curriculum and technology support staff. He served as superintendent in Boyne City and Shepherd, and has been a principal and teacher. He has a master's degree in K-12 administration from Michigan State University, a bachelor's degree in education from Ferris State University, and an associate degree in tool and die design from Ferris State University.

Assistant teachers at the Patricia A. Taylor School for Exceptional Children support the lead teachers in the classroom and work with children with special needs. The following are new assistant teachers at the school: Rachel Tison who prior to joining the district was a caseworker with Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Northwest Michigan and a substitute with the district. She earned a bachelor's degree in social work from Ferris State University. Tim Smith, who works in the secondary participation classroom, has a bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University. Jessica Morris, who works in the elementary participation classroom, was a substitute for the district and also worked at various retail stores. He obtained an associate degree from North Central Michigan College.

Also joining the district as long-term substitute drivers and aides are Raymond Adams, Mark Folsom and Cindy Koeman.

EJ school official demoted after certification lapse

EAST JORDAN — Long time assistant high school principal Steve Hines was recently relieved of his principal duties. Hines has worked with East Jordan Schools for approximately 26 years. The school board decided to remove him from the assistant principal position after he failed to complete proper certification.

"There are new credentials that are required and he did not keep up with them. He has had the opportunity and did not get it done," board president Kevin Keane said.

Within the past five years, Hines needed to complete six semester hour credits or 18 state board continuing education units.

"The whole thing kind of went under my radar and by the time I realized it, it was too late to do anything," Hines said.

"I'm not sure if it (the decision to dismiss Hines) was the only choice that could have been made, but I understand the board's position and I'm going to move forward," he added.

Keane said the school district will not be looking for someone to fill the assistant principal position. Instead, they will be eliminating the job to save on costs.

Hines held the assistant principal position for about the past ten years. At that same time he took over as the athletic director. This is another job Hines will not be continuing this school year. Instead, Hines will serve as the girl's varsity basketball coach.

"I was given a choice between coaching and acting as the athletic director. I chose to coach," Hines said.

Hines will still be seen around the district as he currently teaches six physical education classes, three at the high school and three at the middle school.

In the mean time, all athletic questions/comments should be directed to Phyllis Olszewski.

Scams showing up more often in area

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF
WRITER

If it sounds too good to be true it probably is.

There has been an increasing number of Internet, phone and mail scams in Charlevoix County in recent months and people are handing their hard-earned cash over to criminals.

As computer technology advances and provides instantaneous information on nearly any subject at your fingertips, criminals are using that same technology to find their way into your pocketbooks.

"I've seen an increase in scams in just the last two or three months in the area. They're always coming up with a new scam or way to take advantage of people," said Dale Boehm, East Jordan Police Chief.

In 2009 the number of Internet scam complaints in the U.S. rose from 275,284 to 336,655 and the money lost from those scams rose from $265 million to $559.7 million, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The annual increases are a trend, but Internet fraud is only one of the avenues criminals are using to take money from unsuspecting citizens. There is also telemarketing fraud, impersonation/identity fraud, lottery scams, advance fee schemes, common health insurance fraud, letter of credit fraud, bank fraud and the list goes on.

"There is no end to the imagination of these people to take advantage of others. When you think you have their scam figured out one day they have something completely new the next," said Don Schneider, Charlevoix County Sheriff.

In East Jordan the police have recently received a large number of complaints about scams that are affecting locals.

Earlier this summer an elderly woman in the city received a call from someone claiming to be with a police department in Canada. They told her they had her granddaughter in custody and for the girl to avoid being sent to lockup they needed $1,700. The woman sent the money and soon after was told they needed an additional $2,300, but this time she was instructed to wire it to the United Kingdom where the attorney was on vacation. She went to the bank to make the transaction and bank officials became suspicious. Even though she was told by the "Canadian police" to not contact local police, that is exactly what she did.

"They came to us and we very quickly called the granddaughter and found she was safe in her dorm room in college at Grand Valley," Boehm said.

Others in the area have also been the victims of other kinds of fraud.

"We've had people receive checks for real estate rentals. The person contacting them sends a check for more than the amount of the rental and asks them to cash the check and wire the extra money back to them so they have spending money when they arrive to stay in the home," Boehm said.

Others have responded to ads on Craig's List or the newspaper and have found out only when it was too late that they have been scammed.

Another resident of East Jordan recently responded to an ad in the Petoskey News-Review classifieds for a chauffeur job. After two weeks of corresponding with three different people from the company he received a check for $2,884. He was instructed to cash the check, keep a portion of the money for expenses, send the rest back to the company and wait for a vehicle to be delivered to him so he could start his job. The man did as instructed and never heard from the company again. Shortly after, the bank came after him for the money because the check was counterfeit.

"People need to realize they are responsible for any checks they cash, even if they are counterfeit," Boehm said.

After investigating the situation, the police discovered the Internet Protocol address for the classified ad was in Africa, where international laws forbid U.S. law enforcement to go after them. The Petoskey News-Review is now screening the classifieds to attempt to stop scams coming through the paper.

"This (ad) came to us online from a legitimate credit card. They're using sophisticated techniques to get through the system, but we are now policing the classifieds coming in to stop the scams, but it's not foolproof and people should be careful," said Doug Caldwell, Petoskey News-Review publisher.

Even though some of these scam artists pitch a story that sounds as real as anything you've ever heard, there are ways to protect yourself.

"Pay attention to the details," Boehm said.

If something seems to good to be true it probably is, and if you are ever suspicious that something may be a scam contact your local authorities before you become a victim.

For more information on scams look at the FBI web site at: www.fbi.gov/majecases/fraud/fraudscemes.htm.

Tips to avoid telemarketing fraud

— Don't buy from an unfamiliar company over the phone.

— Always ask for and wait to receive written material about any offer or charity.

— Always check out unfamiliar companies with your local consumer protection agency, Better Business Bureau, state Attorney General, the National Fraud Information Center or other watchdog groups.

— Obtain a salesperson's name, business identity, telephone number, street address, mailing address and business license number before you transact business.

— Don't pay in advance for services.

— Always take your time making a decision.

— Don't pay for a "free

— Never send money or give out personal information such as credit card numbers and expiration dates, bank account numbers, dates of birth, or social security numbers to unfamiliar companies or unknown persons.

Tips for avoiding impersonation or identity fraud — Never throw away ATM receipts, credit statements, credit cards or bank statements in a usable form.

— Never give your credit card number over the telephone unless you make the call.

— Reconcile your bank account monthly and notify your bank of discrepancies immediately.

— Keep a list of telephone numbers to call to report the loss or theft of your wallet, credit cards and others.

Raven Hill renovation, expansion under way

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF
WRITER

EAST JORDAN — The Raven Hill Discovery Center in East Jordan is receiving a major makeover to allow for more exhibit and activity space to educate and entertain their visitors.

After 20 years in operation, the hands-on learning center has outgrown the facility. There are displays upon displays filling every nook and cranny and the renovation and expansion will allow them to spread out to provide a better learning environment.

"We thought the renovations would be a good way to celebrate our 20th year and will allow us to organize things a little better for our guests," Cheri Leach, CEO and director of programing for Raven Hill Discovery Center, said.

The center provides a hands-on learning experience that allows children and adults to work with displays in the center's animal room, chemistry room, time tunnel, fiber studio, one-room schoolhouse, print shop, tree house, main museum and more.

Leach says the center keeps getting more and more displays, animals and exhibits, and with a recent increase in visitors because of the Second Saturday program, which allows people free admission to the center on the second Saturday of every month in 2010, the facility is crowded.

"The success of the Second Saturday program spurred us on to realize we need more space," Leach said.

Before renovations to the hands-on facility, the building had 3,600 square feet of floor space. The expansion will increase it to 4,880 square feet. The addition will include an arts corridor, which will house 12 large display cases and small art shows, and a great room, which will have closets for tables, chairs and telescopes, a taxidermy display and a large open area for activities on inclement weather days.

In addition to the expansion they are refinishing the floors and walls of the existing facility.

The center has already raised $75,000 for the expansion through donations, which the center thought would be enough to complete the project, but after starting, it ran in to code issues that will cost the center more money.

"We had some unexpected expenses after starting the project so we need to raise about another $10,000 to finish everything," Leach said.

Because the building is expanding, law requires the center put in an additional restroom and drinking fountain to accommodate the potentially larger crowds in the facility.

Leach believes the renovations and expansion will be completed by early October and will then be fully operational. Until completion only the outdoor exhibits will be open on the weekends. Anyone can visit from noon-4 p.m. on Saturdays and 2-4 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is $4 until the main facility reopens.

Rotary offering scholarships to help pay for upcoming Young Americans workshop

The Charlevoix Rotary Club will provide up to 33 scholarships for students in grades 4 through 12 to attend the Young Americans workshop which is slated for Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 14-16, at the East Jordan Community Auditorium. The full cost of the workshop is $47, but so with the Rotary Club's support, the first 33 students who enroll will need to pay only $17 to attend.

Students from East Jordan will also be able to attend for the same price, thanks to a similar donation in that community.

Students and parents that are interested in more information can check with their school office or call Kim Brown (231) 536-2121.

Organizers are also looking for host families to house the Young Americans while they are working in this area.

The workshop will conclude with a show including students and Young American cast members at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 16, at the East Jordan High School gymnasium.

Tickets for the show are $8 for adults and $5 for students.

St. Francis hands JV first loss of season

TURNOVERS KEY IN 32-22 LOSS TO TC ST. FRANCIS

Turnovers at inopportune times cost the Rayder Junior Varsity football team their first loss of the season Thursday, as they fell to the Traverse City St. Francis Gladiators 32-11.

The JV squad's record now stands at 4-1 overall and 2-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"Anytime you lose in turnover margin, it is tough to overcome especially against a good team," head coach Doug Waha said.

The Rayders took the opening kickoff and scored on its first series to take the lead 8-0. Shane Sutherland ran in the touchdown from 17 yards and Tommy Zipp caught the conversion pass from Tanner Catt.

St. Francis scored the next 26 points before the Rayders answered with a Taylor Seese 28-yard run.

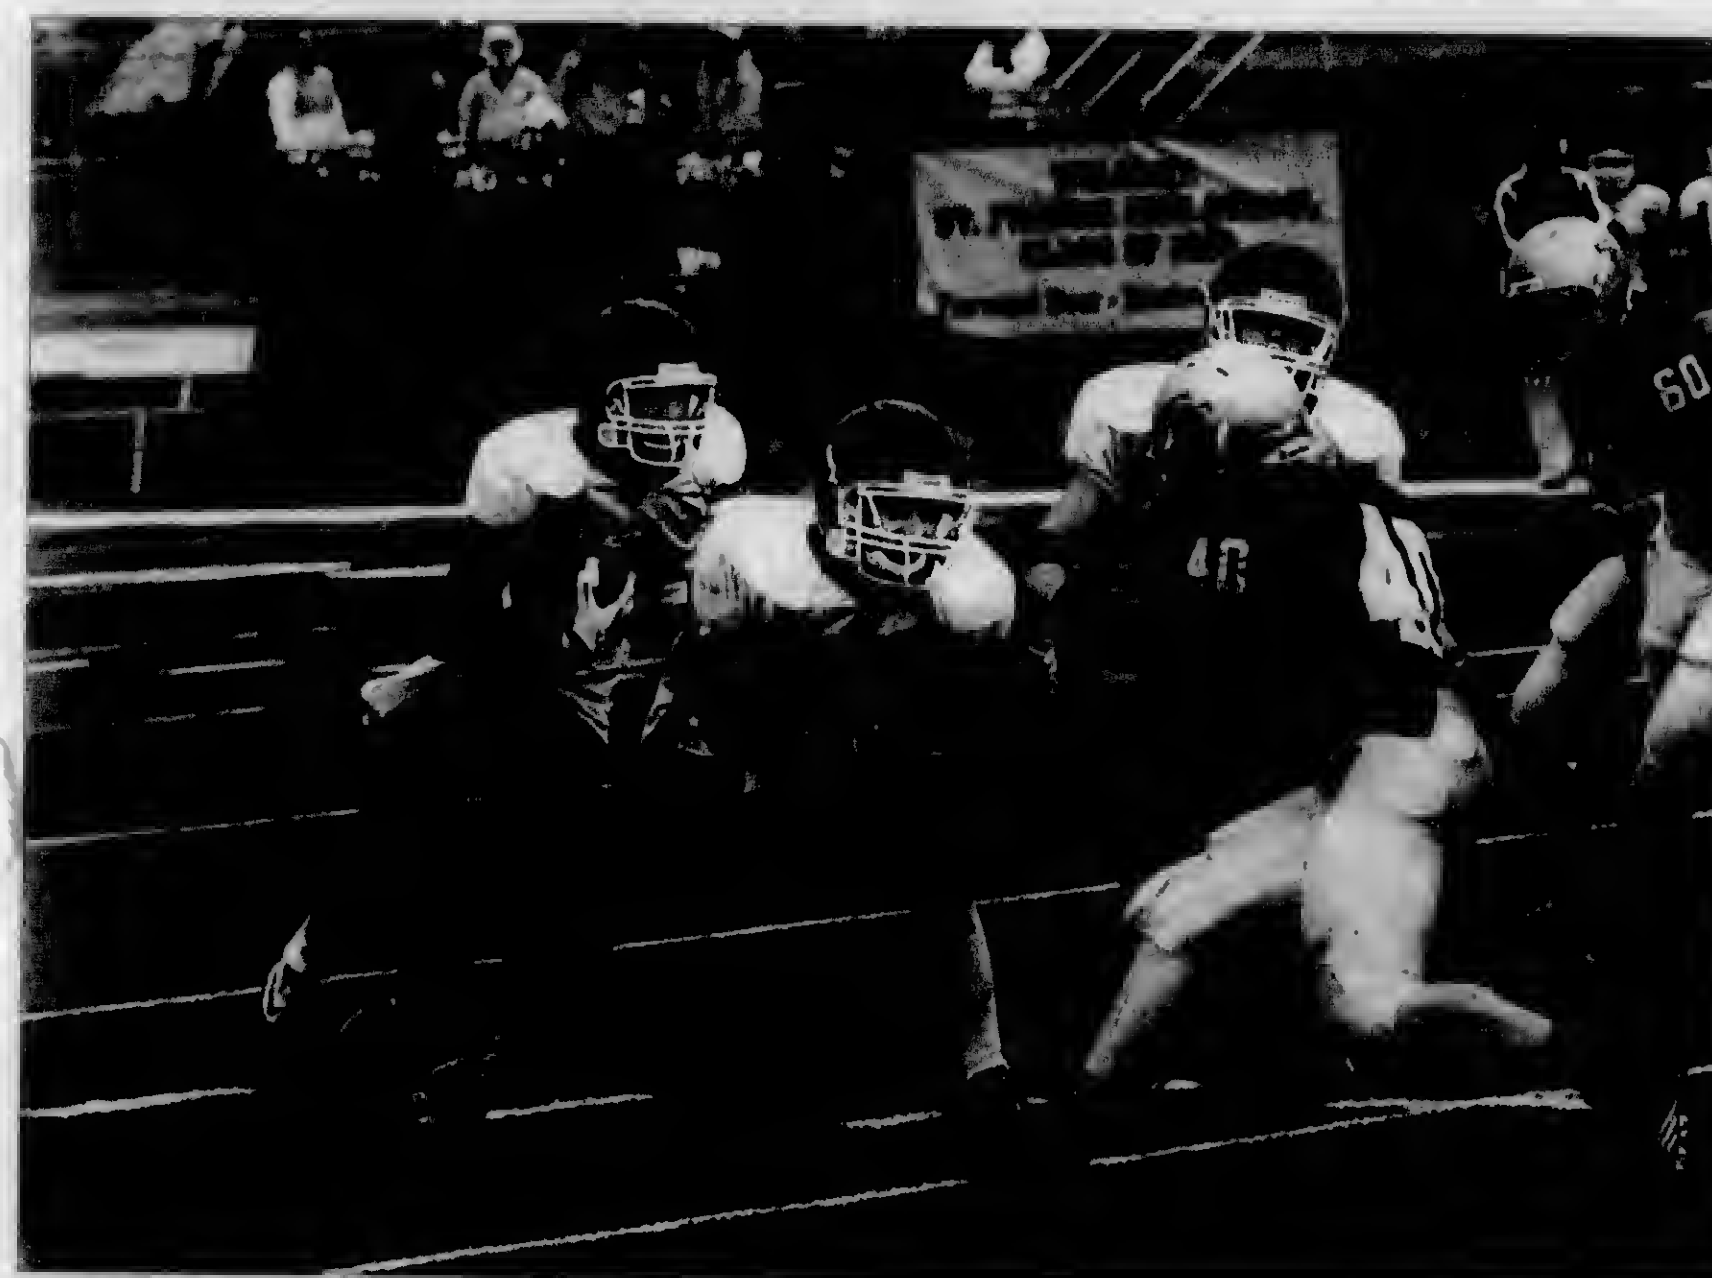

The teams then traded touchdowns as the Rayder's Zipp caught an 11-yard pass from Catt and Chandler Novotny ran in the conversion.

For the game Shane Sutherland had 16 carries for 93 yards and Taylor Seese had 17 carries for 100 yards. Novotny also had a 31-yard run that set up the Rayder's final score. Zipp had five receptions for 30 yards, one touchdown and one two-point conversion. Catt led the defense with 11 tackles, Seese and Andrew Robarge had seven each, while Sutherland, Zipp and Drew Seymour had six tackles apiece. Robarge and Luke Klinger each recovered a fumble.

Next week the JV team will travel to East Jordan to take on the Red Devils.

NCMC won't offer 4-year degrees

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF
WRITER

State legislation that would allow some Michigan community colleges to offer four-year degrees, is not expected to impact North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

The bill, which passed the House last week with a vote of 55-49, would allow community colleges to offer bachelor's degrees in nursing, cement technology, culinary arts and maritime technology.

The bill is expected to be taken up in the senate in the coming weeks.

"Although we have a great associate degree nursing program, we also have an excellent relationship with Lake Superior State University and other four-year schools that have programs for students seeking bachelor's degrees," said Charlie MacInnis, director of public relations for North Central Michigan College. "We support the legislation, but we have no plans to take advantage of it."

MacInnis added that the nearest schools that will benefit from the proposed legislation are Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City, which has a maritime and culinary program, and Alpena Community College which offers a concrete technology program.

Proponents of the legislation argue that job providers want bachelor's degrees from their employees, not associate degrees. As a result, community colleges should expand to meet these needs.

Opponents claim the limited number of degrees could undermine the credibility of all degrees used in Michigan and raise tuition costs and property taxes. "At a time when the state is continuing to dramatically reduce its support for higher education in general, it is a waste of limited resources to encourage two-year colleges to add the professors, administrative support, laboratory space and other expenses necessary to provide accredited four-year degrees," said Michael Boulus, executive director of the Presidents Council, State Universities of Michigan.

But Mike Hansen, president of the Michigan Community College Association, applauded the vote, citing the vote is, "a step forward in the retooling of Michigan's workforce and its continuing transition into a knowledge-based economy."

A similar bill, which would add nuclear technology to the list of academic disciplines, is currently under consideration in the Senate.

'Pints for Prostates' event returns to Villager

The "Pints for Prostates" campaign salutes survivors of the disease at events taking place across the country, including the Villager Pub in Charlevoix — all day on Friday, Oct. 1.

For the second year, the Villager Pub will donate 50 percent of proceeds from draft beer sales on the day of the event to the U.S. TOO International Prostate Cancer Education & Support Network, a non-profit organization that works to support, educate and advocate for men with prostate cancer and their families.

"We're grateful to the Villager Pub for hosting Pints for Prostates. Events like this help us reach men in a friendly way when they may be willing to listen to messages about prostate health," said Dr. Joshua Meyerson, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, which is sponsoring the local event.

Each week 4,000 men are diagnosed with prostate cancer.

"The key for these men is detecting the disease in the early stages when treatment is nearly 100 percent successful," Meyerson said.

"The idea of reaching men about health issues through beer sounded a little strange at first, but it makes perfect sense," said Thomas Kirk, President and CEO of U.S. TOO International. "Our mission is to educate and empower men and their family members to take an active role in their health. One in six men is at risk of developing prostate cancer during their lifetime and early detection through the monitoring of PSA levels is critical to getting the disease under control. Pints for Prostates will help us reach more men at a time when a growing number of men are at risk."

The American Cancer Society recommends that men make an informed decision with their doctor about whether to be tested for prostate cancer. Starting at age 50, the American Cancer Society urges men to talk to their doctor about the pros and cons of testing so they can decide if testing is the right choice for them. Men who have a father or brother who had prostate cancer before age 65 should have this talk with their doctor starting at age 45.

For more information about "Pints for Prostates," contact Erika VanDam, supervisor for family and community health at (231) 347-6014.

MDOT: Beware of sun's glare and deer this fall

The Michigan Department of Transportation is reminding motorists that the start of the fall season means that sun glare (mainly on east-west routes) can make driving more hazardous during morning and evening commutes.

"Driving through our work zones can be more hazardous when the sun glare exists at certain times of the day," said state transportation director Kirk T. Steudle. "While it may seem obvious, it is a seasonal concern that needs extra attention. Heightened awareness will make our roads safer for everyone."

Intense glare from the sun on the horizon has the potential to blind drivers, causing unexpected slow downs. Motorists can better prepare for this glare by keeping their windshield clean, using their visor, and keeping a pair of sunglasses in the vehicle. Leaving more space between you and the vehicle in front of you is one key to avoiding an unwanted crash in certain fall conditions. Other potential safety hazards exist every year as well, like wet, fallen leaves and frost.

State transportation officials also are warning drivers to beware of active deer that seem to hit the roads more every fall, especially during the months of October and November.

According to the Michigan State Police Criminal Justice Information Center, there were 61,486 deer-vehicle crashes in 2009, up from the 61,010 crashes reported in 2008. However, many crashes go unreported, so actual crash numbers are thought to be much higher.

"Drivers should expect to see deer and remember to come to a controlled stop," Steudle said. "Swerving may be a natural reaction that can lead to an extremely dangerous situation, and, in some cases, death."

To increase awareness about vehicle-deer crashes, October has been proclaimed "Michigan Vehicle-Deer Crash Safety Awareness Month" by Gov. Jennifer M. Granholm.

The Michigan Department of Transportation, an active member of the Michigan Deer Crash Coalition, uses the slogan "Don't Veer for Deer" in an effort to get more drivers to pay close attention to the potential safety risk of deer crossing the roadway. When a deer suddenly appears, agency officials say the best line of defense is to slow down, hold the steering wheel tightly, and come to a controlled stop.

Ellsworth moving to pig-less festival

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Faced with a dwindling corps volunteers and competition from other neighboring events, organizers of the annual Ellsworth Pig Roast have decided to end the 30-year-old event with visions of creating a new community summertime festival will take its place.

The Ellsworth Pig Roast Committee met last week to finalize the elimination of the long-held summer tradition and make plans for a new community celebration the town expects to debut next July.

Alana Hailey, publicity

chairperson for the committee expressed bitter-sweet emotions about the change.

"It's (the Pig Roast) been increasingly difficult to put on the last few years and we had several long time committee members retire this year. We will do something, just don't know what yet, or when it will be."

Hailey explained that committee, typically made up of 8-10 people, is envisioning an event that would take incorporate the most popular elements of the pig roast.

All of them, that is, except for the pig roast meal, which Hailey said is by far the most labor intensive portion of the annual event. She said it take an army of volunteers to prepare and serve the meal — which in recent years has fed from 500-700 people. Just roasting the pigs takes 24 hours, she noted.

"We want to discover the greatest part of our community and focus on that," Patti Howes, a committee volunteer said.

The committee has discussed locating the new event in the new community park and changing the date of the event to the first weekend in July. In the past the pig roast has

ALICE PERRAULT
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Petoskey News-Review and Gaylord Herald Times — sister publications of the Charlevoix Courier — have been named Newspapers of the Year in the Michigan Press Association's 2010 Better Newspaper Contest.

News-Review publisher Doug Caldwell said, "I am extremely pleased that our newspaper was recognized by our peers as the Newspaper of the Year. The Petoskey News-Review news team daily demonstrates their high level of journalistic commitment to our readers."

"The dedication of our newspaper staff to deliver the local news and how it touches everyone's lives is a testament of this award. As you go through the ups and downs as a daily newspaper in a disruptive age, there is a high level of satisfaction to know that the hard work, the late hours and the numerous phone calls to sources lead to an award winning product," he added.

"Editor Jeremy McBain, the Petoskey News-Review news team and all our staffers deserve these awards. They have put forth their best efforts to strive to make our newspaper an excellent quality local product. Their passion to produce the best local newspaper is apparent every single day. I salute my entire newspaper team for earning these awards," Caldwell said.

"The people of Emmet and Charlevoix counties deserve a high quality newspaper they can call their own and that is what we strive to provide. Being named Newspaper of the Year is a testament to the hard work of everyone within this organization," News-Review editor Jeremy McBain said.

"I am proud of my newsroom staff for the hard work they put in on a daily basis at the Petoskey News-Review and these awards are well deserved by them. Not many people know the work it takes to put out a daily newspaper. There is high stress and long hours, but every employee within this organization takes on that challenge each day and takes pride in putting out an excellent product for our readers and advertisers."

In addition to the overall Newspaper of the Year award, both newspapers received many individual awards in the Daily Class D division including:

Campaign finance: Let's keep it local

I am reliably wary of simple solutions to complicated questions. Nonetheless, I will propose one. It comes with the warning that simple does not necessarily mean easy to accomplish.

The financing of national political campaigns certainly qualifies as a complicated question. It is clearly more complicated and more problematic than it was in the last national election two years ago. Very large amounts of money will be available in the next few months for political ads. Many if not most of them will be of the negative sort. The proliferation of what are called 501(c)(3) non-profit groups after a recent Supreme Court decision allowing uncontrolled and often unidentified contributions for political advocacy has produced dozens of nationwide groups with large amounts of money to spend for political purposes. The groups most often have meaningless but fine sounding names such as "Americans for Job Security." How could anyone be opposed to supporting job security? "Americans for Prosperity" is another such nationwide group. "American Crossroads" still another. And of course there is the Tea Party Express.

All of these groups operate nationally, often targeting specific senate or House of Representatives members with whom they disagree, no matter where they are in the country. Such groups have already spent $3 million on Senate races in New York, Missouri and California. Overall, as of a couple of weeks ago, spending on political ads by such third party groups has exceeded $26 million.

The problem extends to the election of state supreme court justices in those states that do elect people to those positions. Colorado has a group named "Clear the Bench," which aims at removing justices who have offended conservative groups by their decisions. Iowa appoints court candidates who are elected in a supposedly non-partisan election. The Iowa court's decision about same-sex marriage has energized national groups to attempt to unseat those judges. Money to help defeat them is coming into Iowa from the American Family Association based in Mississippi and from other such well-financed groups. Proposition 8, about same sex marriage in California, was assisted at least in part by monetary support from Utah for negative ads. What business do the citizens of Utah have attempting to influence the voting of Californians for in-state propositions?

So, what is wrong with national advocacy groups contributing ads and information to specific candidates? Someone elected with the support of a nationally based group is less likely to represent their particular state or district, and more likely to represent the supporting group or the party it fronts for. We know that a group cannot buy a senator or representative with campaign contributions, but they can buy access to them with sufficient support. It is possible to project a time after a few more elections, financed in the way we do it now, when control of congressional access will be owned by a small wealthy group. Those are the real "Fearsome Elites."

What is the simple solution to these multiple problems?

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

I suggest local contributions for local elections. For someone running for the Senate from Michigan, all the money for their campaign and for supporting or advocacy ads must come from the state of Michigan. No national groups may assist with ads or funds. For someone running for the House of Representatives from Michigan's 1st District, all the money for ads and advocacy must come from the 1st District. In a truly national election, say for President and Vice President, all the money must come from the United States, something we already have written into law.

Such a plan would have to meet concerns about free speech, but it might be popular with those favoring increased states rights, and might even help with some of the redistricting problems following the 2010 census.

Would local support for local campaigns solve all the problems? No. The money available to the campaigns of wealthy people using their own resources would not be affected. But let's try to solve one problem at a time. Local contributions for local candidates. Think about it. How would you feel if the campaign for local mayor, for example, were to be lavishly supported by a property developer from Chicago who was planning a Giant Macy's store on the shore of Round Lake? Unlikely, you say? But we seem to be allowing just such a system of election support for our Congress. Local financial support for local elections.

always taken place on the third weekend in June.

"We've had East Jordan land their (Freedom Festival) on our weekend for the last five years or so and also this year Central Lake held a big event at the same time. Our area is just too small for such 'competition.' It hurts us all," Hailey said.

Those attending last week's meeting favored a celebration that exemplifies the community's small town spirit.

Events tentatively planned for the weekend will include a Breezeway cruise and citizen of the year presentation on Thursday. Friday would include the start of a softball tournament and archery demonstration on and the day would be capped off with a community bonfire. Events under consideration for Saturday include activities such as the 5K Fun Run, grand parade, kids games, midway of rides, food vendors, horse pull, quilt/pie raffle, pie eating contest, softball tournament conclusion and the fireworks. On Sunday, organizers are planning to continue the community church service and perhaps add a community picnic.

The next meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 18, at the Banks Town hall. Committee welcomes anyone who is interested in the festival to attend.

Have you 'herd' about the Elks? CHARLEVOIX ELKS LODGE NAMED FASTEST-GROWING SMALL CLUB IN THE COUNTRY

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The "herd" at the Charlevoix Elks Lodge has been growing quickly. So quickly, in fact, that officials at the young club learned earlier this year that it had received the distinction of the fastest growing lodge with fewer than 300 members for 2009-2010.

The club, formed in three years ago, currently has about 235 members and is growing regularly.

But the club's membership isn't the only thing that's growing. After just three years the total amount the club has donated to various charities and non-profit organizations through its many fundraising efforts has exceeded $10,000.

Several weeks ago, for instance, the club donated $340 to the City of Charlevoix's recreation department to help pay for scholarships to its annual daycamp, Camp McSaub.

Just a few of the organizations the club has helped in its short existence include Camp McSaub, area food pantries, Northwest Academy, special needs children's charities, several veterans groups, hospice, scholarships and others.

The lodge also hosts many events, many of them to benefit charities or groups. For example, the club recently hosted its second annual poker run and motorcycle show.

The proceeds from that event will benefit veterans groups.

The Charlevoix Elks Lodge 2856 is a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. On its website, the national organization describes itself as, "A fraternal order with nearly a million members and a 141-year history, a network of more than 2000 lodges in communities all over the country, a generous charitable foundation that each year gives millions in scholarships, an inspiration to youth, a friend to veterans and more."

The lodge is located at 104 Mason St. in the Beacon Center. For more information about the club or becoming a member, contact a club member or call and leave a message the club at (231) 237-0200. More information about the national organization is also available at www.elks.org.

Produce for the pantry

Last week the second grade class from Charlevoix Elementary School made a special delivery of fresh produce to the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry, located at the First Congregational Church. Much of the produce they delivered came from the class' garden planted in the spring. Teachers said throughout the project, students not only learned about the plants' life cycle, but also learned about the importance of giving back to the community. Pictured above, Emily Bellinger (front left) and Paige Henry carry baskets of fruit and vegetables for the food pantry. The girls are followed by Tanner Langley (back left), Cameron Arnold and the rest of their class as they complete the walk from their school to the church where the pantry is located, at the corner of Park and State streets.

Should You Take "Early Retirement"?

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

At some time or another, you've probably thought about what you'd like to do during your retirement years. But when will those years begin? You may have some idea in mind about your ideal retirement date, but, as that day approaches, you'll need to ask yourself: "Can I afford to retire?" During these days of corporate downsizing, this question is not rhetorical. If your employer offered you a severance package to take a voluntary early retirement, should you accept it? Your answer depends on a variety of factors. Most important of all, of course, is whether you still enjoy your job and still like coming to work every day. If so, you'll be inclined to turn down the offer and continue working. But if you're eager to move on to the next phase of your life, you might be tempted to accept the buyout package — if you can afford to retire. To make that determination, you'll need to consider several factors:

- Your family situation — If you have children, are they out of college? Whether they are or not, are you still helping support them? How about elderly parents? Do you need to provide them with financial support? You'll need to know the answers to these questions to help evaluate your need to continue working.

- Your eligibility for Social Security — You can start collecting Social Security as early as 62, but if you wait until your "full" retirement age, which will probably be around 66, your monthly payments will be larger. And if you delay taking payments until you're 70, you can collect the maximum payments. If you continue working, but also start taking Social Security, your benefits will be reduced, up until you reach full retirement age. After that point, you can earn as much as you want without losing any benefits.
- Your potential income stream from retirement accounts — You don't have to start taking withdrawals ("distributions") from your traditional IRA and your 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement plan until you're 70-1/2. But if you want to take early retirement, you'll likely have to tap into these resources much sooner, so you'll need to calculate some hypothetical withdrawal rates to make sure your money will last.

- Your investment mix — Outside your IRA and 401(k), you may well have built an investment portfolio over the years. As you contemplate early retirement, you'll need to look at this portfolio to see if it's structured, or could be structured, to provide you with both the income stream you'll need as a retiree and the growth potential to keep your investment returns ahead of inflation, so that you don't lose purchasing power over time.

As you consider drawing on your retirement accounts and your investments to help fund an early retirement, you may want to consult with a professional financial advisor — someone with the expertise and experience to help make sure you've got an income stream that's big enough to support your lifestyle, but not so big that you'd eventually outlive your money.

Once you've considered all these factors, and gotten the help you need, you'll be able to make an informed choice as to whether you should accept that early buyout offer — and then your future awaits you.

Upgrades saving energy, money at county building

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF
WRITER

The Charlevoix County Building has a new energy-efficient heating and climate control system that will save energy and tax-payer money for years to come.

The new system, which was installed over the summer, consists of two high-efficiency boilers, a new computerized heating, ventilating and air conditioning system and other state-of-the-art components that will lead to energy savings in fuel and electricity.

"In 2009 the commissioners realized the stuff we had was outdated and inefficient. They wanted to save money for the tax payers so they asked to have the system evaluated for efficiency," said Frank Shaler, maintenance director for the Charlevoix County Building.

Nealis Engineering from Traverse City, who specialize in mechanical, electrical and plumbing engineering for commercial buildings, did the evaluation and discovered many things that needed to be changed to bring the building's systems up to date.

The building, which was constructed in three segments in 1910, 1956 and 1996 has had multiple climate control upgrades to the different parts through the years and most of the systems were working independently of each other and were wasting large amounts of energy.

"With the old system we were heating water to 180 degrees in each of the five boilers in the buildings and it was very inefficient way to heat. It was a waste," Shaler said.

When the county commissioners received the evaluation results from Nealis Engineering they requested a grant from the state's Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant Program and received $128,707 for the upgrades.

Then over the summer the old system was removed and was replaced with two condensing boilers, variable air volume controls and a computerized heating, ventilating and air conditioning system. The new system is expected to reduce annual carbon dioxide by 75.4 metric tons and save 7,330 hundred cubic feet of natural gas, equating to approximately a 33 percent savings in natural gas usage.

The county is already seeing savings from the system. In August of 2009 there was 488.00 hundred cubic feet of natural gas used in the building. In August of 2010 there was only 142.00 hundred cubic feet used. Weather plays a role in the statistics, but when the system has been up and running for a while the county will have a better idea of how much energy the system will save.

"I'm really excited to see what the numbers will be in January, February and March. Seeing those savings will really be the test," Shaler said.

The new system is completely computerized and Shaler can check it and make modifications from a computer nearly anywhere in the world. "All I have to do is get on the Internet and log into the system. I can check temperatures and the amount of air flow in all the rooms," Shaler said.

Even though Shaler has the ability to make changes to the climate control of the building at the touch of a button, the computer does most of the work on its own. Sensors in each of the three court rooms tell the system if anyone is in the room. If no one is there the air flow is automatically closed down to about 30 percent so very little energy is wasted.

Besides the new state-of-the-art heating and cooling system, the county also had motion sensors installed in all the offices so the lights will turn off when no one is in the rooms, saving even more energy.

"With all the updates to the building we are going to see a lot of savings in energy," Shaler said.

per based on his research into the crash, said he organized the rededication ceremony three months early because of the weather, but as the roughly three dozen people gathered at the memorial site Saturday, they faced a cold northerly wind coming in off the lake.

Speaking Saturday, Wiles said, based on his research into the crash and the subsequent investigation, he believes the aircraft simply broke apart when the airframe, weakened by the stress from years of low-level training missions simply gave way.

Saturday's ceremony included an introduction by Wiles, an invocation and message from the Rev. David Behling, music by Eric Grandstaff an honor guard and three-volley salute and Taps by Charlevoix area veterans and comments by Rousseau's family members.

Daughter Jennifer said, "Rick did in a short period of time, what I've been wanting to do my whole life. I was 5 when my dad was killed ... and my dream since then has always been for my family to be here together and its taken us 40 years to be here, but this is the right time."

She also expressed gratitude to Wiles for his efforts in his research and putting the memorial together.

Jennifer then read a poem written by the family's paper boy shortly after the crash.

She also talked about how a rainbow that appeared over the memorial site the day before made her feel closer to her father.

"I just truly feel like my dad knows we're here, the crew members know we're here, this is an important moment," Jennifer said.

Daughter Mary Jo said, "My father lived life to the fullest and died loving what he was doing. He illuminated a passion and zest for life to all that knew him."

Wiles said he is also working with the Michigan Department of Transportation on ways to "spruce up" the memorial site.

Rayders win a thriller

LAST-SECOND GOAL GIVES NETS SOCCER VICTORY OVER ELK RAPIDS

ELK RAPIDS — Wyatt Drost scored with seven seconds remaining in the game Tuesday, Sept. 28, lifting the Charlevoix High School boys' soccer team to a dramatic 3-2 victory over Elk Rapids in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

The win lifted the Rayders to 9-5 overall, 5-1 league, and it avenged a 2-1 loss to the Elks on Sept. 2. The Rayders are the defending league champions and were coming off a Saturday victory over Suttons Bay, which is ranked 10th in the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association Division IV state poll.

"It's a huge win for us," said Jon Boss, who took over as the Rayders' head coach after Josh Block stepped down last week. "We've had to overcome a little bit of adversity. We beat Suttons Bay on Saturday and to come back and follow that game up with this game against Elk Rapids -- the guys just played awesome."

Ben Myers made the assist on Drost's game-winning goal. Myers dribbled along the end line and sent a hard cross to Drost, who buried it low past the Elk Rapids goalkeeper.

The Rayders trailed 2-0 at halftime, then got a goal from Boog Nitchman early in the second half. He was assisted by Thomas Rich.

"We told the guys at half-time if we score in the first 10 minutes (of the second half) we're going to win the game," Boss said.

Rich got the equalizer midway through the second half on a Myers assist.

It was the first league loss of the season for the Elks, 13-2-2 overall, 7-1 league. Mac Wolfram and Zach Petoskey scored the Elks' goals.

On Monday, Boog Nitchman scored all four goals Monday as Charlevoix improved to 6-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference as they defeated Boyne City 4-1.

Ben Myers had two assists for the Rayders. Matt Batdorf notched the victory in goal.

The Rayders are 10-5 overall. They are in a virtual tie for first place in the league with Elk Rapids, which also has just one league loss.

The Rayders play at Kalkaska in a league match on Thursday, Oct. 7, then visit Petoskey for a non-leaguer on Saturday, Oct. 9. The Rayders then close the regular season with conference matches at Harbor Springs on Tuesday, Oct. 12, and at home against Grayling on Thursday, Oct. 14.

Rayders take sixth, seventh place

CARSON CITY — Junior Andrew Plude finished a team-best 16th in 17 minutes, 19.1 seconds as the Charlevoix High School boys' cross country team placed sixth in the Gold Division Saturday at the Carson City Crystal Invitational.

Calvin Christian won the Gold Division boys' race with 38 points, while Lansing Catholic was second, 62. Charlevoix finished with 169.

Hanover Horton finished first in the girls' Gold Division with 55 points. Charlevoix was seventh with a 170.

Josh Kersjes of Calvin Christian won the boys' race in 16:21.1, while Megan Heeder of Lansing Catholic won the girls' race in 18:18.7.

Also for the Charlevoix boys, Eric Buday was 23rd, followed by Jackson Buday, 39th; Alex Gooch, 45th; Vinnic Vonlau, 46th; Chris Young, 55th; and Tony Fulk, 62nd.

56th.

Molly Jeakle paced the Charlevoix girls as she finished 21st in 20:28.9. Also for the Rayder girls, Olivia Certa was 31st, Hilary Way, 33rd; Annie Dipert, 35th; Lexi Barnes, 50th; Anna Voci, 61st; and Caroline Boss, 62nd.

Rayder varsity downs EJ in 1st conference win

CHARLEVOIX - Quarterback Andrew Potter scored the game-winning touchdown midway through the third quarter as Charlevoix held off East Jordan, 13-7, Friday in a Lake Michigan Conference football game.

Potter scored on a 1-yard keeper to break a 7-7 tie as the Rayders picked up their first league win of the season, improving to 2-4 overall, 1-3 league.

"We were able to grind it out and get a win," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said, "I was happy with the way our offensive line played and defensively, we played really strong as well."

"Give East Jordan credit. They continue to get better as the year goes on," he said.

Charlevoix took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter as Potter tossed a 19-yard TD pass to Dylan Putman, Jordan Jones added the extra point.

East Jordan, 0-6, 0-4, tied it minutes later as Chris Yettaw picked off a Potter pass and raced 19 yards for a TD.

For the Rayders, Jake McLean had 19 carries for 102 yards, while John Boss added 80 yards rushing on 19 carries.

Gunnar Zipp had nine tackles to lead Charlevoix's defense and was a key member on the offensive line along with Chris Keie. River Gauthier recovered a fumble.

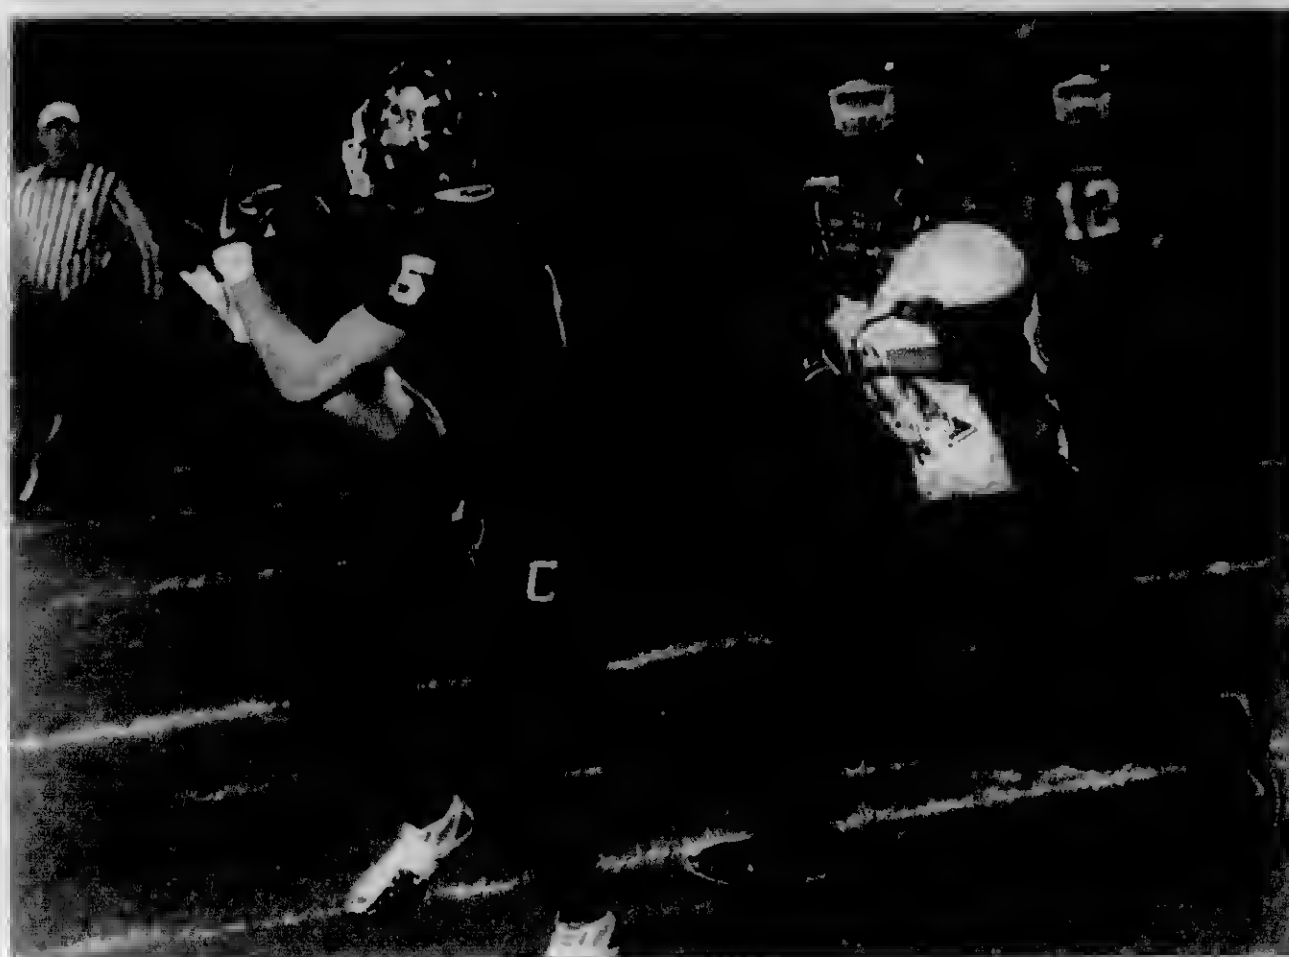

For the Red Devils, Rob Crick had 17 tackles from his free safety position, while Akeem Brogan, John Richards and Wes Petrie had 12 tackles apiece.

"Our kids played hard and I'm proud of them," East Jordan coach Allen Peterson said. "They're playing better every week and that's all you can ask. Our defense held us in there and gave us a chance, we just couldn't get our offense going."

This week the Rayders play host to conference rival Boyne City for their homecoming game. The Ramblers 3-3 overall and 2-2 league are coming off a hard-fought 20-12 loss to Traverse City St. Francis last week.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m. at Kipke Field.

32nd Annual Charlevoix Apple Fest 2010 October 8, 9 & 10

It's apple time

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF
WRITER

The Charlevoix Apple Festival began in 1979 as a way to honor local orchards and apple growers.

Today, the annual festival has grown to include not only everything apple, but also offers a craft show, entertainment and plenty of fun for the entire family.

This year's festival runs Friday, Oct. 8 through Sunday, Oct. 10.

"I think the festival is so popular because it really is a no frills festival," said Erin Bemis, the executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. "It really is the homecoming event of the year because many college kids come home this weekend to hang out with friends and family."

The festival always takes place the second weekend of October.

Dozens of area apple farmers will be on hand with more than 30 varieties of apples, as well as fresh apple-cider, pies and caramel apples. Pumpkins, squash, and local honey will also be available.

"It's been great to see the farmers really get creative over the last couple years with the types of things they have to offer," Bemis said.

"I'm really looking forward to seeing what their creativity will bring out this year."

For Friske Orchards in Atwood, this is their 25th year at the festival.

"It's really amazing to look at pictures from the beginning and pictures now to see how much it has grown," said Heidi Friske. "It's one of those annual events that I think many people in the community really look forward to because it's just a great time of the year."

In addition to vendors, there are also children's activities such as pony rides, face painting and a petting farm.

Local restaurants also get in the spirit, many offer dishes featuring apples.

"It's kind of the last big hurrah before winter sets in," Bemis said. "Just come out and enjoy it. There is always something new and exciting to see."

The 32nd Charlevoix Apple Festival runs 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 8 and Saturday, Oct. 9, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 10 in downtown Charlevoix.

Donation stations planned for United Way Small Business Blitz

Donors to Char-Em United Way's Small Business Blitz on Wednesday, Oct. 6, will be rewarded with a free cup of coffee.

Roast and Toast in Petoskey and Sadie and Jakes in Charlevoix will serve as "donation stations" for the Blitz. Small businesses or individuals dropping off a donation to United Way of $10 or more will receive a free cup of coffee.

in a "LIVE UNITED" mug (while supplies of the mugs last).

"We are happy to partner with United Way on this special event," says Mary Keedy, owner of Roast and Toast. "There is such a huge need for health and human services in our community right now, and United Way is helping to meet that need."

The Small Business Blitz

is an effort to engage support from small businesses in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties for the United Way Campaign.

"We will have a volunteer on site at both locations from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., providing information about community needs and the programs that United Way supports," Martha Lancaster, executive director of United Way, said.

In addition, the LITE 96.3 FM van will be at Sadie and Jakes from 10 a.m.-noon and at Roast and Toast from 12:30 p.m.-2:30 p.m. Donors will have a chance to meet LITE 96.3 staff, as well as volunteers from United Way. All pledges of $25 or more will be read on the radio throughout the day. In addition, all businesses donating during the Blitz will be entered in a drawing to win prizes including ads in the Petoskey News-Review and passes to Avalanche Bay.

On Oct. 6, volunteers from United Way - many of them representatives of United Way's 26 partner agencies - will be visiting and calling on small businesses, both in and out of the downtown areas of Petoskey, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Boyne City throughout the Blitz.

The volunteers will provide information about United Way and ask for a pledge or donation. "We hope the Small Business Blitz will give small businesses the opportunity to learn more about how they can help United Way meet community needs," Lancaster said. "We hope the giveaways, free publicity and the excitement of the radio announcements will encourage businesses to donate. But the most important reason to donate is the increased need in the community for health and human services."

Char-Em United Way has set a goal of $350,000 this year, and the Fry Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge grant if the goal is reached. With economic conditions in Northern Michigan continuing to be serious, the need for the services supported by United Way is greater than ever, Lancaster said. The campaign is currently at 20 percent of its goal.

Information about community needs and programs supported by United Way is available at www.char-emu.org.

Donations can be made from that secure website.

Volunteers are also being recruited to help with the Small Business Blitz. For additional information or to make a donation over the phone, call (231) 487-1006 or contact the organization via e-mail at info@charcunitedway.org.

NPR correspondent to speak at college

National Public Radio's FBI correspondent, Dina Temple-Raston, will speak at North Central Michigan College at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 21. Her presentation is part of the college's Lecture Series and is offered to the community free of charge.

The program will take place in the Student Center cafeteria on the Petoskey campus. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m. Temple-Raston's presentation, "Current challenges for the FBI," will address recent controversies including national security letters and the anthrax investigations of several years ago. Her talk will address current developments and concerns about civil liberties in relation to the FBI and its investigations.

Temple-Raston has been NPR's FBI correspondent since 2007. Previously, she served as a correspondent for Bloomberg News in Asia and was Bloomberg's White House correspondent during the Clinton administration. She has written several award-winning books on race in America, the Rwandan genocide, civil liberties and national security.

For more information, call North Central's director of student activities at (231) 439-6349 or visit the school's website, www.ncmich.edu.

Enrollment, stimulus funds buoy school budget

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A higher-than-expected student count and an influx of federal stimulus money may significantly reduce, or eliminate the red ink on the Charlevoix Public School District's books come June.

In a budget update to the school board at its regular monthly meeting Monday, district superintendent Chet Janik said when the district's "fourth Friday" count took place on Sept. 29, enrollment numbers came in at 1,074 students. That's 24 more students than school officials used in calculating the budget that the board passed in June for the 2010-11 school year.

When the budget for this year was passed in June, it called for the district to spend about $351,000 of the $561,000 it has in savings.

Janik said in July school officials learned that the state had reinstated $11 per student in state aid funding and on Sept. 29 the legislature passed a measure that will use federal stimulus money to restore $154 per student in state aid, if Gov. Jennifer Granholm signs the bill.

The combination of the restoration of state aid and higher-than-expected enrollment and a savings of $35,000 through contracting to fill the business director's position would have left the anticipated year-end bottom line in the black by about $20,000.

However, the district also recently learned that the rate it must pay toward retirement starting Nov. 1 will be 20.66 percent. That's up $197,000 from what it paid last year and up $45,000 from the figure used in the budget. Janik said school officials also recently learned that three teachers will be retiring at the end of the school year which means the district will likely be paying out around $80,000 in compensation for unused sick time.

When all the math is done, Janik said his revised projection calls for the district to be about $105,000 in the red at the end of the school year. He added that in recent years, when the final audit has come in, the budget picture has often improved by as much as $150,000.

"If that happens, we could be on the verge of breaking even," Janik said. "But we need to be very careful with expenses."

At the end of the last school

— By a 5-2 vote, the board approved hiring Russ Nichols as a full-time custodian, but through education contracting services provider PCMI instead of as a direct employee of the district. By filling the custodial vacancy through PCMI, the district will save about $30,000 per year in salary and benefits. Janik said he'd like to hire Nichols, who started working as a fill-in custodian last year as direct employee with benefits, but "we simply don't have the resources to do it." Board members Kevin Pearsall and Kevin Pearsall cast the "no" votes but clarified that their votes were against the contract arrangement with PCMI, not against hiring Nichols.

"There were wide holes all day from our linemen and full backs. It was our best blocking game of the season."

On defense, Carlson pointed to Luke Buday with an interception, Matye and Caleb Kenwabikse with fumble recoveries and Brad Klinger with an interception and sure tackling all day.

The Pirates face another undefeated team in Traverse City, William Cheverole at 10 a.m. on Saturday in Mancelona.

The Charlevoix Bucs suffered a tough 20-19 loss to Kalkaska.

Down 20-6 at halftime, the Bucs rallied 13-0 second half rally but fell just short.

For the Bucs, Cam Alden had a touchdown and Matt Goode added two more to round out their scoring.

Goode and Dylan Starr were chosen as defensive standouts for their hard play all day.

The Pirates will face Traverse City Motors at 11:30 a.m. in Mancelona Saturday.

— By a 5-2 vote, the board approved hiring Russ Nichols as a full-time custodian, but through education contracting services provider PCMI instead of as a direct employee of the district. By filling the custodial vacancy through PCMI, the district will save about $30,000 per year in salary and benefits. Janik said he'd like to hire Nichols, who started working as a fill-in custodian last year as direct employee with benefits, but "we simply don't have the resources to do it." Board members Kevin Pearsall and Kevin Pearsall cast the "no" votes but clarified that their votes were against the contract arrangement with PCMI, not against hiring Nichols.

Charlevoix faces the Grand Traverse Titans at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 16 at Kalkaska.

The Pirates took a narrow 6-0 lead into half time, but after the break, the they scored 32 unanswered points.

Christian Matye scored the first touchdown while Brad Klinger had four. One of Klinger's scores came when he returned an interception for a touchdown. Matye and Klinger also combined to be 4 for 5 on the extra point kicks.

Holding the Petoskey Badgers scoreless took a total team effort, coach Boogie Carlson noted. He praised his linemen on both sides of the ball.

Falling into my favorite season

After a few whirlwind trips I am nicely settling into the beauty of fall which is by far my favorite time of year. I'm off to a good start with a healthy case of "walking pneumonia," except in my case, I'll call it running pneumonia because my walk is more of a sprint. When you are out of your element and traveling about, something good usually comes from it besides getting sick. There are scenery changes, a break in routine and new restaurants to visit. Most importantly you realize there are special people everywhere and as you visit the globe you are likely to find faces that are familiar with interests the same as yours no matter what state or country you're in.

Funny how I'd see an individual and think they were someone from home but only looked like them. Genetically, we all have to be pretty closely related to each other because there are some genes that just really stand out and hang on. I am hopeful this is a good thing. To feel the comforts of home, I would see in my mind's eye who people reminded me of. It was great for me but I'm certain the individuals in my path thought I was a bit odd as I'd begin each conversation with, "You know you remind me of..." After listening to a few life stories, my appreciation returned for how my own story has turned out.

A LOOK AT LIFE

But let's turn back again to the topic of fall; a colorful and eventful season and I'm busy spending time with the best organizations that get me out and about. Exceptional Riders is in full progress and the kids and horses are up to the challenges of working on mastering their skills. If you enjoy an aerobic activity that places you with kids and horses, call me as we need more volunteers. Another successful Charlevoix's Apple Festival this past weekend and it's always fun working at the Kiwanis Club booth providing tourists and residents with the finest kielbasa. This club sponsors our Charlevoix Middle School Builders Club and we are off to a great start with many eager students wanting to help others. Char-Em United Way hasn't paused in its aim of exceeding their goal. This organization gave me the chance to meet business owners in town to encourage their participation. Again the retailers this year were generous and I thank them for allowing this chatty Kathy to take up part of their busy day.

The multi-colored leaves and bountiful harvests of pumpkins has provided one and all with a sight to behold, whether you are on a country drive or stopping by for a warm cup of mulled cider. Looking skyward during an evening walk brings a carpet of stars and the constellations peeking out have been easy to identify with the cloudless skies.

Fall is short-lived in this neck of the woods. In a blink of an eye lawn furniture can turn into ice sculptures. Preparations are underway such as bringing in sun loving plants off the deck and dragging out the good old snow tires. I made the vanity change of coloring my hair color from blonde to brown. Not to look younger but so I could be found in a Charlevoix snow storm. Yes, I am prepared.

This season quickly turns to holidays that follow each other at such a pace that, while walking down a store aisle, I wonder if it's by natural design or by an over-achieving sales representative. But I am ready — rake in one hand, shovel in the other and the ladder nearby to hang the latest sparkly, blinking object of art. It really is a season to behold and I wouldn't change a thing. It's "good-bye" to a very warm summer and the welcoming of sweatshirts, Carharts and good things to come.

MEDUSA FISH WEIR COULD BE A TOURISM DRAW

Editor:

Charlevoix is fortunate to have many tourist attractions which act to draw visitors and their money to this wonderful town we live in. One that we may be overlooking is our fall salmon run at the Medusa weir near the (St. Mary's) cement plant. This is a unique natural wonder — although in our case created with the help of our own Charlevoix Fishery Research station. I brought some visiting relatives to the site a few days ago. Even my mother-in-law was thrilled and amazed as we watched a three-foot long salmon enter the creek and charge upstream. There are not many places you can see such fascinating large fish as they leave the depths of Lake Michigan to return instinctively to their birthplace, or in our case, release point, thrashing upstream through a shallow creek. But what we have now — fenced off areas, "No Trespassing" signs, "No Camping" signs, ugly sandbags used to channel to creek flow, monitors who reside in a shack, too busy to come out and tell a story or two about the fantastic life of the "king" of the salmon species — is a waste of a unique opportunity to provide a quality experience for our visitors as well as residents. Now imagine a landscaped area with a more appealing gravel and rock creek bank; pens that allow an up close look at the many dozens of fish; interpretive signs describing the secret life of salmon; cross bridges over the creek to enhance observation; picnic tables where one can rest and enjoy the lake view; monitors that are knowledgeable and on duty to talk to visitors and provide information. I don't mean to be critical of the (fisheries office) or its employees. I know they are managing this resource to the best of their ability on a shoe string budget and do offer group tours. But perhaps we can develop the Medusa weir into an attractive visitor friendly park and highlight this unique observation point of our home grown Charlevoix chinook.

THANKS TO THE COMMUNITY

Editor:

The Fall Fiesta of Giving Auction at The Charlevoix Community Reformed Church on Sept. 25 truly was all about giving. The merchants of Charlevoix donated generously beyond our highest hopes. All of the people who planned, gathered donations, and set up the auction gave selflessly of their time and talents, putting in countless hours of work. The folks who showed up to support the auction came to enjoy the evening, eat wonderful food, but most of all came to say, "we care about our neighbors who are in need." Thank you to all of you wonderful people. A special word of thanks to Mike and Claudia Bost for stepping in to coordinate a fun, animated, professional, and productive live auction. Our heart to assist families in need was matched by the generosity of all of those who contributed to the success of the auction. Helping families with gas cards, school clothes, food cards and other needs is one way we hope to live out neighbor helping neighbor, especially in these tough economic times. The spirit of giving permeated the entire evening. Thank you one and all.

County Commissioner Roloff running as write-in for November

DAVID HOPKINS
(231) 439-9346
DHOPKINS@PETOSKEYNEWS.COM

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County District 6 commissioner, Republican Shirley Roloff, who lost the election in August to Republican Richard Gillespie, plans to run as a write-in candidate in the November election.

On Aug. 3 when the primary election results were tallied Gillespie came out on top 575 to 445 votes and it appeared Roloff would lose her seat on the board after 14 years in the office, but she wasn't satisfied with that.

"I'm not ready to quit. I've got too many things going on for the county right now," Roloff said.

According to the Charlevoix County Clerk's office, all Roloff has to do to declare herself as a write-in candidate for the November election is sign an affidavit stating her intent to run. Her name will not appear on the ballot and anyone wishing to vote for her will need to write in her name.

Her decision to run came after receiving pressure from people living in her district.

Gillespie

"I got a lot of encouragement from voters after the August election. They kept asking me to think about running as a write-in. I gave it a lot of thought and then decided to do it," Roloff said.

Gillespie feels Roloff's decision to run as a write-in isn't about taking care of the people of Charlevoix and is more about her personal goals.

"Why after the voters have spoken so loudly is she doing this? Is it for the voters or for herself? I don't think it's right, but it's her right as an American," Gillespie said.

Gillespie and Roloff have a history of battling for the District 6 county commissioner seat. Gillespie held the position from 1992 to 1996 before he was defeated by Roloff and has been trying to get back on the board since.

After the November election the candidates will have to accept the decision of the people and the winner will take the seat on the board in January of 2011.

Dead birds herald return of avian botulism

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW

After two years of relative quiet, avian botulism has again resurfaced in Northern Michigan.

Results from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment tests confirm that botulism E is killing migratory waterfowl and as a result, the birds are washing up on area beaches.

Just last week, eight dead birds were found on Fisherman's Island State Park in Charlevoix County.

The number of birds at this point is still low compared to a 2007 outbreak that killed an estimated 8,000 birds in northern Lake Michigan.

However, Kevin Cronk, monitoring and research coordinator at Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, warns that we are just hitting the peak of avian botulism season and there may be a dramatic increase in bird mortality in the next several weeks.

"Although we're starting to get reports of dead birds, so far there have been relatively few," Cronk said. "I'm hopeful that the botulism E outbreak will be less severe than what we feared"

32nd Annual Charlevoix Apple Fest 2010

The weather couldn't have been better for the 32nd annual Charlevoix Apple Festival, which took place in downtown Charlevoix over the weekend. Fall colors at or near peak, sunny skies and temperatures in the mid-60s to low 70s brought fans of fall out en masse, filling the East Park and Bridge Street with cars and pedestrians.

Homecoming festivities

Students and staff enjoyed a week full of homecoming activities last week including spirit days at school, the return of the powder puff football game on Wednesday after a long absence, and culminating with a pep assembly parade and the homecoming game on Friday and the homecoming dance on Saturday. Although Mother Nature cooperated providing perfect weather for the activities, the rival Boyne City Ramblers did not, handing the Rayder football team a 47-13 defeat. Below are just a small sampling of the weeks events.

JV record improves to 6-1 with victory over Ramblers

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix Rayder Junior Varsity Football Team improved its record to 6-1 with a 38-22 victory over Boyne City at Earl Brotherston Field Thursday.

The Rayders jumped out to an early lead and took a 24-8 lead into half-time.

Charlie Hamilton opened the scoring, taking a pass from Tanner Catt 59 yards for the TD. Shane Sutherland punched in the conversion for the early 8-0 lead. The Rayders' next score came on a 40-yard run by Jamael Kelly with Hamilton running in the conversion. Catt then hit Hamilton for the next two touchdowns. The first went .50 yards and the second 28 yards. Chandler Novotny ran for the first conversion and Sutherland ran for the second. Novotny closed the scoring in the fourth quarter with a 33 yard TD run. Overall Kelly finished the game with 151 yards on 18 carries the team finished with 297 rushing yards. Catt was 10-18 for 214 yards with three TD passes. Charlevoix totaled 511 yards of offense but stalled several times in the red zone.

Andrew Robarge led the Rayders on defense with 10 tackles, he also recovered a fumble. Other contributors on defense were, Kelly with nine tackles and a sack. Catt with seven tackles. Tommy Zipp seven tackles and Sutherland with six tackles and a sack.

Novotny recovered a fumble and had a key fourth quarter interception.

"We moved the ball on offense but penalties killed a few drives," Head coach Doug Waha said. "But I need to credit the Boyne defense for making some stops on us. They had a goal line stand at the end of the first half leaving us a foot short of a TD."

Waha added, "Our offensive line did a great job along with our backs and receivers springing our longs runs."

This week the JV will host Elk Rapids. The Elks, who are 6-1 suffered their only loss in the first week of the season against Mancelona. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m. at Kipke Field.

Rayders roll past Kalkaska, blanked by Petoskey

Petoskey's Nick Manzer scored two goals Saturday as Petoskey defeated Charlevoix, 6-0, in a non-league high school boys' soccer match at the Click Road Soccer Complex.

The Northmen, 9-5-2, beat the Rayders earlier in the season by a 4-3 margin.

"We were very efficient on offense," Petoskey Zach Jonker said. "All of the goals we scored were great finishes and that is a great sign going forward into our big week."

"The only other point-blank chances we had, their keeper made an outstanding reaction save on it."

Petoskey's Branden Coats earned the shutout in goal and he made an outstanding save on a Boog Nitchman volley early in the game to keep it scoreless.

"We also did a great job of not allowing (Charlevoix star) Ben Myers to have time and space on the ball," Jonker said. "Their attack runs through him, and Manzer, John Bowers and Louie Lambert worked collectively to slow him down."

In other action last week, the Rayders defeated Kalkaska Thursday 7-1.

Matt Klooster and Boog Nitchman teamed up on two early goals. Klooster scored first, about a minute into the game on an assist from Nitchman. Four minutes later Nitchman scored on an assist from Klooster.

Ben Myers led the Rayders with three goals.

"A good team win for us," Rayder coach John Boss said. "They all played well together. The big thing is, and we've done it the last few games, is we came out and scored early. That was pretty big for us."

Thomas Rich added a goal and an assist for the Rayders. Wyatt Drost also scored and Justin Pearl picked up an assist.

Matt Batdorff notched the win in goal.

Charlevoix is now 11-6. The team was slated to play Harbor Springs on Tuesday and Grayling Thursday. Thursday's game, which is at home, starts at 5 p.m.

St. Francis hands volleyball team first conference loss

TRAVERSE CITY — Traverse City St. Francis played turnabout Tuesday, Oct. 5 in handing Charlevoix its first Lake Michigan Conference volleyball loss of the season.

The Gladiators, who fell to the Rayders in their first meeting a month ago, notched a 24-26, 27-25, 25-22, 25-23 victory to move into a first-place tie with the Rayders in the league. Both teams are 8-1 in the conference following the match.

"They just played a better game than we did," Charlevoix coach Liz Grunch said. "They hit harder. They shut down our middle with blocking and won it at the net. They just played an all-around great game."

Jenna Way led the Rayders with 10 kills, 12 digs and 26 assists, while Allison Hankins and Katie Mays added nine kills apiece. Mays finished with six blocks, while Hankins added four.

Also for the Rayders, 30-8-1 overall, Kelly Greyerbiehl finished with 34 digs, Chelsie Hoffman added 13 digs, and Kelsey Way finished a perfect 18-for-18 serving.

St. Francis won the JV match, 25-20, 23-25, 25-18.

Baillee Stevens had eight kills and served at 100 percent to lead the Rayders, while Karley Pearsall added five kills. Charlevoix is 17-4-1, 8-1 league.

On Saturday, the Rayders won their pool in the Suttons Bay Invitational before being eliminated by Houghton.

In pool play, the Rayders split with Kingsley, 12-21, 27-17; beat Hancock, 21-8, 21-15; and topped Frankfort, 21-12, 21-14. Hancock is ranked third in Class C.

In Gold Pool play, the Rayders split with St. Francis, 21-17, 16-21; beat Suttons Bay, 21-13, 21-14; and lost to Houghton, 10-21, 17-21.

Allison Hankins led the Rayders with 29 kills and 15 blocks, while Jenna Way finished with 71 assists, 18 kills, 13 aces and four blocks.

Also for the Rayders, Katie Mays had 23 kills, Anna Way added 20 kills, seven blocks; Kelly Greyerbiehl had 54 digs; Kelsey Way finished with 30 digs; and Chelsie Hoffman had 19 digs.

The Rayders are now 33-9-3. They are slated to host Boyne City on Tuesday and Elk Rapids on Thursday. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Ramblers rain on Rayders' homecoming

Boyne City's Kolbi Shumaker scored four touchdowns Friday as the Ramblers rolled to a decisive 47-13 victory over the Rayders on their homecoming at Kipke Field.

Boyne City scored on its first four possessions to take a commanding 28-0 lead. Their advantage was 41-0 at halftime.

With the loss, Charlevoix falls to 1-4 in the Lake Michigan Conference and 2-5 overall.

Shumaker, a senior half-back, scored on runs of 3, 3 and 23 yards, and caught a 25-yard TD pass from quarterback Jay Redman as the Ramblers improved to 4-3 overall, 3-2 league.

"We were just the better football team," Boyne City coach Don Nohel said. "Our kids were very sharp and played extremely well in the first quarter. They came out and took care of business right away."

For Charlevoix, Jake McLean finished with 123 yards on 14 carries and scored on runs of 66 and 5 yards.

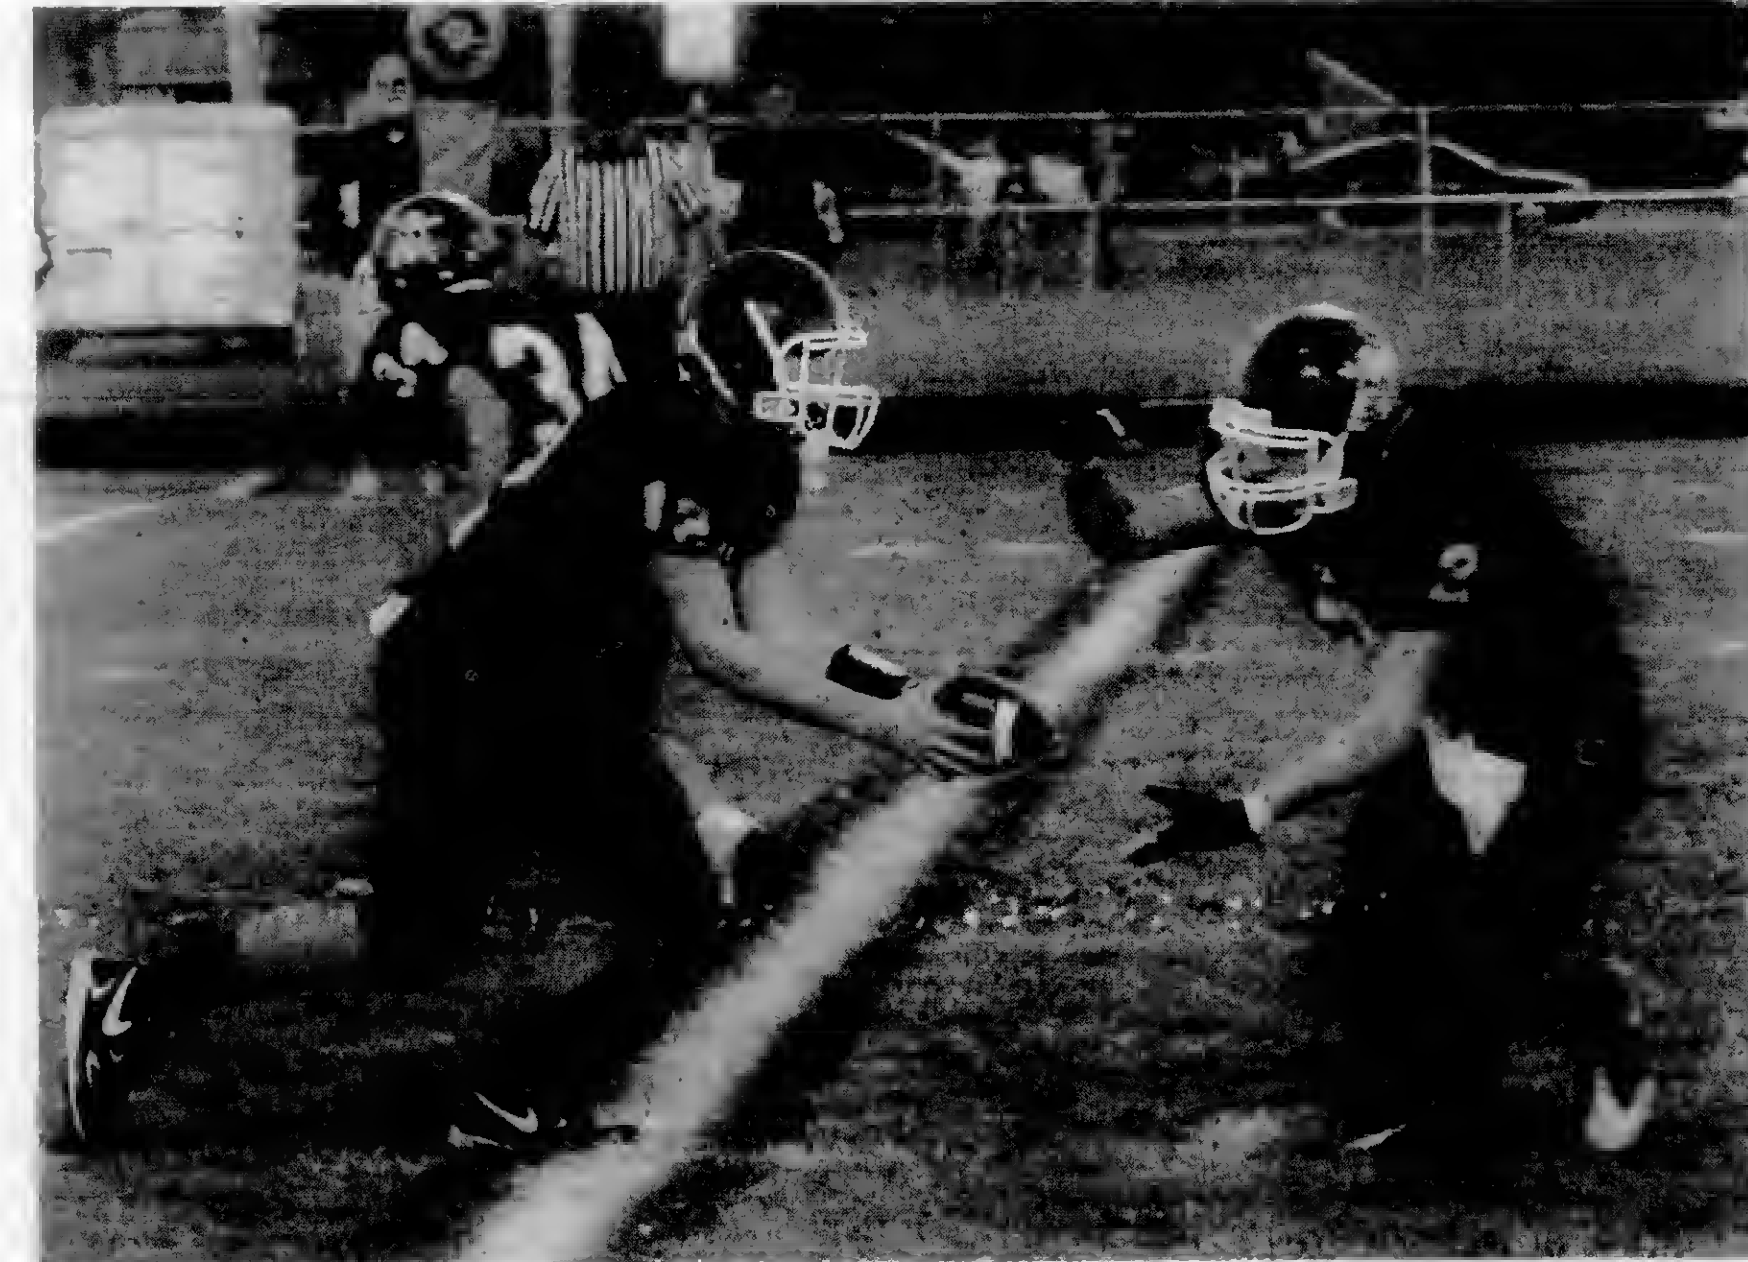

Gunnar Zipp and McLean had nine tackles apiece to lead Charlevoix's defense, while Andrew Potter and River Gauthier had seven tackles, and Josh Hogan added a sack.

"I was happy with the way we came out and played in the second half," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said. "We didn't give up."

The Ramblers play host to East Jordan on Friday, Oct. 15, then go to Elk Rapids for their regular-season finale on Friday, Oct. 22. They need to win both to clinch their 10th straight playoff berth.

Charlevoix goes to Elk Rapids on Friday, Oct. 15, then closes its season at home against Kalkaska on Friday, Oct. 22. Kickoff for both games is at 7 p.m.

WELL-KNOWN CHARLEVOIX ARTIST JIM ANNIS, DIES AT 87

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Jim Annis sits next to a painting in progress in this photo taken in his home in 2007. Annis, a well-known local artist, died Sunday at the age of 87.

By all accounts, if Jim Annis tried something, it didn't take long before he excelled at it.

Annis, a woodworker-turned-artist whose paintings won wide acclaim over the past 30 years, died Sunday at Forrest Hills Adult Foster Care in Ellsworth at the age of 87.

While not a native of Charlevoix, Annis has deep roots here. His grandparents Charles and Josephine Krulik settled in the area around 1900. Annis was born in Detroit in 1923 and grew up in Chicago. He served with the U.S. Navy during World War II in the Solomon Islands where he repaired landing craft and PT boats. In 1948 he married his wife Lorriane, and after visiting for many summers, they moved to Charlevoix in 1959. Shortly thereafter, Annis picked up a paintbrush for the first time and taught himself how to paint.

Nostalgia was at the heart of much of Annis' work. He soon became well known for his scenes of steam-powered locomotives, trolleys, vintage cars, old major league ballparks and theaters. Many of his works focused on sights in Chicago, but others included historic scenes of Charlevoix, such as the depot building, Round Lake harbor and the lighthouse. He also was well known for his painting of fish and waterfowl.

Annis won numerous awards for his paintings. His work has been featured on the covers of many publications. Nearly all of his paintings reached limited or open edition print stage. His work can be found in the permanent collection of the Chicago Historical Society, the National Historical Archives at Bowling Green University and many galleries, businesses and homes around the world. Many of his prints also are on display at Charlevoix Area Hospital and the Charlevoix Public Library. In fact, the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library presented an exhibit of his work "An Artist and His Art" at the library in 2003.

Charlevoix's Don Heise met Annis when he (Heise) was 12 while fishing in Charlevoix.

"Jim had three great passions in life, fishing, golf and painting and he was very good at all of them," Heise said. "He was good at everything."

Heise said many of Annis' passions flowed together.

World Trade Center steel coming to Charlevoix

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A solemn chunk of recent U.S. history will soon be on display near Charlevoix's city hall thanks to an offer by St. Mary's Cemetery to obtain a section of World Trade Center steel on behalf of the city.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved a measure to take St. Mary's up on its offer to bring a section of the now hallowed steel to the city.

In a memo to the city council, city fire chief Paul Ivan explained that he was recently contacted by Sharon Regan-Brown with St. Mary's Cemetery indicating that officials with the New York Port Authority are now accepting applications from municipalities and other non-profit organizations who would like to have an artifact of material saved from the World Trade Center site following the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

In her e-mail, Regan-Brown indicated that, as a public service, St. Mary's is offering to arrange logistics and transportation for these artifacts to any fire department in Charlevoix County that is interested at no cost to the respective departments.

Charlevoix was the first department St. Mary's has approached with the offer, Ivan said.

Ivan said the piece of steel would likely be about half the size of a standard office desk.

The proposal he presented to the city council called for the steel to be placed on State Street. The display will be simple with a cement base and a plaque indicating what the item is. He said the display would be similar to one that is already in place on Beaver Island.

Ivan said the cost to the city would be minimal.

He is unsure of how long it will take for the steel to arrive in Charlevoix.

In other business:

— The city council unanimously approved a request by the Holiday Station Stores, located at 1408 Bridge St. to install a permanent 12 by 8-foot walk-in cooler outside the south side of the building. The proposal was unanimously approved by the planning commission at its Oct. 11 meeting.

— The council unanimously approved an agreement with the Charlevoix County Road Commission which stipulates that proceeds from the voter-approved county-wide one-mill road improvement millage will be divided up among the road commission, the three cities and the village of Boyne Falls according to each municipality's taxable value. Previously, in the absence of such an agreement, state law required the money to be distributed using a complex formula under which a slightly higher portion of the money was going to the road commission.

The agreement is retroactive to the first millage collection in late 2009, which will mean about an additional $20,000 will be coming to Charlevoix for road improvements.

— The council unanimously approved a bid for $77,675 to Municipal Underwriters of Michigan to provide the city's liability and property insurance for the next year. City treasurer Rick Brandt said this year marks the first year since 1985 that the city has used an insurer other than the Michigan Municipal League for this insurance, but noted that the change will save the city $46,000 from what it paid for the same insurance last year and about $24,000 from what the Michigan Municipal League's bid was this year for comparable insurance.

— The council unanimously approved a bid from Cheboygan-based Rehman Robson to provide the city with auditing services for the next five years at a combined cost of $114,650. City treasurer Brandt said he recommended Rehman Robson even though they were $23,000 above the low bid because the city has had a long-term "excellent" working relationship with the auditing firm, the firm's recommendations have saved the city money over the years and there would be no need to "train" auditors with a new firm.

Ean Greer (Squirrel) (left) and Patrick McGeehan (Cruella) take advantage of the nice fall weather by rehearsing for the battle scene of "Narnia: The Musical" which will be performed the first weekend in November.

Youth theater to present 'Narnia: The Musical'

Preparations are well under way for Northern Michigan Youth Theatre's upcoming production of "Narnia: The Musical."

Nearly 40 area youth have been singing songs, memorizing lines, and making new friends through the fall season to prepare for the troupe's second show this year. The first show was "The Music Man Jr.," which was performed by 40 middle school, high school, and college students this past summer.

This year's production is directed by Stephanie Hull, with Karen Mazzoline at her side as the music director. Although this is Hull's "directorial debut," she has spent many hours teaching, assisting directing, backstage managing, and helping out ever since the youth theater group opened its doors nearly three years ago.

"Northern Michigan Youth Theatre is theater education for everyone involved; including adults," said Mazzoline, executive director for the organization. "Our goal is to build knowledge and experience for everyone involved, and it is a pleasure to hand over the 'directing baton' to someone who has put so many hours into this organization, and truly has a heart for children and theater."

"Narnia: The Musical" is in conjunction with the annual

C.S. Lewis Festival, which runs through the month of November. It is a musical retelling of Lewis' beloved classic, "The Lion, The Witch, and the Wardrobe" from The Chronicles of Narnia. "Narnia: The Musical" will be performed at 7 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 5 and Saturday, Nov. 6 and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 7 at the Harbor Light Community Chapel near Harbor Springs. Tickets are $5 for students and seniors, $7 for adults, and $25 for the entire immediate family. Ticket reservations can be made by calling the group's box office (231) 838-6320 or by e-mail to nmyouth@yahoo.com. Tickets will also be made available at the door.

er. He said Annis became an avid golfer and remained a "scratch" player up until just the past few years. He said Annis made own clubs for himself and others and said his expertise in painting fish likely grew out of his expertise in landing them.

Heise described Annis as very personable with a good sense of humor.

"He was a guy that within about five minutes, you knew him and he knew you. He could tell a story like nobody's business," Heise said.

Charlevoix resident Anne Kelly first met Annis as a neighbor in the 1970s. Kelly, who works as a free-lance writer, not only became close friends with Annis, she became a bit of a biographer for him, writing many stories for various publications about him over the years.

"I knew Jim on many different levels," Kelly said. "His attention to detail in his painting was absolutely amazing."

"Annis' paintings demonstrate his ability to capture a moment in time and immortalize it in minute detail," Kelly wrote in a 2007 story.

In the same piece, Kelly quoted Annis as saying, "If I've achieved anything, it's between (my head) and my hands. I marched through life and it was there for me. I grabbed everything I could."

"I'm just an ordinary guy," Annis told Kelly for the same story. "I've met many famous people. I've traveled to some interesting places. I've been lucky enough to have my work sold all over the country. But an artist is only as popular as other people make him."

Annis' funeral will take place at 11 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 21 at Winchester Funeral home. See page 9 for the complete obituary.

Toxic substances

The government of Canada has declared that Bisphenol A, commonly designated as BPA, is a toxic substance. That does not mean that contact with it or even ingesting it will kill you immediately. There is some chance that it might subtly disrupt your metabolism in ways that may not be obvious for years. The Canadian government, not commonly known as ultra-liberal or irresponsible, has decided that BPA constitutes enough of a hazard to people and the environment that they can call it toxic.

It is difficult not to be reminded of the furor over the widespread use of DDT in the 1950's. The makers of DDT were so convinced of its safety that speakers in favor of widespread DDT use would commonly drink a shot glass of it to demonstrate to audiences that it was perfectly safe. We now know that it was not. By the time DDT was banned from widespread use, it could be found in the bodies of everyone in the United States, as well as in the birds and animals that are the living part of the environment.

BPA is used in the manufacture and formulation of a large number of clear plastics, and it is part of the epoxies used to line the inside of canned food containers. Factories make large quantities of it for these uses, and there is little control over how much gets into the environment. Several states have banned its use in containers used for children's food and drink. It is unlikely that something we seem to recognize as potentially harmful to children would have no effect on adults.

We don't really know how harmful BPA might be to adults, but we do know that it can be found in the bodies of adults, youths and children. The official position of the U.S. government is that there is no proof of harm to humans. Potential harm to other animals in the environment, who have a lot in common with humans seems not to have been taken into account.

Science, however diligent, cannot provide absolute proof of much of anything. The best that science offers is some degree of probability. Canada thinks that the probability of harm to humans and the environment (other animals) is sufficiently high to declare BPA toxic. Other governments have concluded that there is not yet sufficient information to decide about any potential harm.

The chemical companies that make and use BPA are mostly adamant about its safety, or at least the lack of proof about any harm it might cause. Are you in any way reminded of how the tobacco companies defended tobacco by saying there was not sufficient proof that it caused harm?

How much proof or evidence of harm is required before we recognize toxicity is a question for regulatory boards and legislators. However, such groups could be a little more cautious than they are about new and unique chemicals never before found in nature.

Right now we are all part of a gigantic long-term experiment concerning just how harmful BPA might be, and whether profit should be the only motivating factor in the control of the food supply and the containers it comes in.

Science, however diligent, cannot provide absolute proof

County, state spar over LIEN charges

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney's office is fighting the state over a $767 bill for the use of a computer system they don't possess and tax payers are getting caught in the crossfire.

The State of Michigan has been charging the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office for a Law Enforcement Information Network (known to many as LEIN) terminal. When the county decided to not pay the bill the state started garnishing money from other areas of the county to retrieve the money.

The terminal is a computer system which allows law enforcement personnel to look up the criminal backgrounds of individuals. There are two such terminals in the county, but both are at the sheriff's department and they are billed separately for the machines.

"It's all principle on my end. How can they say I owe them money for something I have no authority over. I don't have one in my office and I don't want one in my office," said John Jarema, Charlevoix County prosecuting attorney.

There used to be a board in place to regulate the use and abuse of Law Enforcement Information Network terminals in the state, but in 2007 the governor terminated the board. Since then the Michigan State Police have taken over control of the system and all other organizations, including the county, have to pay for the use of it.

The prosecutor's office didn't pay the fee for 2009 because they were protesting the charge. The state then placed the bill in collection at the Michigan Department of Treasury and started taking money from other county offices.

"Because all the county offices are under the same tax ID number they can take money from any area they choose and we are caught in the middle," said Charlene Novotny, from the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds office.

On Aug. 24, the state was supposed to pay the register of deeds office $40 to cover the cost of taking liens off four houses for unpaid state taxes. After the owners paid off their late taxes, along with a $10 fee which is supposed to cover the cost of taking the liens off the house, the state refused to send the money. They sent only a letter to the county explaining that it was keeping the money to pay for the Law Enforcement Information Network terminal for 2009.

At the last county board of commissioners meeting the commissioners discussed the payment of the $767 bill for 2010.

"If we pay they are just going to keep doing things like this because they know we are going to cave," said Chris Christensen, Charlevoix County commissioner.

The board agreed that the state was unfairly charging the prosecutor's office for the network terminal, but agreed to pay the bill so taxpayers don't suffer. Even though they gave in to the state on the issue, they aren't done with the situation.

"We will pay the bill now so the taxpayers aren't paying for it then we can sue them for taxation without representation," Jarema said.

The county hasn't decided if it will sue the state in this matter or not, but are looking into its options.

moderate smokers.

"We've had no complaints at all and for us, it's going just great," Rochon said. "We're definitely seeing additional customers that wouldn't have come in before (the law). It seems to be going just fine."

Reg Smith, general manager of Stafford's Perry Hotel, which houses the Noggins Room Pub, said business was up this summer.

"There are so many variables, but we had the busiest summer in the Noggins Room which would have been the hardest hit by the ban," Smith explained. "I know there are plenty of factors that influenced the busy season, but the smoking ban certainly did not hurt our business."

Smith added that his employees have had to be more vigilant in making sure patrons leave their drink inside while they head outside to smoke.

"The law is certainly workable and hasn't been a big obstacle. I'm happy to have the non smoking atmosphere," Smith said.

Van Dam said most of the feedback she has received from restaurant and bar managers about the law has been positive.

"Smoke free environments are not only healthier, they save businesses money through reduced insurance and cleaning costs," Van Dam explained.

John Herbert, a bartender at Mitchell Street Pub quit smoking on May 1 when the law went into effect.

"I've had a couple cigarettes since, but I've put $1,000 in the bank since May when I quit," Herbert said. "It's definitely a healthier working environment for all of us."

A report issued by Michigan Department of Community Health, said local health departments across the state received 583 complaints about patrons smoking in restaurants and bars since May 1.

Of those 583 complaints, 158 citations were issued to either individuals or restaurant and bar owners.

Violators of the law are subject to penalties of $100 for the first offense and $500 for subsequent offenses.

"It is pretty remarkable that the local health departments issued only 158 citations considering the number of food service establishments that are in the state," said Janet Olszewski, director of the Michigan Department of Community Health. "The survey demonstrates that the law is truly working and people are compliant. This is good news for Michigan's restaurant and bar employees and patrons."

Senate candidates differ on Michigan business tax, bipartisanship

BRANDON HUBBARD
(231) 439-9374
BHUBBARD@PETOSKEYNEWS.COM

CHARLEVOIX — In one of their first meetings during the general election, the candidates to succeed state Sen. Jason Allen in the 37th Senate district outlined their key differences during a candidate forum in Charlevoix.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Mackinac Island Democrat Bob Carr and Traverse City Republican Howard Walker laid out several stances on the issues. Most telling during the forum was the two men's stance on the Michigan Business Tax and how they would work toward bipartisanship if elected to the state legislature.

On the Michigan Business Tax, Carr began the discussion with a slight jab at his opponent, who served in the legislature at the time of the Michigan Business Tax's creation.

"I do hear some of the candidates say they voted against that bill, and my response is 'so?'" Carr, an historic preservationist, said. "So, what did you do the next day? Because if it was really so bad, why didn't you start passing legislation the next day to replace it. The bill is only so good until it has been replaced."

Carr, a veteran candidate in Northern Michigan politics, said, "every two years it's the same subject, different names."

He said when he won a primary for the 1st Congressional District — as a Republican — taxes were "terrible." Carr said people should stop complaining about it and replace it "if it is so terrible," although he did not commit himself to replacing the tax or a specific measure of replacement.

During his time, Walker said, "most people are realizing the Michigan Business Tax is a bad thing."

"It replaced the Single Business Tax — which was a bad tax — and is even worse," Walker said. "It exchanged one group of winners for another group of winners, and one group of losers for another group of losers."

Walker said the tax plan was too complicated and needs replacing.

Outlining a criteria for replacing the tax, Walker said he would be looking for a tax structure asking a series of questions.

"Is it more simple; is it more fair; is it more predictable for businesses?" Walker said. "It's one of the key things we need to do to make Michigan businesses more attractive for job creators."

Walker acknowledged Carr's reference and said "yes" he did vote against it and now thinks its repeal is "intricate to bringing jobs to Michigan."

Both candidates also differed on how they would go about "reaching across the aisle" for bipartisanship in Lansing.

Walker said most of the partisanship known to the public about Michigan politics is the result of philosophical differences on the budget.

"Do we raise taxes or cut programs at the state level," Walker said. "These are huge philosophical questions that tie to many issues throughout the state."

Walker said he thinks people are going to "continue to see the philosophical divide," but shouldn't be afraid to "talk issues through."

He added that he is not going to Lansing to raise taxes, but that there are other issues such as school funding where he will and has worked in a bipartisan manner.

Carr reiterated his slogan: "It's not all about the parties, it's about communities."

"Patience, persistence and persuasion," Carr said are the keys to working together. "It's a workable formula."

Carr proposed touring other Senators' districts and going "home with them" to "find out what they are doing."

"Once you do that, you are no longer just a colleague who works in the Senate Monday to Thursday, but a part of their community. You become part of their fabric and they become part of yours."

Both men are scheduled for their first debate at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19, at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The event is sponsored by the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, North Central Michigan College, the Petoskey News-Review, WMKT, the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association, the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders and the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

Saying 'bye-bye' to Buzz

WOMAN HAS CLOSE BOND TO BUFFALO SHE NURSED FROM PREMATURE BIRTH

MELISSA FRUGÉ
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

To say Lois Golovich has a soft spot for animals may be a bit of an understatement.

Lois's husband, Craig, operates Golovich Farms on Maple Grove Road near Charlevoix along with his brother, where they raise pigs, cows, horses and have a herd of 13 buffalo.

This spring Lois, 47, found herself bottle-feeding buffalo number 14 after he was born a bit prematurely. Right after Buzz was born Craig, 51, knew something wasn't quite right.

"He couldn't stand on his own, normally they're up and walking within a few hours of being born," Craig said.

Because Buzz couldn't stand on his own, he couldn't nurse; if he couldn't feed he wouldn't survive.

"I never thought he'd live; he couldn't even stand," said Craig.

Craig decided it would be best to take Buzz that first day and feed him with a bottle. The Golovichs used a 20 ounce pop bottle to feed Buzz in the beginning.

Craig took Buzz back to his mother and said she immediately took a protective position over her baby. But, the next morning Buzz was lying in the same spot and still couldn't stand without help. That's when Lois decided she needed to step in.

"When he was really little he used to rest his head on my hip when I fed him," Lois said. "I think what he really wanted was to crawl into my lap, but I envisioned a 500 pound buffalo crushing me and thought it might be a bad idea to teach him bad habits."

Lois has been taking care of needy animals most of her life. She grew up on her parents' farm in Brutus and says her dad would get them goats and sheep to play with and raise when they were younger. Then one spring complications arose after a colt was born. Lois bottle-raised the baby horse and 16 years later still has him.

A few years ago there was a piglet that was accidentally injured by its mother. Instead of leading him on a leash, "I'm lucky because he hasn't figured out he's bigger than me," Lois chuckled.

Buzz follows Lois everywhere. Craig smiles as he remembers how Buzz would walk between Lois's legs, like a cat, until he got too tall and would tip her over.

But Craig says Buzz easily weighs 300 pounds now and is getting to be a bit of a handful. "He can kick his hind legs in the hink of an eye," said Lois.

The Golovichs were also worried about what would happen to Buzz if they put him back into the pen with the other buffalo.

"We had one that was about 6 months older than Buzz, and also a little sickly," explained Lois. "When we put him in the pen with the others they started pushing him around; it's what they do to establish dominance. But once they actually flattened him and I couldn't let that happen to Buzz."

Since Buzz is getting too big to continue his life as a house pet and the Golovichs can't release him back into the herd, Lois put out an ad last week advertising a baby buffalo that letting it die Lois took him to work with her for three months in a cat carrier. She had the photo album of her animals like some people have of their children.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

A Good Week to Think About Retirement Savings

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

You may not see it posted on your calendar, but this is National Save for Retirement Week. This annual event, endorsed by Congress, is designed to raise awareness about the importance of saving for retirement — so why not take some time this week to review your own strategy for achieving the retirement lifestyle you've envisioned? Of course, you may wonder why we even need a National Save for Retirement Week. Unfortunately, it seems many Americans are not doing a good job of saving and planning for their retirement years. Consider these figures, taken from the Employee Benefit Research Institute's 2010 Retirement Confidence Survey:

- Just 16 percent of survey respondents say they are very confident about having enough money for a comfortable retirement.
- 54 percent of respondents say that the total value of their household's savings and investments, excluding the value of their primary home and any defined benefit plans (i.e., traditional pension plans) is less than $25,000.
- Less than half of the respondents say they and/or their spouse have tried to calculate how much money they will need for a comfortable retirement.

These are obviously troubling statistics — and they indicate that most of us probably need to put more thought and effort into our retirement savings. What can you do? Here are a few suggestions:

- Determine how much you'll need in retirement. Try to define the lifestyle you want during retirement. Will you travel the world or stay close to home? Will you work part time or spend your hours volunteering or pursuing hobbies? Once you know what your retirement might look like, try to estimate how much it might cost.
- Identify your sources of retirement income. Take into account your IRA, 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan, Social Security and other savings and investments. How much income will they provide? How much can you withdraw from these vehicles each year without depleting them?

• Calculate any retirement shortfall. Try to determine if your savings and investments will be enough to provide you with an income stream that's adequate to meet your retirement needs. If it isn't, develop an estimate of the size of the shortfall.

• Take steps to close savings "gap." If it doesn't look like you'll have enough to meet your retirement needs, you'll have to adjust your savings and investment strategy. You may have to contribute more to your IRA, 401(k) and other retirement accounts, or you may have to adjusting your investment mix to provide more potential growth — or you may need to take both of these steps.

• Monitor your progress. Once you've put your investment strategy into place, you'll need to monitor your progress to make sure you're on track toward achieving your retirement savings goals. Along the way, you may have to make adjustments in response to changes in the markets, your objectives or your family situation.

Taking these types of action can be challenging, so you may want to work with a professional financial advisor who has the experiences and resources necessary to help you identify and pursue your retirement goals. In any case, though, take action soon — and National Save for Retirement Week is a great time to start.

OBITUARIES

Sharon Sugden: Aug. 18, 1947 - Oct. 11, 2010

Sharon Sugden crossed over to the peaceful, glorious side on Oct. 11, 2010. She was born in Charlevoix, on Aug. 18, 1947, to Marvin and Leona Sugden who preceded her in death. They instilled in her a strong work ethic, financial responsibility and a sense of independence which assisted her throughout her life. She is survived by an older sister, Barbara Sugden, of Arlington Heights, Ill. Barbara's ambitions and achievements gave Sharon high standards to work toward and achieve in her personal and professional life. Barbara has been a good big sister and Sharon loves her for it.

On Dec. 3, 1982, Sharon had the privilege and honor to marry John Patterson, the best husband and life partner that she could ever have imagined. More than she felt she deserved but she was grateful for all the love, acceptance and strength he gave her. He enhanced her life through every day of their partnership and allowed her to become her best possible self. Her loving husband survives her.

Sharon taught special education for 25 years in Illinois and Tennessee. She also worked in real estate, floral design and as a small business owner. Sharon had many students, co-workers and friends throughout her life who touched her heart. She hopes she gave them a fraction of what they gave her.

Sharon will be eternally grateful to Joann who gave birth to Jimmy on July 14, 1987. On Oct. 18, 2000, Sharon was given the opportunity and challenge of becoming Jim's foster mother. Having Jim in her life gave Sharon the satisfaction of living a significant, and worthwhile life. Sharon cherished every hug she was given, every smile she saw and every giggle she heard. The love she was able to give Jim and receive from him was a wonderful gift.

Sharon loved animals and had numerous pets throughout her life. Most of them appeared on her doorstep or were found wandering injured and homeless along a street.

Sharon wanted to stay and continue in all these roles but she was willing to let go because the time was apparently right. She had completed all that was necessary and she was ready to begin her new journey and lessons on the other side.

No funeral or memorial services will be held. Memorials may be made to The Michael Dunn Center, 629 Gallaher Road, Kingston, T.N. 37764, The Sertoma Center, 1400 E. 5th Ave., Knoxville, T.N. 37917, or to your local chapter of the Humane Society.

Clara Elizabeth Ager: May 26, 1925 - Oct. 14, 2010

Clara Elizabeth Ager, 85, of Charlevoix, went to her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, on Oct. 14, 2010. Rite of Christian Burial took place at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 16, at Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix, with the Rev. Jerry Hunko officiating. Visitation took place at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix from 6-8 p.m., Friday, Oct. 15, where the Rosary was recited at 8 p.m.

Clara was born May 26, 1925, in Bay Shore to Jacob and Margaret (Shatz) Speigl.

In 1947, Clara married Frederick G. Ager in Charlevoix. Together, they, along with their family, owned and operated the Argonne Supper Club in Charlevoix. Ted died on May 27, 1987, and Clara continued to run the restaurant until she retired.

United Way has raised quarter of fundraising goal

Char-Em United Way recently announced that it has passed the 25 percent mark toward its 2010-11 campaign goal of $350,000.

"We are down a bit from this time last year and that is a concern," says Martha Lancaster United Way executive director. "Our community continues to struggle after three years of economic downturn in our community, so we have increased our goal 8 percent in order to meet the increased need. However, it is still very early in the campaign and we are hopeful that donations will pick up. We know that everyone is affected by the economic situation, and we are grateful that so many people and businesses have been so generous to United Way and the community."

"The Frey Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge grant if we reach the goal, which is a great incentive," Lancaster added. "We're recently sent out letters to many prospective donors as well as request for renewal support, and are hoping for a good response to this mailing."

The United Way campaign raises funds to meet the needs of residents of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Earlier this year, Char-Em United Way distributed over $210,000 to fund effective health and human service programs addressing recognized community needs. The programs funded reached more than 30,000 local residents in the past year. In addition to investing community donations in the local agencies which do the front line work, United Way is involved in many other initiatives such as Volunteer Connections, 2-1-1, Project Connect, Friends Enhancing Emmet Transit, and more. Funds raised this fall will be invested in community programs in the coming year.

Much of the funds raised by United Way come from workplace campaigns. Early employee and corporate support for the United Way campaign has come from Char-Em Intermediate School District, Alanson Public Schools, and Boyne City Schools. Campaigns are currently under way in many other local workplaces.

"Additional gifts have come from many generous individual and small business donors," says Lancaster. "Our Small Business Blitz was very successful and recruited 76 new small business donors for the campaign."

The organization has also gained many new donors to its Leadership Circle of individual and business donors who contribute $500 or more each year.

Char-Em United Way is continuing to accept tax-deductible contributions to the 2010-2011 campaign. Donations can be mailed to P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770. Gifts can be made online by going to www.charemunitiedway.org and selecting "Give." For more information about United Way call (231) 487-1006 or email info@charemunitiedway.org.

JV hands Elk Rapids its first conference loss of the season

The Charlevoix Rayder JV Football team continued its stellar season Thursday soundly defeating Elk Rapids, 42-8. The loss was the Elk's first of the season in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The JV squad's record now stands at 7-1.

Shane Sutherland led the Rayders on offense with 21 carries for 131 yards and Two TDs.

Jamael Kelly opened the scoring for the Rayders on an 8-yard carry and Charlie Hamilton ran in the conversion for an early 8-0 lead.

Sutherland scored the next two TDs on runs of 5 and 3 yards with Kelly running in the conversion on the second TD, making the score 22-0.

Tanner Catt ran the next TD in from 2 yards, he then threw to Tommy Zipp for the conversion making the score 30-0. The next score came on a defensive play when Taylor Seese stripped the ball from the Elk Rapids quarterback and ran 45 yards for the TD. Hamilton completed the scoring on a 4-yard run.

"The offensive line was outstanding again this week, along with the backs and receivers, blowing huge holes in the Elks defense," head JV coach Dough Waha said.

On the defensive side Andrew Robarge lead the team with 12 tackles, one sack and a fumble recovery. Zipp had six tackles and a fumble recovery. Overall the Rayders recovered five fumbles and a kickoff that the Elks failed to pick up. Jared Reibel and Parker LaVanway were among the players who recovered fumbles and Chandler Novonty recovered the kickoff on what Waha called,

"a total 'hustle play.'"

"We knew that this was a huge game for us with the knowledge that Elk Rapids had beat Traverse City St. Francis earlier in the year."

St. Francis handed the Rayder JV team its only loss so far this season on Sept. 23.

"The team put together a complete game tonight. The coaching staff is extremely proud of these young men and the way they competed."

The JV will close out their season this week at Kalkaska. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m.

SOCCKER

Soccer team earns a share of conference championship

More than two weeks ago, Charlevoix kept itself alive in the Lake Michigan Conference boys' soccer race with an oh-so-dramatic victory over Elk Rapids.

On Thursday, the Rayders finished the deal.

Thomas Rich had a pair of goals and Wyatt Drost had a goal and an assist as Charlevoix downed Grayling, 5-1, Thursday to finish 9-1 in the league and earn a cochampionship with the Elks. The Rayders won the title outright last year.

"We moved the ball well tonight," said Charlevoix coach John Boss, whose team is 12-6 overall. "We were missing three guys (Ben Myers, Matt Klooster, Ryan Wimmer), but we still played well and moved the ball well. Our defense switched the ball nicely and we showed big improvement from where we were earlier."

Also for Charlevoix, Boog Nitchman and Justin Erskine had a goal apiece, while Wade Werth, Joe Filipiak and Will Larsen had assists.

Matt Batdorff was the winning goaltender.

The Rayders move into district competition in MHSAA Division 3 tournament Thursday. They will play the winner of the Boyne City-Grayling game on Tuesday.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER
William Larsen (17) dribbles the ball past a defender as he brings the ball down the field during first half of the Rayder's victory over Grayling Thursday.

Rematch could await Rayders in Districts

Charlevoix and Elk Rapids settled nothing in the regular season.

The split their two regular-season meetings and shared the Lake Michigan Conference crown.

The rubber match could very well come later this week in a Division III district championship match at Elk Rapids.

Charlevoix, 12-6, will look to defend its district title beginning first with a match against either Grayling or Boyne City on Thursday, Oct. 21.

The Vikings and Ramblers get the tournament started on Tuesday, Oct. 19, in the first game of a doubleheader. Traverse City Christian and Kalkaska meet in the second game of that twinbill.

The T.C. Christian-Kalkaska winner will then face Elk Rapids, 16-4-2, on Thursday in a semifinal.

The final is scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 23.

"It's very important for us to maintain our composure, no matter who we meet," said Charlevoix coach John Boss, who took over when veteran coach Josh Block resigned midway through the season. "Hopefully, we'll move onto the district final again and into the regional."

"If we play the way we know how, we can move the ball well. We just have to maintain our composure and play our game."

The Rayders are a veteran bunch with 13 seniors on the roster. All-Stater Ben Myers, one of Northern Michigan's most prolific scorers, headlines a cast that includes the likes of Thomas Rich, Boog Nitchman, Joe Filipiak, Wyatt Drost, Wade Werth, Will Larsen and Matt Klooster.

"We're just very excited for it," Boss said. "It's what we've been working hard for all season. The guys are all in shape and we're ready."

The Elks, long the dominant team in the district before being unseated by the Rayders last year, defeated Charlevoix, 2-1, on Sept. 2. The Rayders won the next meeting, 3-2, on Sept. 29, scoring the game-winner with just 7 seconds remaining.

X-COUNTRY

Rayder girls take first place at invitational

WEST BRANCH — The Charlevoix girls' cross country team placed four runners in the top 10 as the Rayders placed first Saturday West Branch Ogemaw Heights Invitational.

Charlevoix's Molly Jeakle, Oliva Certa, Annie Dipert and Hilary Way placed in the top 10 as the Rayders finished first with 31 points. Alpena was second with 50, followed by Ogemaw Heights, 61; and Roscommon, 85.

Alpena won the boys' race with 34 points, followed by Mount Pleasant, 53; and Charlevoix, 78.

Runner on 1,000 mile mission

GEORGE MORSE BRINGS ONE-MAN SMALL BUSINESS PEP RALLY TO CHARLEVOIX, EAST JORDAN

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

George Morse is running on a campaign of bringing economic prosperity back to Michigan.

But unlike the many politicians who will be on the ballot in the upcoming Nov. 2 General Election, Morse isn't seeking to be elected to an office.

Instead, the 45-year-old Oscoda resident is on a mission to run 1,000 miles while visiting small businesses in 200 Michigan cities with a simple pep talk.

Morse, who runs five Subway restaurants, a personal development coaching business and the occasional triathlon, was about 215 miles into his journey when he spoke with the Courier while visiting Charlevoix Friday. Later in the day he visited East Jordan.

Morse said when he visits a town, he plots out a five mile round-trip course that will take him past several of the community's small businesses. Then as he's running, when the mood strikes, he stops in, extends a hand, an introduction and an explanation of his mission.

"About half the people get it right away and the others are waiting for me to tell them what I'm selling," Morse said.

Morse said he came up with the idea for his state-wide pep rally when he got tired of hearing all the negative things about Michigan — especially in the media.

His message to business owners is straightforward. "We need to focus on our own performance, on our own skill building and staying positive in tough economic times; on working together to solve our problems to save ourselves, because no one is coming to save us."

"The whole purpose of this run is to demonstrate how one person can take initiative to save themselves," Morse said. "Everybody needs to work together. Stop blaming and waiting for someone to come and do it. We can do it and we can do it ourselves. We can bring Michigan's economy in line with something equal to Michigan's beauty."

Although Morse isn't asking for donations or a vote, he is asking people to take some action.

First, he's asking people to go to their favorite small business and tell the owners why they like the business and how much they appreciate them. He's also asking people to choose one community a month where they have never been before to go visit that place.

"After 200 miles, I'm blown away over and over again at place in my own state that I've never been," Morse said.

On his first stop in Charlevoix Friday, Morse was warmly received at Hearts to Holly Quilts and Gifts on Mason Street. After listening to Morse make his pitch to the ladies at the Friday morning Chatter Time quilting session, shop owners Mike and Sue Miller thanked Morse for his efforts with hearty handshakes as he departed.

Morse plans to end his 1,000 mile journey on the Capitol steps in Lansing on Michigan Celebrates Small Business Day, April 20, 2011.

In the meantime, Morse is posting videos of some of the places he visits on his website thousandmilesformichigan.com.

Beaver Island campaign

Following the weekly K-12 flag ceremony, students and staff at the Beaver Island Community School gather for a photograph as part of Beaver Island's Yellow Ribbon Campaign. The yellow ribbon campaign is for the safe return of local soldiers and for all service men and women everywhere. The photograph will join those of many other Islanders in an online album for viewing by Island service members. The school's National Honor Society will be running a campaign to provide care packages to soldiers in Afghanistan.

Three vie for two-year school board seat

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Three Charlevoix residents are seeking election for one partial-term seat on the Charlevoix Board of Education in the Tuesday, Nov. 2, election.

The seat is currently occupied by Larry Leavengood, who was appointed to the seat in July of 2009 when Judith Ivan stepped down. Leavengood did not seek re-election. The winner in Tuesday's election will serve out the remaining two years on that term. Two other four-year term seats on the board are also up for election. The seats are currently occupied by Jeff Stevens and John McLean Jr. McLean is seeking re-election, but Stevens is not. Since Charlevoix resident Glen Catt is the only other candidate, the race is uncontested.

The following are the answers the candidates for the contested two-year seat submitted in response to a candidate profile form from the Courier. More brief biographical information for the two candidates in the uncontested race for the two four-year seats is also included.

Name: Margie Tamminga

Age: 48

Occupation: Realtor for Coldwell Banker Schmidt, school bus driver

Other activities/organizations: Member of Michigan Association of Realtors, National Association of Realtors, B.P.O. Elks Lodge 2856

Previous public office experience: None

Why are you seeking election/re-election?
I view it as an opportunity to give back to my community and school board. As the mother of a senior in the class of 2011, and having two other children who have graduated from Charlevoix Schools, I want to make sure the students are not forgotten with the current budget decisions.

What issues are the do you think are the biggest concern for the school district and how should they be addressed?

Balancing the needs of the students and community against the reality of the budget in this economy. It is that simple to state, but very complex to achieve, but I want to be part of that process and know I will be able to contribute significantly.

What do you think makes you a good candidate for the board?

I will bring new ideas to the School Board and work to bridge the distance between the School Board, Teachers, Administration and the Community so that working together we can help our students become well functioning adults in the real world.

Other comments/information:

I have observed my three children attend Charlevoix Public Schools for years. Two have graduated and the third will be graduating in 2011. I have a unique perspective from my observations of the great education they have received. But I know we can do more within the school and community to help them with college and becoming functioning adults in our community after graduation.

I would also like everyone to know I have been informed by (district superintendent Chet) Janik that, should I win the school board position, I will have to choose between driving school bus or being on the school board. I apparently cannot do both at the same time because it is considered a "conflict of interest" even though I am not hired by the school district, but am hired by a third party. Apparently the spouse of a teacher who is currently employed by the school district may serve on the Board because there is: "no financial interest in the employment contract of his/her spouse." I think this is wrong-headed thinking and a violation of the rights of individuals who step up to serve their community.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

District superintendent Chet Janik told the Courier that the opinion that Tamminga (or any other person who works for the district) would have to choose between driving bus for the district or serving on the school board should she win the election is not his own personal opinion or the board's but rather comes from the district's attorney and is based upon a Michigan Attorney General's opinion.

Janik added that the district's attorney has also opined that, based on several previously-decided court cases, a person (such as current board president John McLean) whose spouse is employed by the district, may serve on the school board.

Contacted by the Courier Monday, Tamminga said her comments about the matter in her candidate profile were not a criticism of Janik or the current board, but rather of the legal findings that a person may not serve in both capacities.

Grandvue settles Whistleblower lawsuit

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — The Whistleblower lawsuit against Grandvue Medical Care Facility has been settled out of court after six months of arguments over the case.

Janet Renkiewicz of Charlevoix filed a lawsuit in Charlevoix County Circuit Court in April under the Whistleblower's Protection Act, claiming she was wrongfully fired from her position as manager of Grandvue's dementia unit in early January.

An alternative dispute resolution team consisting of three attorneys — one for the plaintiff, one for the defense and a mediator — negotiated the terms of the settlement and decided Renkiewicz should receive $25,000 in the settlement.

"They determined what she lost in wages, both past and future wages, punitive damages and the cost to litigate the case," Grandvue administrator Kevin Evans said.

According to the suit, the incident leading to Renkiewicz's firing involved a patient in her 80s who had been diagnosed as "delusional, depressed and demented." The patient told three nurses aides that a visitor to the facility had lured her and that a male nurse on staff at Grandvue had also raped her. The aides notified the male nurse and he made a note of the allegation in the patient's computerized nursing notes.

The suit lists several people who knew about the allegations but "in light of the resident's history and behaviors and in light of their own 'common sense' none of the staff suspected that a rape had occurred and none reported the allegations," the lawsuit reads.

Renkiewicz, who was in charge of the unit where the patient was housed, was ultimately fired for "failure to meet work performance standards" for improper reporting of the rape allegations, which amounted to a "systemic failure" that took place under Renkiewicz's leadership, according to the lawsuit.

Grandvue's administration is pleased with the outcome of the case, stating that continued litigation would have cost more than the settlement and the resolution of the case will allow them to more easily focus on taking care of the residents of the facility. "All along we've been doing what the residents ask of us and that's serving with excellence. That's what the whole team is focused on. (The lawsuit) has been a distraction, but we've stayed focused," Evans said.

Renkiewicz is also pleased with the settlement, but says the lawsuit wasn't about financial gain.

"The suit really wasn't about the money. The point was to correct the problems. There is no amount of money to make up for the treatment of the employees and residents. The quality of care has really gone down at the facility," Renkiewicz said.

Grandvue has until the end of the month to make the payment to Renkiewicz to completely settle the Whistleblower lawsuit.

Happily (albeit with some delay), Christie Ann Ward and Michael Edward Strahan announce their marriage. The couple exchanged vows beachside in Isla Mujeres, Mexico on May 2, 2010 beneath a clear sky with a descending sun.

The newlyweds were surrounded by family and close friends as Brian Ward, the bride's brother, officiated the union.

The bride is the daughter of Bernie Ill and Sandra Ward of Charlevoix. She is a 1997 graduate of Charlevoix High School. Christie earned her bachelor's degree from Ferris State University in 2006.

Christie has been employed with Big Brothers Big Sisters of Northwestern Michigan for the past four years. It was in her capacity as case manager that she met her "match," Michael, who volunteers as a Big Brother.

The groom is the son John and DiAnn Strahan of Battle Creek and Julie and Jack Wilkins of Paris, Tenn. Michael is a 1997 graduate of Henry County High School. He earned his EMT and firefighting certification in 2004. He is employed with I-DeL LLC in Traverse City and is also a volunteer firefighter.

After honeymooning in Cozumel, Mexico, the couple returned home to Traverse City and started their new life together.

Halloween for fun and thankfulness

Halloween will soon be here and, next to Christmas, it's the one time of the year when I can eat more than my share of chocolate. It's that time of year when the temperatures drop at night, leaves decorate the lawn and families get creative having fun pretending they are someone else. Sounds a bit therapeutic.

During the 1950s, this special time brought our siblings around the kitchen table to make the ultimate decision of what kind of face our larger than life pumpkin should display. We only purchased one large pumpkin and its fate was always a family affair that took place the night before Halloween. I couldn't wait until dinner was over. The evening meal was finished quickly so the tradition could begin. Dad would take the previous day's Detroit News and neatly spread it across the kitchen table. The steak and carving knives usually kept securely in a drawer until Thanksgiving were now placed neatly in a row next to the future jack-o-lantern. Dad was a surgeon so his actions were precise and thoughtful. My job as the middle child was to urge dad on to make the face scarier than the year before.

The first cut was made and I can still remember the aroma of fresh cut pumpkin.

Child proof knives weren't available back then, otherwise I am certain I would have created something spectacular on my own vegetable of choice. My sister and I had the job of scraping out the never ending slippery seeds. After scooping for what felt like forever to a young child, I'd finish it off by chasing my sister around the house threatening to cover her in some of the slimy goop. I would stop only when I heard dad's voice in the background announcing my first and middle name. Then I knew I was in trouble.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

It was time to look for a candle. Mom always had some white candles handy that were blessed by our local priest. We usually pulled these out and lit them when we had a test in school the next day. We felt certain that a lit blessed candle would help us in our time of need and whenever a big test was looming mom would say, "It's time to light a candle." We felt certain the angels and the Virgin Mary were on our side if this blessed wax had a flame dancing above it. Now this infamous candle was going into our very large pumpkin. Maybe mom thought this beloved candle would burn longer and keep tricksters from tossing our beautifully carved pumpkin into one of the three lanes of traffic that noisily careened in front of our house.

I remember the stories mom would share about her life growing up in Detroit when Halloween meant pulling pranks. Mom would giggle as she recalled her memories of night time mischief going door to door to ring a doorbell and then quickly running to hide behind a bush. (That was their idea of a prank.) As pranks became more serious than turning over trash cans, the parents in the 1930s came up with the idea of trick or treating door to door and asking for candy. This idea came from parents meeting with school teachers with hopes of curbing the mischief that kids would create on their own. The idea of chocolate candy as a treat was probably brought about by the Hershey Company. So, thank you Mr. Hershey.

When Halloween arrives in Northern Michigan, there is a chill in the air letting us know that seasons do change. The basic philosophy of Hallow's Eve is to honor deceased family members by saying a prayer, and include one of thanks for the good harvest we have. It signals a time to invite friends over for apple cider and let the kids and adults dress up in costume if they want to. It's a fun evening and not to be taken seriously that you're a heathen for doing this. Your children will have fun dressing up so why not join them. We can still honor our deceased. We can still say prayers in thanks of our harvest. You can have your pumpkin and eat it too, but more importantly chocolate anyone?

SUPPORT DAN BENISHEK

Editor:
Dan Benishek should represent us in the 1st Congressional District. He understands:
1) Jobs are created through free enterprise, personal responsibility, and individual liberty; blighted government and high taxes destroy jobs. 2) Lower personal and business taxes encourage investment, growing both jobs and tax revenue. 3) Secure borders increase available jobs, improve national security and decrease welfare costs. 4) Legislation and spending must be constitutional; the federal government cannot be allowed to destroy the futures of our children and grandchildren. 5) Healthcare costs can be controlled through litigation reform and free market competition; Obamacare must be repealed and replaced with tax deductible, portable, interstate healthcare plans chosen by the individuals using them. 6) Responsible use of natural resources and development of clean energy alternatives, including nuclear, are essential to our energy independence. 7) Government and government authorized entities must be transparent, including Fannie, Freddie and the Federal Reserve.

Benishek supports these and the other principles outlined in the Pledge to America, published recently by conservatives in the Republican party. Even as a "non-politician," he will join the momentum of these conservatives to bring our country and the Republican party back to its constitutional roots.

Benishek's democrat opponent supports Obamacare and does not understand how high taxes, regulation and government spending create uncertainty and stifle economic growth and prosperity in the 1st District and throughout our great nation. His job-killing voting record as a state representative makes this clear.

Benishek's minor-party and independent opponents do not understand that alienation of major party colleagues in Congress leaves them without partners with whom to caucus and with no way to generate support and momentum for important reforms that must be undertaken. Consequently, we in the 1st District would have no real voice in Congress.

POSITIVE ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM A SUCCESS

Editor:
The Charlevoix Police Department in conjunction with the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club wish to thank our sponsors and volunteers for making the Positive Enforcement Program a success again this year. We started the local program in 2009 to reach out to our youth by handing out rewards to those who are "caught" doing something positive in the community. More than 100 rewards were again distributed for good deeds that ranged from walking bicycles, downtown and wearing helmets to volunteering to pick up garbage from our beaches.

Our sponsors include Olesons, Glens, Charlevoix Community Pool, Charlevoix Recreation Department, Revolution Cycle, Charlevoix Cinema, Dairy Grille, Mary Anne's, 7-Eleven and the Holiday Gas Station.

We were also able to use funds donated by a private person and assistance from Revolution Cycle to purchase bicycle, skateboard and ski/snowboard helmets that were distributed to children in need at Kids Day of Venetian Festival. We also donated some of the helmets to the Charlevoix Recreation Department for kids to use at the Charlevoix Skate Park and Mount McSaubia Ski Hill.

We look forward to starting the program again at the beginning of next summer.

Previous public office experience: none
Why are you seeking election/re-election?

In general, I'd like to bring a common person's opinion to the board and do my best to do what's in the best interests of helping our children succeed and become productive adult members of society, to help insure that public funds are spent in ways that benefit both our young people and our entire community.

What issues are the do you think are the biggest concern for the school district and how should they be addressed?

The budget issues and cuts are probably the obvious concern and should be addressed with a whole lot of common sense. I have not studied the budget in depth, but I know that we as a community and board must do everything in our power to use our tax dollars and public funds wisely and cautiously.

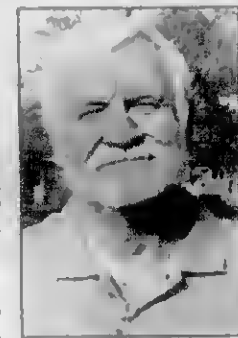

What do you think makes you a good candidate for the board?

I am pretty much a life-long resident of Charlevoix, a graduate of Charlevoix High School in 1965 and just felt that now was a good time to get involved and give some of my time back to the community. I am open minded and have no set agenda other than to listen and study everything that comes before the board and to use common sense and make the fairest decision I can with the best interests of the community in mind.

Name: Nancy K. Allison
Age: 62
Occupation: Controller at North Central Michigan College for 36 years.

Other activities/organizations: I have served on the board at the Charlevoix Children's House for more than 10 years. I am a member of the Michigan Community College Business Officers Association (MCCBOA). I currently serve as the treasurer for the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. I have volunteered in various capacities with the Charlevoix Public Schools over the years.

Previous public office experience: I have served on a few boards in our community as noted above and I work for an organization led by a publicly elected board. As the controller at North Central Michigan College, I have a good understanding of the board's role in setting policy and the staff's responsibility to carry out board policies.

Why are you seeking election?

I have a very strong commitment to education and to my community. I feel that since I have a lifetime of experience, I could offer some knowledge/insight by giving back to the community and educational system in Charlevoix all that I have learned over the years. Not to mention, my entire family has grown up here and we, including my grandchildren, are completely vested in this community.

What issues do you think are the biggest concern for the school district and how should they be addressed?

Currently, the budget is probably the biggest concern for the school district. I believe as a board member, you need to lobby state legislators and U.S. Congressional representatives for passage of laws and adoption of funding programs to enhance education not to cut it.

What do you think makes you a good candidate for the board?

I could bring a considerable amount of experience and wisdom in the financial area, as well as, insurance and retirement matters to the Charlevoix Board of Education. I've been responsible for supervising the college's budget, payroll, purchases and the accounting office operation for 36 years. I have experience working with independent auditors to ensure the accounting system and financial controls meet all applicable standards. In addition, I have ample experience working with the public, support staff, administrators and faculty.

Any other comments/information you'd like to add?
I would be pleased to have an opportunity to serve on Charlevoix's school board by getting your vote on Nov. 2.

Name: Glen Catt
Age: 44
Occupation: Real estate development and management

Other activities/organizations: Charlevoix Rotary Club

Previous public office experience: I have never been a candidate for any elected board position in the past. But, I have served on many non-profit boards, including in leadership positions on those boards.

Why are you seeking election?
I believe my business and leadership background can help serve Charlevoix Public Schools.

Name: John E. McLean Jr.
Age: 44
Occupation: Charlevoix Public Library and United States Coast Guard, Retired
Other activities/organizations: Member of Lion and Elks Club here in Charlevoix

Previous public office experience: One term on the board of education

Why are you seeking re-election?
It is my goal to serve on this board to make certain the students of Charlevoix Public Schools receive the quality education they are entitled to.

County board of commissioners race

The Charlevoix County District Six County Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, who lost the in the August Republican primary election to Beaver Island resident Richard Gillespie by a 575-445 margin, is running against him again as a write-in candidate in the Nov. 2 general election.

Roloff has held the seat on the commission since she defeated Gillespie in 1996.

Name: Richard Gillespie Political Party: Republican Education: High school
Political Experience: Served four years on county board of commissioners in 90s, politically proactive all my life Professional Experience: Licensed builder, real estate broker, pilot.

Personal: Wife: Laura; children: Kellie, Kerrie, James and Kevin

1. With the current state of the economy what do you feel the county can do to get the most out of taxpayer money?

"Be very keen on essential services and on being sure that we are spending taxpayer money wisely. (is) the fundamental job of the board of county commissioners."

2. There has been a lot of talk in Northern Michigan about unfunded mandates from the state. What if anything do you think the county should do about this?

"Unfunded mandates have been a problem in this state and others for many years. There should be a combined effort to stop what is actually an illegal activity. I would be proud to lead the charge in this effort."

3. In your opinion what is the most important aspect of the county commissioner job and why?

"To be certain that tax money is spent wisely and to be just as certain that taxpayers are dealt with fairly and quickly. It is their work that we do and they deserve the best treatment."

4. Senior citizens play a large roll in our community. What do you think can be done to better take care of them at the county level?

"I have talked to people at the senior center and am aware of their desires going ahead. What can be done for seniors is find out what they want and incorporate it into our efforts. The senior demographic is growing exponentially and we should be ready for it!"

Gillespie

5. What do you feel the number one problem is in the county and what can the board of commissioners do to fix it?

"Wasteful spending. There are things that have been done that are now a burden on the taxpayers who are struggling to keep their homes. We must make every effort to be sure that we spend their money wisely. A very important obligation that I do not feel has been taken seriously enough. We have expanded facilities we should never have (expanded) and left other things begging, why? Strong leadership, that is what I intend to bring to the board"

Name: Shirley Roloff
Education: 12 years and two years business school Political Experience: 12 years Charlevoix City Council, including six years mayor pro-tem, 14 years county commissioner (past chair and present vice chair)

Professional Experience: 30 years co-owner Charlevoix Canvas
Personal: Married 50 years to Bill, five kids, nine grandchildren and two great-grand children

1. With the current state of the economy what do you feel the county can do to get the most out of taxpayer money?

Charlevoix County is a very conservative county. It is our job to watch and check our spending, relying on our department heads to monitor their budget, purchasing what they need — not what they want.

2. There has been a lot of talk in Northern Michigan about unfunded mandates from the state. What if anything do you think the county should do about this?

This has been going on for years — the state mandates and we pay. You ask me what we should do? I think we should sue the state. The county board wants it to stop. We have our attorney researching the law, stating it's unconstitutional. This would empower the county to say "NO!" Hopefully we can get other counties to join in with us.

3. In your opinion what is the most important aspect of the County Commissioners job and why?

We must balance the budget, keep our spending down, have oversight over all our departments. Charlevoix County doesn't have a manager (the commissioners are the managers) so it's extremely important to go to your appointed meetings and report back to your fellow commissioners. Keep the door open to all our citizens and use common sense in your daily decisions.

4. Senior citizens play a large roll in our county. What do you think can be done to better take care of them at the county level?

I am proud to say I have 34 years of volunteering with seniors. The county has taken a big step this past year. We hired a new director, added new services and have gotten more information out to the seniors.

Roloff

Charlevoix County has offered many services to our seniors. We have four senior centers, adult day care, free rides on the transit system, Meals on Wheels and home care. These are just a few. Charlevoix County respects their seniors and will continue to make their lives better.

5. What do you feel the number one problem is in the county and what can the Board of Commissioners do to fix it?

Unemployment! I'm sorry to say there's not much we can do. We will try to keep our employees working. We may have to cut hours. We all know things are going to be tough for the next couple of years and it will be our job to look at a roll back on our taxes.

Sheriff offers Halloween safety tips

Halloween is only a week away and soon our streets will be filled with little ghosts, goblins, and witches trick-or-treating.

To ensure this Halloween is safe for your children, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider offers the following safety tips:

— Costumes should be short enough to prevent tripping. Masks should not be too restrictive with adequate holes for proper respiration and peripheral vision. Consider using cosmetics to create fun or scary faces instead of masks.

— Watch costumed children around pets. The pet may not recognize the child and become frightened, especially if the child is using a prop such as a sword or dagger as part of their costume.

— Avoid hard plastic or wooden props, opting instead for items made of foam rubber which is soft and flexible.

— To help make the child more visible after dark, trick-or-treaters should carry a brightly colored bag and a flashlight or glow stick. Add reflective tape to the sides, front, and back of the child's costume.

— At all times, watch for traffic and avoid walking in the street whenever possible.

— An adult should always accompany young children. A parent should stay within close range of young children at all times and children should never be allowed to go down to a street alone. Walk with your children to each house and wait near the porch or front entrance of the home until they return.

— Older children should travel in pairs or in groups at all times while trick-or-treating and never venture down a dark, empty street.

— Parents should know the route that their children are following. Children should always walk together to the front door of each house and only cross the street at crosswalks.

— Dark, unlit homes should be avoided.

— Children should save their candy until they get home so parents can inspect it. Discard any unwrapped or suspicious looking goodies. If your child does get sick, call your family doctor or the hospital emergency room immediately and save all wrappers. It is also helpful to determine what he or she ate and which house it came from.

— Keep flammable items, such as your jack-o-lantern, away from small children, pets, and flammable materials such as draperies, furniture, and paper decorations. Never leave a candle burning unattended.

"Halloween is a fun time in Charlevoix County," Sheriff Don Schneider concluded. "Let's make it a safe time as well."

For more safety tips, Schneider encourages residents to visit the Michigan Sheriffs Association website at www.misherriff.org.

Marion Township voters to decide liquor sales question

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Voters in going to the polls in Marion Township will be asked to decide if a 1974 ordinance outlawing the sale of liquor for on-site consumption should be repealed.

The question appears on the ballot after the representatives of Castle Farms, which is located in Marion Township collected enough signatures on a petition seeking to have the question put to voters.

Castle Farms representatives have said that the business itself has no interest in obtaining a license of the onsite sale of liquor, but are seeking the change after receiving numerous requests by patrons who wish to include liquor in their cash bars during events that take place at Castle Farms.

Earlier this year, Castle Farms assistant manager An-ora Ruehle told the Courier, "Changing the current law would not increase alcoholic consumption at the Castle. Liquor is already being served. The only difference would be that event organizers would have the option of hosting cash bars for charities. They'd be able to raise more money, instead of giving away free liquor as they now do, included within the price of an admission ticket."

OBITUARIES

Mike Rostar: Feb. 4, 1953 - Oct. 23, 2010

Mike Rostar, born Feb. 4, 1953, passed away at his home Saturday Oct. 23, 2010, in the company of his wife and son. Mike was born in Petoskey, the son of Francis (Frank) Rostar and Marvel (Platt) Rostar. Mike is survived by his wife Marci (Thompson), children Michael and Tonya of Charlevoix, grandson Gavin of Petoskey, mother Marvel of Charlevoix and siblings Polly (Lowetz) of Moran, Jan (Hall) of Flint, Dave and Frank of Charlevoix, Marv (Hernandez) of Florence Ala., and James of Boyne City. Mike's family spent time in Sault Ste. Marie and Bellaire before moving to Flint where Mike graduated from Flint Southwestern in 1971 as a stand out wrestler. Mike married Fayeannette in 1971 and they had two children Tonya and Michael before relocating to Charlevoix in 1977. In 1980 Mike and Fayeannette began building their family home in the Bay Shore area which borders the Horton Creek.

In 1979 Mike began Rostar Construction, a concrete masonry business which operated throughout Northern Michigan and later became Great Lakes Concrete Systems Incorporated. In 1984, Mike and his family began wintering in Desert Hot Springs, Calif. where he grew his business and continued to do so for 10 years. Mike continued to operate his business in Northern Michigan and poured countless commercial and residential floors, walls, and sidewalks in the area. His son, Michael joined the business in 1991 and continues to operate in the industry along with his sister as Rostar Concrete.

Mike and Marci were married in 2009 and resided in his home in the Bay Shore area. They enjoyed camping, gardening, and fishing together.

Mike was an avid fisherman, enjoyed collecting and growing plants, and traveling. While Mike's hobbies were as endless as the stars, most of his endeavors included things for the family, among them were building skateboards and skateboard ramps for his son in the 80s, and an early BMX career in the 90s for both his children, which took them around the country.

A memorial service is planned for 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 30, at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix, with a service to follow at his residence.

State to auction off mineral rights

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

This week, oil and gas companies from around the country are expected to purchase thousands of acres of mineral rights from the state of Michigan.

"The Department of Natural Resources and Environment will offer approximately 451,000 acres of state-owned oil and gas lease rights at this auction," said Kimberly Venne, property analyst for the Oil and Gas Lease Management Unit of the DNRE.

The auction, set for Tuesday, Oct. 26 through Thursday, Oct. 28, will feature more acreage than the last auction in May, but the starting bids will be at a lower price.

At the May 4 auction, 118,000 acres of mineral rights in 22 counties were leased and brought in an unprecedented, $178 million.

This week, the minimum starting bid will be $26 an acre. About 50,000 of those acres up for auction are in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Mary Dettloff, the public information officer for the DNRE, said the state is expecting heavy interest in the auction, but she isn't sure if it will draw the same interest as the May auction.

Companies interested in leasing state-owned mineral rights must nominate property for the auction and pay a fee to have it listed.

But the auction comes at a time when many property owners in Northern Michigan are looking into whether to take legal action against oil and gas companies.

After the May auction, many property owners in the area signed mineral rights leases with companies only to have their lease terminated a short time later. A majority of those lease-ending letters have come from Western Land Services or EnCana, two of the big players in the area.

Susan Topp and William Rolinski, Gaylord-based attorneys who specialize in the oil and gas industry, believe many of those leases were terminated without a valid reason.

Last week, the two spoke to more than 200 people at a public meeting at the Emmet County Fairgrounds in Petoskey about their legal options. Most of the people in attendance had received notice that their lease had been terminated.

"I never thought this summer that I'd have to be here talking about what to do if your oil and gas lease has been canceled," Topp told the crowd.

Topp said one of the top reasons people were told that their lease was terminated was because there was a mortgage on the property. Other reasons cited include that the leased acreage was out of the leasing area and because the lease was signed too late.

"These letters raise serious questions," Topp said. "Are these valid reasons to cancel a lease? We don't think so."

David Petty lives in Charlevoix County and has worked in the oil and gas industry for the last seven years.

In August, he received a letter from Western Land Services stating that his lease had been voided and he would not receive his payment.

"The letter said that because I had a mortgage on my house, they would not validate the lease agreement," Petty told the News-Review. "But 90 percent of people who lease their mineral rights have mortgages, so this is not a valid reason to terminate a lease."

Petty, who helped organize last week's meeting at the fairgrounds, said in his experience, he hasn't heard this type of excuse for backing out of a lease.

Topp and Rolinski encourage those who believe their lease was terminated without a valid reason to seek legal advice.

"What we have seen so far would be a breach of contract," Topp said. "We believe a wrong has been committed and we are confident the courts will rectify this."

This week's state auction will take place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 26 through Thursday, Oct. 28, at Michigan Constitution Hall in Lansing.

The auction is open to the public.

Gerald Chase, health officer

RECONSIDER
LOCATIONS FOR APPLE FESTIVAL VENDORS

Editor:

I would just like to voice my opinion on Friske Orchard's taking up all the corner for the first two days of Apple Fest and then leaving the whole corner empty on Sunday. All the rest of the orchards spent the whole three days working hard and long-hour days. It really didn't look good for the city to have that whole corner empty on day three. If they (Friske's) won't commit for the whole festival they should not get the entire huge corner. Leave it to someone who is there throughout the three-day festival.

Lawsuit could affect area hospitals

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix Area Hospital is one of dozens of Michigan hospitals that could be impacted by a lawsuit filed on Monday, Oct. 18 in United States District Court.

The lawsuit, alleges that Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan discourages competition by engaging in practices that raise hospital prices and limit competition.

The suit targets what is called, "most favored nation" clauses between Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and health care providers which, according to the government, essentially guarantees that no competing health care plan can obtain a better rate.

The government alleges the insurance provider has the most favored nation clauses or similar language in contracts with at least 70 of 131 general acute care hospitals in the state, including Charlevoix Area Hospital.

William Jackson, president and CEO of Charlevoix Area Hospital, said he isn't in a position to comment on the lawsuit since it is ongoing, but the hospital will be cooperative in the investigation.

"We do rely on Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan to provide us with adequate reimbursement to remain a viable business," Jackson said.

Jackson said the most favored nation clause hasn't had much of an impact on how the hospital does business.

He added that currently, 20 to 25 percent of Charlevoix Area Hospital patients are covered by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

Michigan Attorney General Mike Cox believes a recent investigation by his office and the United States Department of Justice shows Blue Cross Blue Shield increased its practice of requiring the most favored nation clauses in 2007, and threatened to slash payments to 45 small, rural hospitals by up to 16 percent if the hospitals refused.

"It is deeply disturbing that Blue Cross, a non-profit created to help Michigan citizens, would strong-arm hospitals at the expense of hard-working families," Cox said. "These greedy deals are hardly what the legislature had in mind when it created Blue Cross. We need more competition to keep prices down, but with the support of our tax dollars, Blue Cross is doing everything it can to kill its competition."

In response, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan said the lawsuit was without merit.

"Negotiated hospital discounts are a tool that Blue Cross uses to protect the affordability of health insurance for millions of Michiganders," said Andrew Hetzel, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan vice president for corporate communications.

"Through this lawsuit, the federal government seeks to deny millions of Michigan residents the lowest cost possible when they visit the hospital."

Other area hospitals with most favored nation clauses include Alpena Regional Medical Center, Munson Medical Center in Traverse City, Mackinac Straits Hospital and Health Center in St. Ignace and Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord.

Norwood voters to consider road, EMS millages

Voters in Charlevoix County's Norwood Township will be asked to consider approval for two millage requests, one for roads, the other to help pay for ambulance service in the township.

In the case of the road millage, the request would renew for three years the township's previously voter-approved 1-mill levy for road improvements in the township. The millage is set to expire at the end of this year. Township officials expect the millage would bring in about $47,174 in 2011.

Many townships in Charlevoix and Emmet counties use road millages to pay for road repairs on local roads in their townships because road commission typically have little, if any money available for such work.

In the case of the EMS (ambulance service) millage, the request is for a renewal for three years with a small increase. The millage, which is used to pay the costs the City of Charlevoix charges the township to provide ambulance service to its residents, is also set to expire at the end of this year. The millage is currently at 0.5 mills, but township officials are seeking an increase to 0.65 mills.

Township officials said the increase is needed to offset the recent increase in the rates that the city is charging to the township for ambulance service.

If approved, the EMS millage is expected to generate about $30,633 in 2011.

One mill equals one dollar in tax for every $1,000 of a property's taxable value.

Grandvue seeks millage renewal

Voters in all of Charlevoix County going to the polls next Tuesday will be asked to consider renewing for four years a 0.75-mill levy for operations at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The millage is expected to bring in about $1.5 million in 2011.

One mill equals $1 in taxes for every $1,000 in a property's taxable value.

Enhancements to U.S. 31 topic of event

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will sponsor a presentation by Ken Polakowski, a Charlevoix resident and professor emeritus of landscape architecture at the University of Michigan from 6:30-8 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 10, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Polakowski will present ideas for methods of enhancing the appearance of the U.S. 31 corridor between M-66 in Charlevoix and Cedarview Road in Norwood Township.

The presentation will feature a number of before and after drawings and sketches of landscaping treatments along the highway right-of-way that can improve the appearance of the corridor as well as enhance the focus on and perception of businesses by motorists traveling on U.S. 31.

Following the presentation there will be an opportunity to discuss potential landscaping improvements and various sources of funding to implement the improvements.

For more information on the event, call the Charlevoix County Planning Department at (231) 547-7234.

Kelts runs as write-in for county board

Boyer City resident Jerry Kelts is seeking a re-match of his loss in the August primary bid to un-seat current Fifth District Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners member Boh Drebenstedt.

Drebenstedt defeated Kelts in the August Republican primary by a 490-270 margin (62-38 percent).

County clerk's office staff said Kelts filed his paperwork to run as a write-in candidate just before last Friday's deadline.

Drebenstedt is retired from the U.S. Army, counsels veterans and serves on the health department board. He holds two master's degrees — one in health administration and one in psychology and substance abuse.

He has said senior citizen and veterans issues are among his top concerns.

Kelts has served as the director of the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce, served for 10 years on the Boyne City School Board, was the director of the Boyne City Food Pantry and was a small business owner.

Rayders fall in district final

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

ELK RAPIDS — The rain began to fall just after the start of Saturday's Division III boys' soccer district final between Charlevoix and Traverse City Christian.

Not long after that, it was pouring goals for the Sabres offense.

T.C. Christian erupted for five second-half goals as the Sabres rolled past the Rayders, 7-0, at Elk Rapids High School, earning their second district title in three seasons.

Scoutie Raetz had two goals, while Jonathan Tuck, Andrew Bump, Paul Bump, Peter Mustard and Cameron Beemer each added a goal apiece as the Sabres avenged last season's 3-0 loss to the Rayders in the district final.

T.C. Christian, 22-2-1 and ranked No. 8 in the state coaches poll, advances to the regional to play Whitehall, 20-3-1, 5 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 26, at the Coast Guard Fields in Traverse City. Oscoda and Hart comprised the other half of the regional bracket.

On Saturday in the steady rain, the Sabres — who defeated Charlevoix 5-3 earlier in the regular season — kept Charlevoix and dangerous senior strikers Boog Nitchman and Ben Myers in check.

"There was a lot of nervousness amongst the guys before the game, but we were ready for it," Charlevoix coach John Boss said. "It was nerves. Traverse City is a solid team. You just can't win them all."

On the other sideline, Sabres coach Tom Spencer sensed a calm confidence in his team.

"All throughout the game, we knew we could do it," Spencer said. "We struggled with Elk Rapids in the (district) semifinal and we were hoping that would be a good sign for this game. Charlevoix is a good team, I don't think anybody can deny that. But we almost didn't get a chance to play them here."

The Sabres, who have won 23 straight games after losing to a pair of Division I schools, Midland and Bay City Western, in a season-opening tournament, took a 1-0 lead 12 minutes into the game as Tuck headed in a long cross from the left corner from Ian Spencer.

T.C. Christian then made it 2-0 late in the opening half on another header as Raetz knocked in a corner kick sent in from Bump.

Prior to Raetz's goal, the Rayders had numerous scoring chances including quality opportunities from Nitchman, Myers and Thomas Rich.

However, the Sabres defense led by senior captains Michael Weber and Mustard stood tall and blocked numerous shots.

"They were very solid on the back end," Boss said of the Sabres. "Their No. 9 (Mustard) and

No. 11 (Weber), we couldn't get anything through on them. They were both fast, strong and solid players."

Less than seven minutes into the second half, the Sabres made it 3-0 as Andrew Bump took a centering feed from Raetz and beat Charlevoix junior goalkeeper Matt Batdorff with a hard, low shot.

"I told the guys at halftime it wasn't like we haven't been here before," Boss said. "We were down 2-0 when we played Elk Rapids and came back to win a few weeks ago."

"It wasn't like we hadn't seen a deficit before."

The third goal, Spencer said, seemed to be the back-breaker. "I'm just so happy that we played to our potential," Spencer said. "We started the season with a state-championship dream and we've busted our butts for a year to get here."

"It's taken us a year to get to here."

Tuck set up the Sabres' fourth goal with some fine dribbling, near the top of the box before Paul Bump finished off the play. Mustard and Raetz and Beemer then scored. Jonathan Rudolph made four saves in goal for the Sabres.

"We went 1-2 on opening day and I told the kids afterwards that's enough losses for the year," Spencer said. "We have a philosophy of one game at a time. I really thought we could beat Charlevoix, but did I think we would do it in this fashion? That's unrealistic."

"We just erupted and our kids wanted it. They're still hurting from last year."

The Rayders earned the right to play for a chance at the second consecutive conference title when it defeated Grayling 5-0 Thursday in a semi-final game.

Tom Rich and Boog Nitchman had two goals each as Charlevoix defeated Grayling, 5-0, Thursday in the Division III boys' soccer district semifinal.

Will Larson added a goal, Wyatt Drost finished with two assists, and Matt Klooster and Rich had one assist each for the Rayders. Matt Batdorff was the Rayder goalkeeper.

Charlevoix closes a 13-7-0 season, and will graduate 13 seniors including All-Stater Myers, who holds several Rayder scoring records.

"There will be a lot of big shoes to fill," Boss said. "It's just been a great group of guys that we've had."

Rayder varsity finishes strong, notches end-of-season victory

A strong finish fueled the Charlevoix Rayders in their 21-13 season finale victory over Kalkaska Friday at Kipke Field.

With the win, the Rayders close the season at 3-6 overall, 2-5 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"It was a nice way to end the season," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said. "It was nice to see the kids respond, especially being down 13-6 with four minutes to go. I was really happy for the kids and proud of them."

Trailing 13-6 with a little more than four minutes to play, the Rayders regained a slim lead as Andrew Potter tossed an 8-yard touchdown pass to Gunnar Zipp before John Boss ran in the two-point conversion to make it 14-13.

The Rayders then recovered the ball on the ensuing kickoff and scored two plays later as Boss scampered into the end zone from 20 yards out. Zipp kicked the extra point to close the scoring at 21-13.

Boss led all Charlevoix rushers with 110 yards on 14 carries, while Jake McLean added 70 yards on 20 carries. McLean, who also plays safety on defense, led the Rayders defensively with 10 tackles.

Also for Charlevoix, Chris Keie had seven tackles, while Josh Hogan, River Gauthier and Coby Herriman all recorded sacks.

Hogan — the Rayders defensive end — also intercepted a Kalkaska pass at the Blazers own 1 yard line and scored Charlevoix's first touchdown.

The Rayders led 6-0 at halftime before Kalkaska, 2-7, 2-5, scored twice in the second half to take the lead.

"It was nice," added Jess. "It's a good building block for next year."

Rayder JV defeats Kalkaska, finishes 8-1

The Charlevoix Rayder Junior Varsity football team capped off a stellar season with yet another lopsided victory — this time over Kalkaska, 56-24.

With the victory, the JV squad ends the season with an 8-1 record overall, and 6-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference — which ties for the best in the league.

"I know that a conference championship does not exist for JV, but I thought it was important for the kids to know that they earned it," JV head coach Doug Waha said.

On Thursday the Rayders scored early and often, jumping to a 44-6 lead by halftime.

Jamael Kelly lead the team in rushing with 159 yards on 12 carries and four TDs plus one conversion. Kelly also had a 99 yard kickoff return for a TD. Shane Sutherland ran for 119 yards on 16 carries, one TD and three conversions. The Rayders ran for 356 yards as a team.

Rayder quarterback Tanner Catt was 5-7 for 82 yards and one TD pass.

The Rayders racked up more than 200 yards in returns, including returns of 71 yards and 45 yards by Tommy Zipp.

The Rayders' scores included:

— A 2-yard run by Sutherland, with Kelly adding the two-point conversion

— A 99-yard kickoff by Sutherland followed by a two-point conversion

— A 6-yard run by Kelly, followed by a two-point conversion by Sutherland

— A 37-yard reception by Charlie Hamilton 37 from Tanner Catt, followed by a 2-point conversion by Sutherland

— A 1-yard run by Kelly

— A 12-yard run by Chandler Novotny

— A 3-yard run by Kelly

— A 76-yard run by Kelly

Andrew Robarge led the Rayders on defense with 12 tackles. Kelly, Zipp and Catt each had seven tackles. Hamilton had one interception and Logan Eekhardt recovered a fumble forced by Jared Cole.

Catt and Sawyer Russell each had a sack.

"Kalkaska did most of their damage against our reserves, most of whom started to play in the second quarter," Waha noted.

"These were a great group of kids to coach. The sophomore class went 15-3 the last two years and if they continue to work hard in the weight room, it will reflect on the field as members of the varsity," Waha said. "We improved every game this year, the kids did not want this season to end. The last two games are a testament to that."

Waha went on to thank his assistant coaches Adam Wood, Glen Catt and Kent Seymour for their work over the course of the season.

SEASON STATS

Over the course of the 2010 season the Rayders rushed for 2,350 yards, scored 32 TDs and 22 two-point conversions.

The team's leading rushers were Jamael Kelly with 75 carries for 719 yards, 12 TDs, and six two-point conversions; Shane Sutherland with 108 carries for 584 yards, four TDs and eight two-point conversions.

Quarterback Tanner Catt was 56-92 for 785 yards, 13 TDs and five conversions. Tommy Zipp caught 26 passes for 315 yards and six TDs and five conversions. Charlie Hamilton caught 14 passes for 294 yards and six TDs.

On defense, Andrew Robarge led the team in tackles with 81 and Zipp had 65.

VOLLEYBALL

Clean sweep: RAYDERS WRAP UP LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

CHARLEVOIX — Jenna Way had 44 assists and 22 kills, and Allison Hankins had 24 kills Monday as Charlevoix completed its run to the Lake Michigan Conference volleyball championship with a sweep of Grayling and Kalkaska.

The Rayders, who were league runners-up last year, downed the Vikings, 25-17, 25-10, 25-17, and the Blazers, 25-9, 25-13, 25-14, to finish 13-1 in the league.

It is Charlevoix's sixth conference championship in the last eight years.

The Rayders, 42-11-2 overall, now turn their attention to the Class C state tournament. Last year, they reached the regional final for the first time in school history. They open district play at Mancelona against the host Ironmen on Monday, Nov. 1.

"It (the league title) was one of our big goals and another is to get farther than we did last year in the post-season," coach Liz Grunch said.

"That's what we're going to be looking for and we're preparing for ourselves for that."

The Rayders swept Monday's tri-match without Grunch on the bench. Grunch is due to deliver her baby on Friday. Chris Way, the Rayders' eighth-grade coach, filled in.

The majority of the Rayder roster is comprised of juniors, and Way coached that group during her first year as a coach when they were eighth-graders.

"This was her first group," Grunch said. "Pretty exciting for her to be back."

Katie Mays, Charlevoix's lone senior starter, had 16 kills, four blocks and finished 19-for-19 in serve reception on Monday, while libero Kelly Greyerbiel had 25 digs and four aces.

Greyerbiel, Grunch said, has been an unsung hero and a key to what has unfolded as a highly successful season for the Rayders.

"We graduated an All-State libero (Taylor Storm) last year," Grunch said. "Our quiet warrior is (Greyerbiel). She doesn't get a lot of recognition, but has been consistent in serve receive and worked hard in the offseason to get stronger and have more control in her passing."

"I think everybody's stepped up a little bit from last year and that's how we accomplished so much this season already."

"I think consistency and going out and having a strong game every night (has been key). It shows the dedication and hard work the girls have put in, not just in games, but in practices."

Chelsie Hoffman added 15 digs on Monday for the Rayders, while Kelsey Way had 12 digs and four kills; Megan Peters added five kills and 10 assists; and Anna Way had six kills. Jenna Way, the setter, also had 11 digs and four aces.

Hankins, a middle hitter, is the Rayders' leader in kills and blocks night-in and night-out, but the improvement of Mays up front has added a major component, Grunch said.

"Katie's really improved her game," she said. "It's hard being the only senior (starter) and showing that leadership and a presence in games. People can kind of look up to her because she has that calm. She's been a great role model for the girls."

Charlevoix also swept the JV matches, beating Grayling 25-5, 25-10, 15-7; and Kalkaska, 25-14, 25-14, 15-6.

Jennaca Holleebeck had eight kills and 16 aces to lead the Rayders, who are 29-8-2 overall and finished 13-1 in the league. Also for the Rayders, Karley Pearsall had 14 kills, seven aces; Kelsey Pischner finished with 11 aces; Paige Poirier had nine aces; Baillie Stevens added eight kills; and Sydney Carlson had 14 assists.

Rayders take second at conference, invitational

At the conference meet, in the boys race, the Rams, then ranked No. 4 in Division IV state coaches poll, swept the top three positions and had five runners place in the top seven en route to capturing their third straight league title.

In the girls' race, Harbor, ranked No. 2, also captured the league title for a fourth consecutive season.

"I didn't think we could've done any better than we did today. That's all you can hope for. Running against Charlevoix, they're always tough at conference and I know they were a little down with some sickness, but I couldn't have asked for anything more," Harbor Springs coach Mike Kloss said.

The Charlevoix girls were led by Jeakle's second place finish, while Annie Dipert was fourth. Three other Rayders, Olivia Certa (eighth place), Lexie Barnes (13th) and Hilary Way (14th), earned all-league honorable mention. Charlevoix's Caroline Boss was 19th and Jane Balasz placed 20th.

Four Charlevoix boys earned honorable mention as Alex Gooch was 10th, Jackson Buday, 11th; Tony Fulk, 12th; and Chris Young, 14th. The Rayders' Brian Shuttler was 17th.

Luke Hawley placed sixth to lead the East Jordan boys, while Josh Wojan finished eighth. Other East Jordan boys: Tyler Nachazel, 18th; Rob Nemecek, 21st; Alex Hanson, 31st.

36th; and Ellen Brandell, 38th.

sixth, respectively.

Charlevoix Curves for Women under new ownership

Charlevoix's Curves For Women exercise club has recently changed hands.

The new owner is Nancy Allison and club manager is Evelyn Wujcik. The club has been a popular spot for women in Charlevoix for the past 10 years, and is located on the East end of Glen's Plaza near the corner of U.S. 31 and M-66.

Curves International is a franchised exercise club with locations all over the world, serving millions of women in their desire to experience improvement to their health and to maintain a high level of wellness.

Allison said the exercise itself can be low impact or high intensity, whichever an individual desires. The club offers trained coaches who guide new members through the routine, and continue to be available for guidance in the correct use of the equipment, as well as inspirational coaching.

"The Curves concept is certainly intriguing in the way it works so well for so many," Allison said. "New members are always welcome."

In an effort to provide more convenient hours for their clients, Curves of Charlevoix has expanded its hours of operation. The hours are 6 a.m.-1:30 p.m. and 3:30-7:30 p.m., Monday-Friday and from 8-11 a.m. on Saturday.

Allison invites anyone interested in learning more about Curves of Charlevoix to call the club at (231) 547-3330 and set up an appointment to visit and try out the machines, and he guided through the circuit.

She noted that Curves is running a special membership drive for the month of October.

Blissfest seeks designs for next year's festival

Blissfest Music Organization is inviting all artists to submit designs for the 31st Annual Blissfest Festival.

Blissfest officials said they are looking for designs that are distinctive, imaginative and original and project the Blissfest theme. Organizers encourage all creative approaches from realism to free flowing whimsical designs.

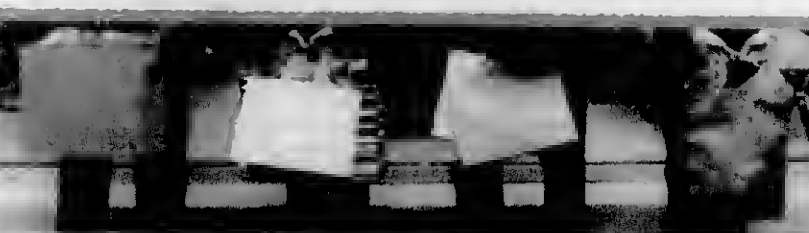

The challenge for artists is to balance graphic sensibilities with artistic fine art detail, organization officials said. The design can include music and/or dance imagery such as instruments, musicians and/or dancers as well as the essence of an outdoor music campout.

Organizers want artists to keep in mind that the Blissfest Festival features folk music as well as innovative acoustic and roots music with a mission of cultural enrichment, heritage and diversity.

The design selected will be used on Blissfest T-shirts as well as on posters, flyers and other publications. The winner will receive $250 cash, a weekend pass to the festival and a T-shirt with their winning design. Five runners-up entries will each receive one weekend pass to the festival.

Entries must be received no later than Nov. 12. Interested artists can find the contest details and rules on the Blissfest website at www.blissfest.org/logo-rules.html. Questions may be directed to Jim Gillépie at (231) 348-7047.

City cuts back junk collection to save money

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The City of Charlevoix will soon cut its weekly residential junk pickup program back to alternating weeks in a move expected to save about $22,000 in tax dollars.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved a new three-year contract with American Waste to provide curbside pickup for city residents of unwanted or junk items such as old furniture, carpet, certain appliances (but not household trash). The bid also includes trash collection for the city's various building's around town.

City street superintendent Pat Elliott said the costs in the bid from American Waste were up slightly from the previous contract, but were far below those submitted by the only other bidder, Waste Management.

Elliott recommended, and the council agreed, to change the service to the alternating week program. He said it may take a while to get residents used to the alternating week schedule, but he said he does not feel the change would have a significant impact on the service residents get.

The council gave its approval with the direction to Elliott that the change not take effect until after Jan. 1, to allow city staff time to communicate the change to its residents.

Some members of the council suggested that the pickup could take place on a first and third Monday of the month schedule, which would save even more money because it would eliminate two more pickup dates per year.

The change also has the potential to save city residents a few dollars on their tax bills as well. The year-round curbside rubbish pickup service, along with city-provided curbside brush and yard waste pickup is

Charlevoix man dies in one-car crash

A Charlevoix man died from injuries he sustained in a single-vehicle traffic crash along the Lake Michigan shoreline Thursday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the deceased as James J. Seeger, 58, of Charlevoix. Seeger was transported to Munson Medical Center by Northlight EMS for treatment of a serious head injury following the crash, police said. Seeger died shortly after 4 a.m. Friday morning, authorities said.

Schneider said emergency crews were call to Lakeshore

Drive West of Spring Street in Charlevoix Township shortly after 6 p.m. Thursday to a report of a single vehicle crash at that location. Emergency crews found Seeger inside a 2001 Pontiac Firebird that was on its roof on the rocks that lie between Lakeshore Drive and Lake Michigan. Firefighters from the Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township fire departments along with crews from Bergmann Marine had to use extrication tools and a crane to free Seeger from the wrecked car.

The crash remains under investigation.

Court of Appeals tosses Anderson permit revocation

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A years-long legal battle over the proposed construction of a home and attached boathouse on Round Lake hit another milestone last week when the Michigan Court of Appeals threw out an earlier decision in which a previously-approved building permit was revoked.

In its unpublished opinion of Oct. 26, the three-judge appellate panel found that Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas should not have issued an order requiring the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals to review the issuance of a zoning permit to James and Patricia Anderson — the property owners who are seeking to build on their property at 300 East Dixon Ave.

In March of 2007 the Charlevoix Zoning Department issued a permit for the project to the Andersons. On May 14, 2007 a Eldon Johnson, a neighbor to the Anderson's property appealed the issuance of the zoning permit with the city's zoning board of appeals citing seeking interpretation of several provisions of the city's zoning ordinance. In July, 2007 the zoning board of appeals found that it could not hear the appeal because it had been brought more than 30 days after the original permit was issued. Several later appeals up the judicial chain were also denied.

While those appeals were pending, Johnson and other neighbors sought an injunction against the project arguing that the issuance of the permit would lead to an immediate violation of numerous provisions of the zoning ordinance. After being sent to and returned from U.S. District Court, on March 24, 2009, Judge Pajtas issued an order requiring the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals to review the issuance of the permit.

"Thereafter, the ZBA held a hearing and found that the majority of plaintiffs' arguments concerning zoning ordinance violations were without merit, but nevertheless revoked the permit because certain features of the boathouse violated the ordinance," the court of appeals wrote in its procedural history of the case.

In May of this year, the zoning board of appeals approved the issuance of the permit based after the Andersons made some revisions to their proposal.

In its opinion released last week, the court of appeals found that Judge Pajtas should not have ordered the zoning board of appeals to review the issuance of the permit in the first place because the matter was barred by the expiration of the 30-day appeal period in 2007 and secondly because the zoning board of appeals did not fail to perform a clear legal duty.

City planner Mike Spencer said Monday that he has not reviewed the court of appeals decision, and does not yet know what it will mean for the future of the proposed project.

City manager Rob Strabel said it is possible that the $22,000 savings could mean taxpayer see a slight reduction in what they pay for the pickup services, but that will depend where the city's overall taxable value comes in next year. Right now, city officials are expecting that number to dip again.

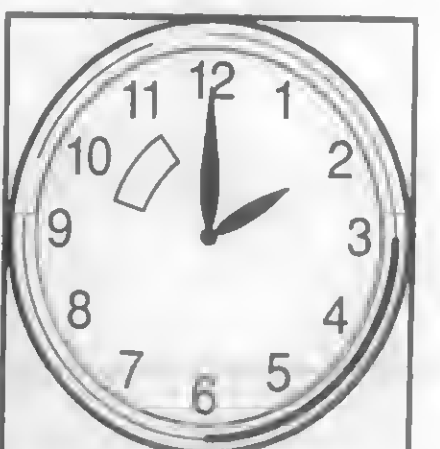

Elliott said he will draw up a schedule in the next few weeks so that the information can go out in winter tax bills and other upcoming city communications.

Science and politics: A dangerous mixture

The Earth is warming gradually, mostly because the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is increasing. Human industrial activities and the use of fossil fuel are a major reason for the increased carbon dioxide. That is as close to an indisputable fact as science can provide.

Consider, however, that 19 out of 20 candidates for contested seats in the United States Senate question publicly or ignore the science of global warming and oppose any sort of comprehensive legislation to deal with it. That attitude is certainly not science. It is the confusion of science with politics. The mixture of science with politics is a pervasive and extremely troublesome condition in the United States today. Among members of the Tea Party, 14 percent believe that global warming is an environmental problem. In the population at large, 49 percent believe it is. Eight percent of Tea Party members are complete deniers of global warming, compared with one percent of the rest of the population, according to the results of a CBS/NY Times poll. More than half of Tea Party members believe there will be no serious effects from global warming. Fifteen percent of the rest of the population think there will be serious effects.

The problem of mixing science and politics is that scientific truth can then be seen as something that can be determined by a majority vote. To be clear, scientific truth can never be determined by majority vote or be the application of "common sense." Scientists, the people who actually DO science, will always be a tiny minority of the population. Their information can be overwhelmed by a determined majority who will vote into office people willing to deny global warming, evolution, sensible health practices and President Obama's citizenship. Consider for a moment a national congress composed of people, who for political reasons, will vote for laws and rules that deny well-established scientific truths.

There is a sad but telling historical example of the triumph of politics over science. In the 1930's when Joseph Stalin was ruling Russia, a renegade geneticist named T. D. Lysenko convinced Stalin that Lysenko's ideas about inheritance of characteristics in agricultural crops were correct. Lysenko believed, with no scientific evidence, that acquired characteristics could be passed on to the next generation of crops. For example, he believed if wheat plants were chilled during early growth, the seeds from those plants would produce wheat with resistance to cold. The idea was genetic nonsense, and all the world outside Russia knew that. Lysenko so convinced Stalin that crop scientists who opposed Lysenko's ideas were imprisoned or sent to Siberia. For 30 years, an absolutely false idea about genetics was the official political and scientific position of the Russian government, and anyone who opposed it was not allowed to practice their science.

The Congress of the United States, with the power of the purse can operate much like the dictatorship of Stalin. The decision about who gets government support for their science should be based on the value of the ideas, not on political position of those seeking aid. A Congress that can deny governmental support for stem cell research studies that examine global warming. That same Congress could deny the truths of evolutionary science and withdraw financial support for its teaching.

Scientific truth cannot be subject to majority vote. Such denial would put us in the same place as Russia under Stalin or Iran at present, where denial of the Jewish Holocaust is government policy. Mixing science and politics is a frighteningly bad idea, and it seems to be one we as a society are beginning to embrace.

RELAY FOR LIFE ORGANIZERS SAY 'THANKS'

Editor:
As part of this year's American Cancer Society Relay For Life committee, I would like to thank the residents of Charlevoix County for their generosity and support. Sixteen teams participated in this year's event, which took place on August 14 at Rotary Park in Boyne City, and raised more than $35,000 to help the society's fight for every birthday threatened by every cancer, in our community and throughout the world. This outstanding show of support proves that the people of Charlevoix County stand shoulder-to-shoulder with the American Cancer Society to achieve its mission of saving lives by helping people get well, by helping people stay well, by finding cures and fighting back.

We were honored to be joined by 38 survivors who walked the opening Survivors Lap, officially kicking off this year's event. These survivors

GREAT LAKES ENERGY OFFERS THANKS IN WAKE OF STORM

Editor:

The two-day wind storm that hit Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area last week was truly something I have never seen in my utility career. Since Oct. 26, when the storm began, we restored electricity to more than 95,000 members in all of the counties we serve. That's most of our membership!

Last week was a long week for our lineworkers, dispatchers, member service reps and field employees whose teamwork, calm resolve and many hours of dedicated service helped us shine when things seemed to be at their darkest for Great Lakes Energy.

During the height of the storm last Wednesday afternoon, the winds were never more fiercely destructive. Several substations lost power, including the one serving our Boyne City headquarters.

This was the worst storm we've experienced since Great Lakes Energy was formed 11 years ago. Restoration efforts

East Jordan Elementary School to host military supply drive

On Veterans' Day, Nov. 11, East Jordan Elementary School is hosting a military supply drive called "Santa for Soldier." The event, which will take place in the gymnasium, is an effort to make Christmas a little brighter for the men and women of the U.S. military who are serving overseas this holiday season.

The drive is a collaborative effort between East Jordan Elementary School and Beaver Island Community School National Honor Society and Beaver Island Volunteer Corps on Beaver Island in hopes to gather enough goods and gifts for Christmas packages for at least 30 soldiers, one of which is Beaver Island resident Brett Maudrie who is serving with the 101st Airborne in Afghanistan.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the effort should bring items to be donated to East Jordan Elementary School from 8 a.m. to noon on Thursday, Nov. 11.

People living on Beaver Island who wish to contribute to the effort may drop items off at the school anytime until Nov. 10.

Donations are also being accepted the high postage costs associated with shipping the packages. Suggested items to send soldiers are toiletries, games, prepackaged cookies, candy, magazines, gaming devices, powdered drink mix singles and music CDs. A quick search on the Internet can provide other ideas.

Anyone with questions about the drive or who would like to make a donation for postage should contact Tara Palmer via e-mail at tpalmer@ejps.org. Beaver Island residents should contact Judy Boyle at judy@boyle.biz.

Charlevoix County makes job offer for human resources position day, the board selected the individual they want for the job.

Initially, board members declined to identify the candidate, but released his name on Tuesday.

"We want to make sure the candidate has the opportunity to notify his or her current employer before we release the name," county commissioner Chris Christensen said last week.

They will now officially offer the position to the candidate and will begin contract negotiations.

"We want to enter into a contractual agreement so there are clear expectations of what we want," Christensen said.

The county has never had a human resources coordinator and is anxious to have someone in a dedicated position to manage the personnel of the county.

"I think it's a very important position. There are a lot of decisions we need to make and we don't know all the laws and regulations that deal with personnel to make those decisions," Roloff said.

She went on to say, the human resources coordinator will really help with the many personnel issues in the county to include hiring, purchasing, personnel policies, employee compensation and other duties that will help the county run smoothly and efficiently.

There is still some work to be done with contract negotiations before the human resources coordinator can start, but the board is hoping to have the candidate they chose working soon.

"We would like to have him or her on the job by the middle of November, but that depends on the contract and notice to his or her current job," Roloff said.

Senior volunteer group hands out awards

The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program of Charlevoix and Emmet County recognized two of its volunteers and one organization at its 26th annual Volunteer Recognition Luncheon, on Oct. 12 at the Petoskey-Bay View Country Club.

This year's event which drew 140 RSVP volunteers and their guests was sponsored Airway Oxygen and Northern Springs Management and presenting sponsors were Angel Heart Home Care, Comfort Keepers, Meijer, Inc. and Seniors Helping Seniors. The theme for this year's event was "Making Connections." Kathy Bardins, downtown events coordinator for Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the group about the social and emotional value of volunteering.

Two volunteers were recognized for outstanding service. Nancy Ann Hellman of Charlevoix County is a regular volunteer at Raven Hill Discovery Center in East Jordan, teaching arts classes and coordinating volunteer work days.

Betty Luebke earned an award as an outstanding Emmet County volunteer. Organization officials said Betty has been a valuable assistant to the RSVP staff and to anyone who needs help at the Petoskey Friendship Center, where she steps in to help at a moment's notice. She also serves at United Way and a number of other Petoskey area nonprofits.

This year the Bergmann Center of Charlevoix received RSVP's "Supporting our Success" award, for welcoming volunteers to their organization. The Bergmann Center provides programming for physically and mentally challenged adults in a workshop setting, and has provided volunteers with additional service opportunities this year through their new Resale Shop.

RSVP of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties is the area's largest senior service program, and is sponsored by Friendship Centers of Emmet County — Council on Aging. The organization was founded in 1984, and has more than 330 active volunteers, serving 110 partner agencies (nonprofits and healthcare organizations) throughout the two-county area. The organization's mission is to recruit, train and mobilize an effective force of volunteers, age 55 and over, who are willing to contribute their skills and life experiences to serve nonprofit organizations in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, with the goal of strengthening their communities. RSVP is a Senior Corps Program through the Corporation for National and Community Service.

For information about serving through RSVP, contact Sue Ann Bouwense, project director, at (231) 347-3211 or (888) 347-0369, ext. 29.

Use "Open Enrollment" to Help Meet Financial Goals

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

November is a popular month for "open enrollment"—that time when you can choose from the options offered in your employer's benefits package. By making the right moves in some key areas—such as your 401(k) and life insurance—you can help protect your family and boost your progress toward your long-term financial goals. Let's consider your 401(k) first. If you haven't taken part in your 401(k) plan, you need to review the benefits of this excellent retirement-savings vehicle. First, you contribute pre-tax dollars to your 401(k), so the more you put in, the lower your adjusted gross income—and the lower your annual tax bill. Also, your 401(k) earnings accumulate on a tax-deferred basis. Furthermore, your employer may offer a matching contribution, and if you're not participating in your plan or not putting in enough to earn the match, you're essentially leaving money "on the table." So, if you're not already investing in your 401(k), now is the time to get started. And if you've already been putting money in your 401(k), you may want to use the open enrollment period to increase your contributions or to rebalance your investment choices in response to changes in investment performance or in your goals or risk tolerance. Of course, depending on your plan, you may also be able to make changes in your 401(k) at other times in the year.

During open enrollment, you'll also want to look at your insurance choices. Your employer may offer a certain amount of life insurance, and possibly disability insurance, at no cost. Clearly, this coverage can be beneficial—but is it enough to meet your family's needs?

To answer this question, you'll need to review at least three key areas of your family's finances:

- Debts—Try to calculate your overall debt load—mortgage, car payments, credit cards and so on.

- Education—If you are planning on helping your children pay for college, try to estimate these costs. Keep in mind the considerable differences in expenses between colleges: public versus private and in-state versus out-of-state. Keep in mind that college costs have been rising faster than the overall cost of living.

- Income replacement—Try to determine about how much of your income would need to be replaced for your family to maintain its current lifestyle.

Once you've made these types of calculations, you'll be in a better position to know if the life and disability coverage offered by your employer is sufficient to meet your needs. You might be able to purchase additional insurance through your employer, but even this coverage may not be enough. That's why you may want to work with a professional financial advisor—someone who can help you identify any gaps that may exist in your coverage and recommend any additional coverage to fill this void.

You may also find other advantages to individually owned insurance, such as portability—you can take your policy with you, no matter where you work—and affordability—you may find that some policies, particularly term life insurance, may be less costly than the supplemental insurance you could purchase from your employer.

So, review both your insurance situation and your 401(k) plan during the open enrollment calendar. It's a great time to make those choices that can help you during all the seasons of your life.

Weathervane to host Neighbors in Need event

The employees of Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix will again be collecting donations to supply local families with Thanksgiving meals through a popular giving program called Neighbors In Need.

Weathervane staff will work with local health and human service agencies such as the Salvation Army, local churches, Manna Food Project, Charlevoix Area Food Pantry and the Women's Resource Center to identify families in need. They are also working closely with Charlevoix's teachers to seek families who would not request aid, but are grateful to be recipients. Last year, 20 families enjoyed a traditional Thanksgiving dinner, thanks to the generosity of Stafford's Weathervane staff and guests.

"In this difficult economic time, we are hoping to make Thanksgiving a truly memorable one for each and every family in Charlevoix County," Jeff Sprecksell, general manager of Stafford's Weathervane said. "With the generous contributions of our neighbors and Stafford's Hospitality, I know that the possibilities are endless. Thank you for your support."

As part of the program, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant employees and other volunteers will raise funds for dinners, prepare and package them in the restaurant kitchen and deliver the meals to area families.

"Our staff wants to make this Thanksgiving special for everyone," said Sprecksell.

To make a monetary or time donation, please contact Jennifer Donker or Jeff Sprecksell at (231) 547-4311.

Edith Willette Johnson: July 19, 1920-Oct. 29, 2010

The angels have gathered our precious mother in their arms, and enraptured by her golden light, they winged their way to heaven.

Edith was born July 19, 1920, in Lansing to Otto Eldon Bebee and Hazel Ethel (Smedley) Bebee. She attended East Lansing schools and graduated from Eastern High School in 1939.

She excelled in the arts and was accepted at the Julliard School of Arts for her clay sculptures and water colors. However, she declined her art education in order to remain home to help her mother care for her maternal grandmother. Such was the caring nature of our mother.

She was a beautiful spirit, always kind and loving with an endless nurturing heart. She grew up during the great depression and even in the most difficult times she could always remain positive. She spent countless hours on her grandparents' farm just outside of Lansing. She participated in sports, was a referee for volleyball games and was the assistant coach for the Lansing Laurels baseball team for five years. She played the violin having received lessons from the Master Violinist Leutzi.

She delivered her two youngest brothers at home. She was especially close to her father and would often travel to Northern Michigan to hunt and fish. She collected sports memorabilia and loved her Tigers and Spartans games.

She worked as a personal assistant to the Scotts family of Lansing and as an elevator operator for the hotel Olds. While working here, she met many famous actors, actresses, sports stars, and government officials including Eleanor Roosevelt. During this time she met and fell in love with the love of her life, Gerald Norman Johnson, who was boarding at her grandmother's house.

They were married June 5, 1942, in Lansing and made their home in a little house on Holmes Street. In December of 1942, Gerald was drafted into World War II. Edith and their baby Buddy would struggle through the war years waiting for his return. They would then move north and eventually make their home at their farm on Maple Grove Road in Hayes Township. Here they would raise their family of eight children and Edith's two youngest brothers. She loved her farm, her gardens and taking care of her family. No matter how dark the days, or difficult the trials of life, her light would always guide us home. She was an artist and continued to draw pictures and write in her daily journal up until a month before her death. She loved to read novels of the Western history and Native American culture. She collected elephants her entire life, loved flowers of all kinds and looking for rocks.

She was the sunshine of our lives. Kind, gentle and loving, she was grace personified. To look into her eyes you knew you were loved. Her faith in God was never ending. Through the suffering of stage 4 cancer, she was dealt the blow from the death of her beloved son Gilbert, her faith did not falter. Through the years of watching her husband Gerald battle Alzheimer's, her faith never faltered. In the end it was her faith that set her free.

A beloved daughter, wife, sister, mother, grandma and friend, she will be missed forever. She is survived by her children, Gerald Johnson, Mike (Rosemary) Johnson, Hazel (Gary) Loder, Judy Johnson, Cindy (Steve) Johncheek, Melody (Gerry) Marquardt and Bonnie Johnson. She is survived by her grandchildren, Dianna (Ron), Michael II (Heather), David (Andrea), Laura (Tim), Jessica (Tim), Steve (Kim), Matthew (Taryn), Tyson, Kristine, Gerald (Valerie), Jared and Sarah. She is survived by her great-grandchildren, Mike III, Amber, Chad, Cameron, Jayde, Kayla, Cash, Ali, Morgan and Michael, Star, Naomi, Lillymarie, Lilah, Lillian, Kimberly, Margo, Noah, Kaylee, Gabriel, Tanner, Samuel, Forest, Rylin, Meghan, Madeline, Violet, Camden and Zachary. She is survived by her youngest brother Rex (Linda) Bebee. She is also survived by many dear nieces, nephews and friends.

She was preceded in death by her beloved husband Gerald in 2008; her parents Otto and Hazel; brothers G.L., Claire and Tex Bebee; sister Marion DeBlake; and her beloved son Gilbert.

We take comfort in knowing that she is with our Father and her beloved son Gilbert. How lucky are the angels to be blessed with such a beautiful light. A memorial service honoring the lives of Gerald and Edith and their burial will take place in the spring. Memorial contributions can be sent to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. We will be forever grateful to them for helping us honor our mother and father in carrying out their wish to die in their own home on their beautiful farm.

Arrangements are being handled by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Less interest in most recent mineral rights auction

RACHEL BROUGHAM

LANSING — The rush to acquire mineral rights in Northern Michigan has slowed.

Despite high anticipation, this week's state auction of mineral rights produced far less than the profit generated at the last auction in May.

Approximately 451,000 acres of state-owned oil and gas lease rights were up for auction this week and when it was over, just under 274,000 acres were leased.

The auction brought in $10,237,261. "We feel this was a fairly typical auction for us," said Mary Dettloff, public information officer for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment. "Obviously it wasn't as big as the May auction, but we feel it went well."

At the May 4 auction, 118,000 acres of mineral rights were leased and brought in an unprecedented, $178 million.

The frenzy was caused by a test well in Missaukee County that tapped into Collingwood shale last winter. The well, owned by EnCana, at first produced 2.5 million cubic feet of natural gas a day for 30 days. Production has slowed since, but is still considered strong by industry standards.

In terms of acreage offered, this week's state auction was the third largest since they began in 1929.

"With the amount of acreage we had up, we leased just over 60 percent of it," Dettloff said.

The minimum bid this week was $13 an acre, with the average bid being $35 an acre. A piece of property in Cheboygan County brought in the highest bid, $2,600.

About 80,000 acres were up for auction in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Just over 49,000 were leased.

Curtis Talley Jr., a farm management educator with the MSU Extension, said while things have slowed since the May auction, there are some companies still seeking permits to drill in Northern Michigan.

EnCana recently built a well near Indian River in Cheboygan County, which Talley believes could produce similar results to the drill in Missaukee County.

EnCana has not released results of the Cheboygan County well.

"Drilling of the Marcellus shale in Pennsylvania began in 2001 and they are still leasing," Talley said. "You never know how it will happen and how big it can get, you just have to ride the flow."

Dettloff agreed. "We feel there is still very strong interest in natural gas here in Michigan," she noted.

Money from the auction must go into a natural resources trust fund as stated in the state constitution. The fund provides grants for the purchase of land for recreational uses, or because the land has scenic beauty or is in

Four area charter school bands to perform combined concert

Four area charter schools are coming together for a massed band concert slated to take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 16, on stage at Concord Academy and Montessori School in Alba.

Bands from Concord Academy Petoskey, directed by Duane Wilson; Concord Academy Boyne, directed by Mickey Owen; Concord Academy Antrim; directed by Dave Pugh; and Northwest Academy, directed by Gary Stutzman will be participating in a special day of music.

Beginning at 1 p.m., each band will perform two prepared pieces for a clinician, Dave Overton, a band director from southern Michigan. Overton will offer a 20 minute music clinic for each group on the music they have prepared. At the end of the four clinics that will take place between, the bands will combine to prepare four more numbers that each hand has been working on for the past two months.

Concord Antrim band parents will provide a meal for the bands and the students will have time to visit and get to know each other.

The evening concert is open to the public will begin at 7 p.m. and each band will perform one number from their clinic music and the evening will be capped off with the massed band performance. As a special extra treat, the Concord Academy Boyne Choir performing a favorite selection.

The trust fund has a cap of $500,000,000.

When the cap is reached, all mineral revenue then goes to the state park endowment fund.

"At this point, it's hard to tell if we will reach the cap this year," Dettloff said. "We'll know more at the end of the year when they close the books."

The next state mineral rights auction is scheduled for May 2011.

Wind storm keeps 9-1-1 dispatchers busy

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

During last week's two-day wind storm, dispatchers at the Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet Central Dispatch Authority, handled 3,713 calls, including 105 calls in just one hour.

"Our call logs really show how things spiked severely on the second day of the storm," central dispatch executive director Bob Bradley said. "We handled 299 events on Tuesday, Oct. 26, and 657 on Wednesday, Oct. 27, more than twice the volume."

Bradley added that the numbers don't tell the whole story because there may have been multiple agencies working on some of the events.

On Wednesday, Oct. 27, calls spiked between noon and 1 p.m., reaching 105 events for the hour.

"The whole tri-county area pulled together very well over the course of the storm," Bradley said. "Law enforcement and fire departments were constantly handling multiple calls, especially the second day. Area road commissions played a big part in helping clear roads as well."

Bradley also praised his staff.

Usually, a crew of four are on duty in the dispatch center, but on Wednesday, some crew members that were either on a scheduled day off or had just finished a shift at 7 a.m., stayed to help with the high call volume.

"I am proud of the way they all worked together in conditions that were probably our highest call volume ever," Bradley said. "The public is also to be commended for heeding the storm warnings. I'm sure there were some injuries due to the storm, but the potential for lives being lost was high in an event like this."

CHARLEVOIX AREA SPARED FROM WORST OF THE WIND

Northern Michigan felt the wrath of Mother Nature Tuesday Oct. 26 through Thursday, Oct. 28 as dual weather systems blew in and blew out of the region, bringing with them ferocious winds which tore off roofs, downed trees and snapped power poles.

Some of these winds touched Category 1 hurricane range, as wind gusts clocked at 78 mph at the Mackinac Bridge.

The storm — which formed earlier in the week when two low-pressure systems joined forces near Nebraska and Montana — battered much of the Midwest before moving into Ontario, Canada.

The National Weather Service reported the strongest wind gusts on Wednesday, Oct.

27 coming out of Mackinac City at 78 mph at the Mackinac Bridge; 54 mph in Harbor Springs; 51 mph in Petoskey; and 48 mph in Charlevoix.

Emmet County Sheriff Pete Wallin and Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider reported numerous downed trees throughout both counties, as well as power lines. There were no injuries reported as a result of the weather, but 9-1-1 operators received a steady stream of calls during the storm.

Damage was easy to find all around Northern Michigan. In downtown Petoskey, a three-story building, located at 421 Howard Street, which houses Julianne Tomatoes Cafe on its first floor, was losing bricks from its structure into an adjacent parking area. The building's roofing was also being ripped off its structure and flapping in the breeze, as gusts continued to pummel the area. Around noon Wednesday, emergency officials were dispatched to the Harbor Plaza, near the Harbor Springs Airport, to a report of metal roofing being ripped from the building.

The Mackinac bridge Authority reported -- between 12:15 and 1 p.m. -- that the bridge was closed to all traffic as a result of the high winds, but was re-opened shortly thereafter.

The U.S. Coast Guard issued a strong storm warning for all mariners on the Great Lakes.

Petty Officer Sean Rozboril, representing U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, said this warning is a "step above a gale."

A National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration buoy, located halfway between North Manitou and Washington islands in Lake Michigan, was reporting 20-foot waves around 5 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 27, and 15-and-a-half foot waves later that morning.

As far as records, Mike Boguth, meteorologist at the Gaylord National Weather Service office, said the entire system, which bridged most of the Midwest, was definitely historic.

"This system was on par with other historic storms," he said. "The 1998 storm, the Edmund Fitzgerald storm of Nov. 10, 1975 and the great Armistice Day storm in 1940 all took similar tracks."

The system spawned a barometric pressure reading in Minnesota of 28.20 inches — the lowest ever recorded in the region and what could be expected in a Category 3 hurricane, he said. Gaylord's pressure bottomed out at 28.95 a weaker Category 1-2 hurricane, Boguth said.

While windstorms are nothing new to Northern Michigan, Boguth said its duration — essentially 48 hours — sets it apart.

"By all counts — and we don't like to throw around the word 'historic' very often in the weather department — this was a historic storm ... a phenomenal storm of which we don't see the likes, fortunately, for 20-30 years."

Around 4:30 a.m. Wednesday a weather buoy located between north and south Manitou Islands recorded wave heights around 20 feet.

The National Weather Service office in Gaylord reported the following top wind gust speeds during last week's windstorm. All times were on Wednesday except as noted:

Mackinac Bridge, 78 mph, 3:25 p.m.
Grand Traverse Light, 65 mph, 12:05 p.m.
Gaylord, 63 mph, 11:45 a.m.
Pellston, 59 mph, 1:54 p.m.
Ironton, 54 mph, 6:17 p.m.
Beaver Island, 54 mph, 11:56 a.m.
Harbor Springs, 54 mph, 12:15 p.m.
Traverse City, 52 mph, 10:53 a.m.
Petoskey, 51 mph, 11:49 a.m.
East Jordan, 49 mph, 2:40 p.m., (Oct. 26)
Charlevoix, 48 mph, 12:15 p.m.
Bellefleur, 39 mph, 9:05 p.m.

Drebenstedt, sons complete long-distance bike ride

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

By now, Charlevoix area resident and county commissioner Bob Drebenstedt and his sons have fully recovered from their 1,300-mile bike ride in the August heat to raise awareness of disabled veterans' issues.

In fact it was just a few days after completing their relay trek from Sault Ste. Marie to the Gulf of Mexico when they started planning their next trip next summer — out west.

Drebenstedt said despite the heat and some bugs, the trip went surprising well, and faster than expected. He said it took the trio of himself, 65, and sons Troy, 26, and Regan 23, about 11 days. The men rode in a relay format where two riders rode while the third drove their vehicle ahead 10 or 20 miles to wait for the other two. They men rode about 10-12 hours per day.

Aside from the heat, Drebenstedt said the only dark spot on the trip was when one of his son's bike fell off the back of their vehicle and they were unable to find it when they retraced their path.

Along the way, whenever the opportunity presented itself, the men would stop at VFW halls or American Legion posts to share their efforts with other veterans.

Drebenstedt himself is a disabled veteran, as is Troy who received a Purple Heart for injuries he received while serving in Afghanistan. Regan is currently in Army ROTC, and will be entering active duty after he graduates from college.

Drebenstedt said the two things that struck him most about the trip were how beautiful the countryside was and how friendly the people they met were.

He said next year the trio is considering a trip to Yellowstone National Park.

Three Northern Michigan hospices integrate services

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, Hospice of the Straits, and Hospice of the Sunrise Shore now offer integrated Hospice services throughout Northern Michigan as affiliates of Northern Michigan Regional Health System.

"Having all Hospice programs under the Northern Michigan Regional Health System umbrella has presented the opportunity for deliberate and systematic program integration resulting in efficiencies, cost reductions, and regional growth," said Reeze DeVet, president and CEO of Northern Michigan Regional Health System.

Devet said while drawing upon the strengths of each individual program, the new structure provides for the development of consistent clinical and business protocols, reduced redundancies, and a unity of purpose that will ensure not only continued, but expanded service provision throughout the region.

"Care is community-based and each program, staffed by people who live in and who are deeply committed to the communities they serve, has a strong history of service to northern Michigan," she said. "We embrace this integration to help us fulfill our continuum of care for the 22 counties we serve and our mission of providing care as we would expect for our own family."

Hospital offers AARP driving course

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is offering a two-session course for motorists who want a refresher in driver safety.

The sessions will take place from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Tuesday Nov. 16 and Wednesday, Nov. 17 at the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Community Health Education Center, 360 Connable Ave., across the parking lot from the Hospital's main entrance. The cost is $14 or $12 for AARP members.

The program is designed for drivers 50 years of age and older, although any age can attend. It discusses normal age-related physical changes that impact driving, such as eyesight, hearing, and reaction time, in an effort to make seniors safer drivers for more years to come. Traffic situations most challenging for seniors will be discussed. (Some insurance companies offer premium discounts to program graduates.)

Organizers said there are an estimated 4,000 licensed drivers in both Charlevoix and Emmet counties between the ages of 65 and 85. According to AARP, the organization conducts approximately 34,000 classes and more than 700,000 people complete the AARP Driver Safety Program nationwide each year. Four out of five graduates of the class report they adjusted their driving behavior as a result of taking the course.

The concert will include Layton "Skip" James as guest conductor and harpsichordist.

Other featured performers will include violinist Peggy Beck who will join Andy Tuck and James on Bach's Brandenburg Concerto #6. Paul Sonner, Bonnieta Benn and Grace Olson will be soloists on Bach's Concerto #4 and Benn will also be

The orchestra will also perform C.P.E. Bach's "Sinfonia #5 in G Minor."

Tickets are $15 for adults and students 18 and younger and all active duty military members are free. Tickets are available on TREATickets.com, through the orchestra's website or by calling (231) 487-0010.

Rayders in the hunt for district title this week

The Charlevoix Rayder Varsity Volleyball team, with a record of 42-11-2 and fresh off clinching their sixth Lake Michigan Conference championship in the last eight seasons are the favorites in the Class C district at Mancelona this week.

Harbor Springs defeated Mancelona to kick off the tournament Monday. Harbor Springs will now face Boyne City in a Wednesday, Nov. 3, semifinal. Wednesday's other semifinal pits the Rayders against East Jordan. The final is Thursday, Nov. 4.

The Rayders and Red Devils are no strangers, having met four times this season with Charlevoix winning all four matchups.

"Our game plan is to go out there and just play hard for every point, and play our game," Charlevoix coach Liz Grunch said last week. "We want to focus on the small things that matter, like moving our feet and transition. Now is the time for us to bring it together."

Allison Hankins leads the Rayders with 410 kills, while Jenna Way has 287, and Katie Mays has 282.

Way, the setter, has 838 assists and a team-high 90 aces, while Hankins has a team-best 120 blocks including 44 solos. Kelly Greyerbiehl leads Charlevoix's defense with 738 digs and is 90 percent on serve reception.

"I know this season has been hard on the girls with me being out quite a bit," said Grunch, who is due to deliver a baby any day. "But we've had other coaches really step up and help out. Our girls are focused and they know what they want. They've worked hard every day and they're not letting down."

Harbor, 21-11-8, is led by senior middle hitter Haley Kloss, junior Becca Morse, and senior setter Megan Mathews. Boyne City is led by hitters Veronica Sisson and Kylie Hicks.

City volleyball leagues forming

The City of Charlevoix Recreation Department is looking for people who are interested in joining a men's women's or co-ed recreational volleyball league for the 2010-2011 season. An organizational meeting will take place at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 17, at the city hall conference room. Team rosters will be due at that time along with a team registration fee of $125. See the www.cityofcharlevoix.org to download and print out the rules and team entry blank or e-mail teresah@cityofcharlevoix.org or call (231) 547-3252 for further information.

Habitec Security relocates to Charlevoix

MARK LINDSAY
SATURDAY
STAFF WRITER

Habitec Security, formerly of Boyne City, has moved to a new location in Charlevoix.

Now located on Bridge Street, Habitec Security serves the region of Northern Michigan from Cadillac north to the Mackinac Bridge.

The business, which specializes in custom home and commercial security systems, had been located in Boyne City for more than 10 years. This branch of Habitec is part of a larger security company based in Toledo, Ohio, with three main locations throughout Ohio and Michigan.

Habitec was founded in 1972 by James Smythe and is currently run by his son, John Smythe. The company has approximately 100 employees overall and maintains six local staff including general manager Paul Donat. Donat noted that every location is unique and tries to become a part of the community it is in, which helps them to better serve their customers' needs.

"We loved being in Boyne City," Donat said, adding, "The opportunity to be right on U.S. 31 was the right move for our business to grow."

Habitec leases space in Charlevoix, and now has more room to expand and be more centrally located to their customer base.

Donat said that they specialize in high end emergency reporting systems for new construction, which fits right in with much of the Charlevoix community's needs.

More than 50 percent of their clients are seasonal residents, Donat said, and they rely on Habitec to monitor and secure their homes during the winter months.

Habitec offers sales, installation and monitoring of all types of security systems. Such systems may be used to prevent intrusion, burglary, environmental issues such as storm damage and can even notify you of loss of power or low temperature in your home.

"Many seasonal residents take advantage of Habitec's monitoring services to prevent small issues such as a water leak from becoming disastrous," Donat noted.

Habitec also offers a unique service for people concerned about living independently while remaining safe. They offer a monitoring system that can be worn by the client at all times, even in the shower, giving them the ability to notify someone should they have an emergency.

"For elderly people living alone or people with special needs, this system can really help them become more independent," Donat added.

Habitec's system is monitored 24 hours a day and can be activated by the push of a button, but also includes a two-way voice communication option.

"Closed-circuit monitoring of homes has become very popular," said Donat.

He said they are installing camera systems for clients to watch their property remotely via the Internet more and more. Customers may want to simply keep an eye on their boat while docked behind their house, or they may want to watch over their pets or children while on vacation far away. Most systems range from one to 10 cameras placed throughout the home and property, but can be tailored to whatever needs you may have.

"Commercial systems are still our primary closed-circuit customers, but residential requests are growing rapidly," noted Donat.

Habitec Security is located at 1520 Bridge St., Charlevoix. Hours are 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday with evening and weekend appointments available.

For more information, call (231) 582-5660 or visit www.habitecsecurity.com.

Northern Michigan Sports Medicine to sponsor food drive

A new holiday food drive to support the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry is planned from 4-8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 11, at Northern Michigan Sports Medicine of Charlevoix, located at 06510 M-66 North in the Kmart plaza.

The public is invited to enjoy an open house reception with refreshments and live music by Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra musicians.

"Holding a food drive before the holiday season is the time when food banks really need assistance," said Northern Michigan Sports Medicine Center physical therapist and clinic manager Joel Smith. "Our staff is excited to bring the community together and fill our pool with food."

The sports medicine center will attempt to fill a 24-foot-by-12-foot area — the same size as an aquatic therapy pool — with food.

The open house reception will feature clinic tours, prize give-aways, featured therapy services, refreshments and live musical entertainment.

"We hope to make this an annual event that the community looks forward to as an evening of music, charity, and fun," Smith said.

Cash donations are needed to buy food in bulk, with each dollar donated allowing 5 to 15 pounds of food to be purchased. The top foods needed for the food bank include proteins such as canned meats, tuna, chicken and peanut butter; soups and stew; rice and pasta; cereal, including oatmeal; canned vegetables, including tomatoes and tomato sauce; canned or dried beans and peas; canned fruits; fruit juice (in cans, plastic bottles or boxes) that is 100 percent juice; prepared box mixes such as macaroni and cheese and Hamburger Helper; and shelf-stable milk.

For those unable to stop by the Charlevoix clinic, food and cash donations can be dropped off at both Northern Michigan Sports Medicine Center branches in Petoskey as well as its Harbor Springs location.

A sign of community spirit

A group of officials from the City of East Jordan, the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce and community leaders and service club representatives recently gathered for a ribbon cutting ceremony for the community's new electronic message sign, located in Sportsman's Park. The Sherman Family of Burnette Foods, Inc. donated the electronic sign and the custom made frame. The fieldstone planter was a project of the East Jordan Lions and Lioness Clubs and the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce serves as the programming site. Chamber officials said the sign has already become a main message center for residents and visitors to the community.

Food and supply drive ongoing to benefit domestic violence shelter

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is currently in the midst of its annual Harvest Food and Supply Drive underway. According to organization officials, the food drive is critical in helping the non-profit agency collect non-perishable food and supplies for use by survivors of domestic violence and their children staying at the group's safe home.

The Women's Resource Center provides the domestic abuse shelter for women and their children in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Agency officials note that because the safe home is always in operation, the need for food and supplies is also constant.

"Gifts from local civic organizations, churches, schools and individuals help make the emergency shelter a 'home' for many individuals and families who may arrive with just the clothes on their backs," organization officials said.

During the past year, a total of 2,959 nights of lodging were provided to 177 women and children who found security through the organization's Safe Home program. An additional 465 women utilized the agency's non-residential domestic abuse counseling services.

Center officials said during the past year alone, food and supply costs at the safe home exceeded $25,000. Items needed include non-perishable food, paper products, cleaning supplies and personal items. Financial support is also essential and appreciated.

Officials said a donation of just $75 will feed and house a family of four at the Safe Home, for a week.

"Overseeing the many services in the domestic abuse and sexual assault program for more than 20 years, I have witnessed women fulfill their dreams," says Chris Krajewski, the center's domestic and sexual abuse program director. "I have seen courageous women overcome multiple obstacles to find safe places for themselves and their children. I believe in safety for all and hope the community will join in and support their dreams of hope."

For more information on the Safe Home Harvest Food and Supply Drive, or to arrange for pickup of donated items, call (231) 347-1572. Donations may be brought to the center's administrative office, or either Gold Mine Resale Shop located in Petoskey; Bondurant in Petoskey's Gaslight District. A list of needed items is available online at www.wrcnm.org, or by calling (231) 347-1572.

Man gets prison for break-in, assault on relatives

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

An East Jordan area man who beat up two relatives during a break-in at a home south of Charlevoix in August was sentenced to prison last week.

Greg Williams, 18, recently took advantage of a plea agreement with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office through which he pleaded guilty to charges of second degree home invasion, aggravated assault and resisting and obstructing police. In exchange for his pleas, two counts of resisting and obstructing police, a charge of use of a firearm in the commission of a felony and first degree home invasion were dismissed.

Shortly after midnight on Sunday, Aug. 22 Williams and another man broke into at a home on Wa Ba Noong Road, where William's great aunt and uncle and great grandfather live.

Authorities said Greg Williams' great-grandfather, Keith Williams, 73, reported that shortly after midnight he had heard some unusual scratching outside the home. Hearing the noise, he told police he grabbed his handgun and cocked it. Keith Williams told police that a short time later a masked man burst into his bedroom and the gun discharged with the bullet going into the wall. Keith Williams told police the masked man then beat him up, according to court documents.

Williams' great aunt and great uncle Cynthia and Keith Hanson, told police around the same time they were awakened by a different masked intruder who was holding a long gun and told them to stay in bed or he would kill them.

Keith Hanson, 65, told police he was able to determine that one of the intruders was Greg Williams because he was not wearing a mask at one point. Hanson told police both intruders then attacked him causing injuries.

Authorities said the victims reported that after the assaults, both intruders fled the scene.

Police said the injuries to both Keith Hanson and Keith Williams were serious enough require treatment at the hospital. Police reported that the house "had blood all over from the attacks" when they arrived.

On Friday, Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas sentenced Williams to serve 100 months to 15 years in prison on the home invasion charge and 16 months to 24 months on the resisting and obstructing charges. The judge ruled because the resisting and obstructing incident happened at the time of his arrest, the day after the break-in that the two sentences will be served consecutively (one after the other) instead of at the same time, which is typical in most criminal cases.

On Friday, Keith Hanson said he has suffered double and triple-vision and headaches ever since the assault and Cynthia Hanson said she believes Greg Williams is a danger to society, "if he's willing to beat his great-grandfather."

Greg Williams apologized for his actions and said he was under the influence of drugs at the time of the attack.

On Sept. 8 police arrested the person they believe was the second man involved in the break-in, Elwood Leroy Stainbrook, 47, of East Jordan. Stainbrook's case was turned over to tribal authorities because he is a tribal member and the incident happened on tribal lands. An update on Stainbrook's case was not available before presstime Tuesday.

Janik finalist for Kingsley superintendent position

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix Public School's superintendent Chet Janik has been named as one of four finalists for to fill the currently vacant position of superintendent for Kingsley Area Schools.

Janik was among three other candidates who were interviewed last week by the Kingsley school board to fill the position left vacant when the district's last superintendent Lynn Gullekson retired at the end of last year.

The other three candidates included Lisa DiCamillo, coordinator of special programs and projects for Elkton-Pigeon-Bayport Laker Schools; Clio high school principal Keith Smith; and Kingsley Area Schools business manager James Mouch.

Janik has been the district's superintendent since May 2007.

During the board member comment portion of Monday's regular monthly Charlevoix school board meeting, board member Bo Boss took note of Janik's candidacy for the position, calling on his fellow board members to pull together to do whatever possible to keep Janik at Charlevoix schools.

Janik, who lives in Traverse City, told the Courier he applied for the position with Kingsley Schools, which has about 500 more students than Charlevoix, because it would be a career stepping stone for him.

He said he expects by the end of this week he should hear something from Kingsley Schools about the direction that the school board is heading regarding its superintendent search.

Munson gets 10-15 years for sex assaults on child

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix man who sexually assaulted a young girl on multiple occasions will spend at least the next 10 years in prison after he took advantage of a plea agreement recently.

Virgil Amos Munson, 39, had been scheduled to face a three-day jury trial beginning on Dec. 6 on three counts of first degree criminal sexual conduct and three charges of possession of child sexually abusive material. The charges are punishable by up to life in prison and up to four years in prison respectively. He also faced a habitual offender, fourth offense sentencing enhancement that would have increased the time he could have served if he were convicted of the charges.

Instead, last month Munson pleaded guilty to one of third degree criminal sexual conduct, a 15-year felony, and two of possessing child sexually abusive material. In exchange for his pleas the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office dismissed the first degree criminal sexual conduct charges and the habitual offender enhancement.

Charlevoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara said the plea agreement was supported by the victim's family and was intended to spare the girl from having to testify at trial.

Police arrested Munson in June after the girl came forward with allegations of encounters with Munson that took place between June of 2009 and May of this year.

At his sentencing hearing in Charlevoix County Circuit Court Friday, the girl, who recently turned 9, sat next to her mother at the prosecutor's table while her mother read a letter the girl had written to the judge. In the letter, the girl detailed what Munson had done to her and said that he had not only bribed her with pop and candy, but also threatened to hurt her and her family if she ever told anyone what he had done to her.

"I was so scared the day I accidentally told my mom," the girl wrote.

The girl's mother said Munson stole her daughter's innocence.

"I was not ready to have 'adult' talks with her when she was 8," the mother said. She added that her daughter is now very shy and does not like to have her picture taken.

When his chance to speak came, Munson apologized "for all the pain and suffering I've caused."

Before handing down his sentence to Munson,

Munson

Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas praised the girl for her courage.

"I want to make it clear to the victim that she did absolutely nothing wrong," Judge Pajtas said. She is a very brave young lady."

Judge Pajtas gave Munson the maximum sentence possible based on the crime to which he pleaded guilty. Although the sentencing guidelines would have allowed for a greater minimum prison term range, under Michigan law the minimum end of a prison sentence range must not exceed two-thirds of the maximum. Thus, a sentence of 10-15 years was the most Munson could receive under the circumstances. He was also ordered to pay $3,650 in restitution, $264 in fines and costs and was given credit for 126 days served. He has three previous felonies and seven previous misdemeanors on his record.

A parent-teacher conference primer

I can still remember my first parent teacher conference as a child in elementary school. My teacher and parents looked so tall; I felt like a criminal ready for sentencing. I was fearful of what would come out of my teacher's mouth, let alone what extra homework would lie ahead as it was difficult for me to complete my work. I was a child who was started too young, always felt a step behind my classmates, and was occasionally compared to my sister by one of my teachers. Those were tough years for me. The combination of being younger than my peers, tall and lanky, freckle-faced and braces, I felt that I was the target for teasing. This combination did not help my self-confidence and actually hampered my learning. Through all of this, one teacher during my year spent in fourth grade, recognized that my talents were in the arts. This one woman, a Catholic nun I might add, encouraged me to focus on my creative ability. Through this woman and with the support of my parents, my confidence improved as well as my grades. That year I designed the school bulletin boards, did the choreography for the all school musical and wrote a short screen play. To this day I credit my elementary school years as to why I chose to be an elementary school counselor.

Now as parent-teacher conference time approaches in many of our area schools, I'd like to remind parents that this is a significant and important meeting to attend. Remember that your child may also feel behind and worry about your impressions at this meeting. From my own experience working in the schools, it seemed as though it was sometimes difficult for the parents as well. What parents need to know is that it's a difficult time for the teachers, too. They worry about saying the right thing and they also want to do the best for your child, too. They work hard to create an inviting atmosphere, assemble samples of your child's work and try their best to accommodate to your schedule. They also feel stressed if there is any behavior or academic issues to bring up that might not be as positive as you had hoped. Keep in mind this meeting can be successful and smooth and that both you and the teacher can reach positive outcomes. Remember that you are a team working to benefit your child.

Some things to consider when attending a conference are: What projects and assignments are planned so you may help your child at home; you don't need any surprises, and are there academic standards in place. Ask how your child was evaluated and is he or she ready to move on academically and emotionally. Ask what you can do at home to complement what is happening in the classroom. If you feel your child is behind, ask what programming is available to help in this area. If you're the parent of a high school-aged child, ask how he or she is encouraged to think about the wide variety of careers. Check with your child to see that they are working on a portfolio that will assist them in a future job and college placement.

A parent teacher conference is such a great way to make connections with other parents and to see what takes place in the school. You should feel comfortable to follow up with notes or a phone call, especially if a particular problem had been identified. Remember that when you attend a conference there are other parents waiting as well so if you need more time, schedule another time to meet.

If you've read this article up to this point, I am hopeful that you'll take away this old sage's words of wisdom. Time spent where more than one person is talking about your child can only lead to good things. I wish the teachers, parents and children of our schools a positive conference. Now that I look back, my parents and teachers really weren't all that tall. They were only large in how they influenced my life.

A note about our office hours

Dear readers:
Because of some recent staffing changes, the Charlevoix Courier office hours will become a bit more irregular.

Advertising sales in the Charlevoix area for the Courier, Petoskey News-Review and other publications of Northern Michigan Review are now being handled by Lisa Sladek. Lisa can be reached by calling (231) 439-9325 or via e-mail at lsadek@petoskeynews.com.

Lisa will regularly be out in the community meeting with customers and she plans to occasionally do some work out of the Courier office, but her base of operation will continue to be at the News-Review office in Petoskey.

What this means to our readers and advertisers is that there will be more times when the Courier office will not be open.

Generally, I will staff the office from about 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays except Tuesdays. The office will generally not be open on Tuesdays because this is the day we finish production on, and print the Courier at the News-Review office in Petoskey.

The office may also be closed on other weekdays if I am off for the day or for anywhere for a few minutes to a few hours if I step out of the office for a time.

We know this change might cause some inconvenience for some of our customers who like the option of dropping in to pay a bill or subscription renewal, change an address, or to take out a classified ad.

We are working on creating a drop box outside the office that would allow people to drop off items.

I'd also remind our readers that many functions, such as subscriptions, classified ads, and many others can be done through the our website, www.charlevoixcourier.com or by calling the News-Review's main number at (231) 347-2544.

I still welcome members of the community to stop by the office to talk with me and drop off items. I can also be reached by phone at (231) 439-9309 or e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com. If you need to speak with someone immediately on a news-related matter and I am not available, please contact Jeremy McBain at (231) 439-9316.

EJ Elementary School to host military supply drive

On Veterans' Day, Nov. 11, East Jordan Elementary School is hosting a military supply drive called "Santa for Soldier." The event, which will take place in the gymnasium, is an effort to make Christmas a little brighter for the men and women of the U.S. military who are serving overseas this holiday season.

The drive is a collaborative effort between East Jordan Elementary School and Beaver Island Community School National Honor Society and Beaver Island Volunteer Corps on Beaver Island in hopes to gather enough goods and gifts for Christmas packages for at least 30 soldiers, one of which is Beaver Island resident Brett Maudrie who is serving with the 101st Airborne in Afghanistan.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the effort should bring items to be donated to East Jordan Elementary School from 8 a.m.-noon on Thursday, Nov. 11.

People living on Beaver Island who wish to contribute to the effort may drop items off at the school anytime until Nov. 10.

Donations are also being accepted the high postage costs associated with shipping the packages. Suggested items to send soldiers are toiletries, games, prepackaged cookies, candy, magazines, gaming devices, powdered drink mix singles and music CDs. A quick search on the Internet can provide other ideas.

Anyone with questions about the drive or who would like to make a donation for postage should contact Tara Palmer via e-mail at tpalmer@ejps.org. Beaver Island residents should contact Judy Boyle at judy@boyle.bz.

VOLLEYBALL

Regional 'birth:' Rayders roll to district title

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

MANCERLONA — Oh baby!

Filling in for Charlevoix High School volleyball coach Liz Grunch (who, at 9:45 a.m. Thursday gave birth to her first child, a daughter, Bree Elizabeth), Chris Way took over the reigns for the Rayders last week.

Way's first match, nothing serious.

Just your ordinary pressure-packed Class C district final against a Lake Michigan Conference rival Boyne City, a team that arguably played its best match of the season the night before in a district semifinal win over Harbor Springs.

The Rayders didn't miss a beat, however, in Grunch's absence as Charlevoix earned its second straight Class C district championship with a 25-15, 25-19, 25-17, win over Boyne at Manacelona High School.

With the win the Rayders, who did not drop a game throughout the district tournament, improve to 43-11-3 and will face Johannesburg-Lewiston in a Class C regional semifinal at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 9, at Maple City Glen Lake. (The game took place after the Courier's press time. See www.charlevoixcourier.com for game results.)

Charlevoix, which last season fell in a regional final, played scrappy defense and served strongly all night for Way, who said she "didn't want to lose this game for Liz."

Way, who's daughter, setter Jenna Way, paced Charlevoix with 19 assists, eight digs and six kills, said she and the team have been preparing for such a circumstance all season.

"We're all doing the best we can with the circumstances we thought might happen," said Way, who coached many of the current Rayders when they played in middle school. "I'm really proud of those girls, they've overcome a lot of adversity. They've had three or four different coaches running practices, they've had to have me on the bench."

Chances are, they'll have Way along with assistants Audra Randall and Murphy Gillespie on the bench once again on Tuesday.

"They've had a lot of change," Chris Way said. "But they've handled it well. My hat goes off to them, they've done a nice job with everything."

Grunch, who coached Charlevoix's semifinal match win over East Jordan on Wednesday, was consulted by Way up until 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

On Thursday morning, Bree Elizabeth arrived safe and sound for Grunch, weighing 7 pounds, 2 ounces and measuring 20 inches.

"We didn't want to look past Boyne City," Chris Way said. "Liz is getting ready to have her baby, but we were concerned about what Boyne City would come up with in their rotation."

"We had a backup plan in case that happened and we were able to cope with that."

Charlevoix came out strong in game one and quickly took a 15-7 lead before expanding it to 19-9.

In the late stages of the opening game, Megan Peters picked up a block, Jenna Way scored a point on a perfectly placed tip in the back corner, and Allison Hankins recorded an ace to help Charlevoix seize game one.

Boyne City, which played strongly in their semifinal win over Harbor Springs, missed on several crucial serves in game one.

"We missed a lot of serves," said Boyne coach Casie Parker, who herself is expecting to give birth soon. "Our strongest servers missed some key serves at key times which hurt us. We really rely on that serve."

Charlevoix broke from a 12-12 tie in the second game behind a Jenna Way kill, an Allison Hankins block kill, and a Kelsey Way ace to make it 15-12.

From there, Jenna Way and Hankins were solid in the middle, while Boyne missed two crucial serves, leading to the Rayders putting game two in the hooks in their favor.

The Ramblers built a 7-4 lead in the third game before the Rayders clawed back to tie the game at 13-all on a double block from Peters and Jenna Way.

Jenna Way and Hankins then added kills, Kelly Greyerbiel picked up an ace, and Peters added another block as the Rayders took the third game by nine points.

"Our goal was to get three games and not toy around with it because anything can happen in tournament time," Chris Way said. "We never overlook anybody at tournament time and I didn't relax until the 24th and game-point in the third game."

"I know what volleyball is like."

Hankins finished with seven kills and three blocks, while Mays added six kills and Anna Way collected three. Greyerbiel finished with 12 digs, while Peters had a team-high four blocks, and Kelsey Way and Chelsie Hoffman had five digs apiece.

"We had great efforts from our back-row people," Chris Way said in reference to Kelsey Way, Hoffman and Greyerbiel. "Anytime you win at this stage of the season, it takes a total team effort and that's what we got. Collectively, they were solid."

For Boyne City, which closes a 22-22-6 season, Veronica Sisson had 16 kills, while Hannah Olsen added 19 digs, and freshman setter Heather Nichols finished with 17 assists.

"I thought we played hard the entire night," Parker said. "The girls didn't give up and Charlevoix is a tough team, we knew they'd be a tough opponent."

"I thought we played pretty aggressively at the net, but Charlevoix did as well."

ELECTION NEWS

ALLISON ELECTED TO TWO-YEAR SCHOOL BOARD TERM

CHARLEVOIX — Voters in the Charlevoix Public School District chose Nancy Allison, the controller at North Central Michigan College, in a three-way race for a two-year term on the school board Tuesday.

Allison received 1,529 votes followed by Bob Bergmann was received 1,015 votes and Margie Tamminga with 536.

The seat to which Allison was elected is currently occupied by Larry Levensgood, who was appointed to the seat in July of 2009 when Judith Ivan stepped down. Levensgood did not seek re-election. Allison will serve out the remaining two years on that term.

Allison, 62, has worked at the college for 36 years, and has served on the board of the Charlevoix Children's house for 10 years.

Two other four-year term seats on the board were also up for election. The seats are currently occupied by Jeff Stevens and John McLean Jr. McLean is seeking re-election, but Stevens is not. Since Charlevoix resident Glen Catt is the only other candidate, the race was uncontested. Catt received 2,409 votes and McLean received 2,276 votes.

MARION TOWNSHIP REPEALS LIQUOR SALES ORDINANCE

CHARLEVOIX — Voters in Charlevoix County's Marion Township approved a request to repeal a 1974 township ordinance outlawing the sale of liquor for on-site consumption by a 424-217 margin.

The question appeared on the ballot after the representatives of Castle Farms, which is located in Marion Township, collected enough signatures on a petition seeking to have the question put to voters

Castle Farms representatives have said that the business itself has no interest in obtaining a license of the onsite sale of liquor, but are seeking the change after receiving numerous requests by patrons who wish to include liquor in their cash bars during events that take place at Castle Farms.

NORWOOD APPROVES EMS, ROAD MILLAGES

CHARLEVOIX — Voters in Charlevoix County's Norwood Township approved both millages for ambulance service and for road repairs Tuesday.

Voters in the township approved the EMS millage by a 245-117 margin and the road millage by 201-158 margin.

In the case of the road millage, the request renewed the township's previously voter-approved 1-mill levy for three years. The millage was set to expire at the end of this year. Township officials expect the millage would bring in about $47,174 in 2011.

In the case of the EMS (ambulance service) millage, the request was for a renewal for three years with a small increase. The millage, which is used to pay the costs the City of Charlevoix charges the township to provide ambulance service to its residents, was also set to expire at the end of this year. The millage is currently at 0.5 mills, but township officials are seeking an increase to 0.65 mills.

Township officials said the increase is needed to offset the recent increase in the rates that the city is charging to the township for ambulance service.

If approved, the EMS millage is expected to generate about $30,633 in 2011.

One mill equals one dollar in tax for every $1,000 of a property's taxable value.

GRANDVUE MILLAGE PASSES

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility operating millage renewal in Charlevoix County passed in Tuesday's elections with a count of 6,208 to 3,473.

The tax levy will be collected for four years at a rate of 0.75 mill, which will fund the operating costs of the facility from 2011 through 2014.

The 0.75 mill is equal to 75 cents in taxes for every $1,000 of a property's taxable value.

The operating millage has been in place for more than 20 years and is expected to raise an estimated $1,524,054 in 2011.

'You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown' set to take the stage

BY SHELBY ISAAC CHARLEVOIX
HIGH SCHOOL JOURNALISM STUDENT

The "Peanuts" gang is at Charlevoix High School: Snoopy, Linus, Lucy, Charlie Brown and the whole crew are here.

Performing the play "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" for their fall show, a cast of 12 Charlevoix High School students will be dancing and singing, bringing the "Peanuts" comic strip to life for their audience.

"The show is based on the comic strip, 'Peanuts,' and is an average day in the life of Charlie Brown," said performing arts teacher and director of the play, Jodi Thompson.

Thompson said she chose the play because it is a theme to which all ages can relate.

"I want people to take a trip down memory lane and enjoy all the humor and fun in the lives of these youthful characters, as they remember what it was like to be back in elementary school," Thompson said.

Some of the many well-known scenes in the show are Valentines Day, a baseball game, a trip to Lucy's psychiatric booth, and many more.

This year, like the past two years, the play offered open auditions.

"It brings in more talent than what is just in the class," said senior Michael Patrick about the open auditions.

This is Thompson's first year teaching at the high school, but she has been teaching music in Charlevoix for nine years. Thompson spent her first four years teaching at St. Mary's and she is now going on her sixth year teaching music at the elementary school. This will be Thompson's first time directing a production for the high school, but she has directed the elementary school's spring musical for the past five years.

Show times are 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 14 at in the Charlevoix High School auditorium. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for students and will be available at the door.

Shelby Isaac is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School and is the daughter of Gunner Isaac.

Kelts, Roloff write-in election bids fail

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Incumbent Republican Bob Drebenstedt from Charlevoix County's District 5, and Republican Richard Gillespie from District 6, came out on top in the Tuesday Nov. 2 election over their respective write-in candidate opponents.

Republican Jerry Kelts and incumbent Republican Shirley Roloff, decided to run as write-in candidates after losing in the primary elections in August, but when the votes were tallied on Tuesday they came up short again.

The write-in votes were the last to be counted at the Charlevoix County Building at shortly before midnight on Tuesday. In the end, Dreben-stedt unofficially won the District 5 race with a count of 1,328 to 85 and Gillespie unofficially won the District 6 race with a count of 1,118 to 360 (These numbers may change after all write-in votes are calculated, but it would be difficult for these write-in ballots to overcome the margins in favor of Drebenstedt and Gillespie).

"I'm thankful to have another term. I should get a lot done and I just want to thank everyone for coming out to vote and everyone in my district for supporting me," Drebenstedt said after hearing the results of the election.

Drebenstedt claims the number one thing he wants to do over his next term as county commissioner is bring communication to the board.

"We haven't had (communication) over the last year and if we are going to get anything done for the people we have to be able to communicate to come up with solutions," Drebenstedt said.

Gillespie is pleased with the support he received from the voters again this election.

"I am delighted the voters of District 6 have reaffirmed their choice from the August primary," Gillespie said.

He will take the commission seat after the first of the year. It is the first time he has occupied a seat on the board since 1996 when he lost the election to Roloff after serving four years as a county commissioner.

"It is now time to forge ahead and take care of the people's business. A big thank you to the voters and all of the wonderful people that helped my campaign. I plan to use a forum I established, www.charlevoixforum.com, to keep voters informed on their business and decisions we make after the new year," Gillespie said.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL. — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Walgreens

Mount McSauba ski rates increasing

Friday hours added, Saturday hours changed

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Faced with increasing costs and decreasing support from neighboring townships, the Charlevoix City Council, on Monday, voted to increase rates for wintertime users at its Mount McSauba Recreation area.

The increase came at the recommendation of recently-hired city parks and recreation director Teresa Hart.

Hart told the council that in the past, both Charlevoix Township and Hayes Township have made contributions to the operation of the ski area, and therefore residents in those townships paid the same, slightly lower fees for using the ski area's amenities that city residents enjoy.

However, in August, the Charlevoix Township board decided that it would not make the $7,000 contribution it had made in past years.

That leaves Hayes Township, which contributed $2,640 to the Mount McSauba program, as the sole contributing township. Hart said that amount was calculated based on data from last year that showed Hayes Township residents accounted for about 5 percent of Mount McSauba users.

She added that a review of the data showed that users of the ski area were comprised of 20 percent from the city, 31 percent from Charlevoix Township, 24 percent from Marion Township, 14 percent "out of area" and three percent each from Ellsworth and Norwood Townships.

Hart noted that the rate change included increases for both residents and non-residents, but the increases for non-residents were slightly more in an effort to more equitably share the cost of running Mount

In cartoons, they're the seary kids who steal lunch money and give wedgies.

In schools across America, they're a problem. Although Hollywood sometimes has the tendency to downplay the issue, bullies are constantly continuing their habitual harassment of others.

And it's only getting worse. But why do they do it? Charlevoix High School sophomore Bailee Stevens has her own theory.

"I think that some people have built up aggression that they don't know what to do with. So, unfortunately, they choose to take it out on others," Stevens said.

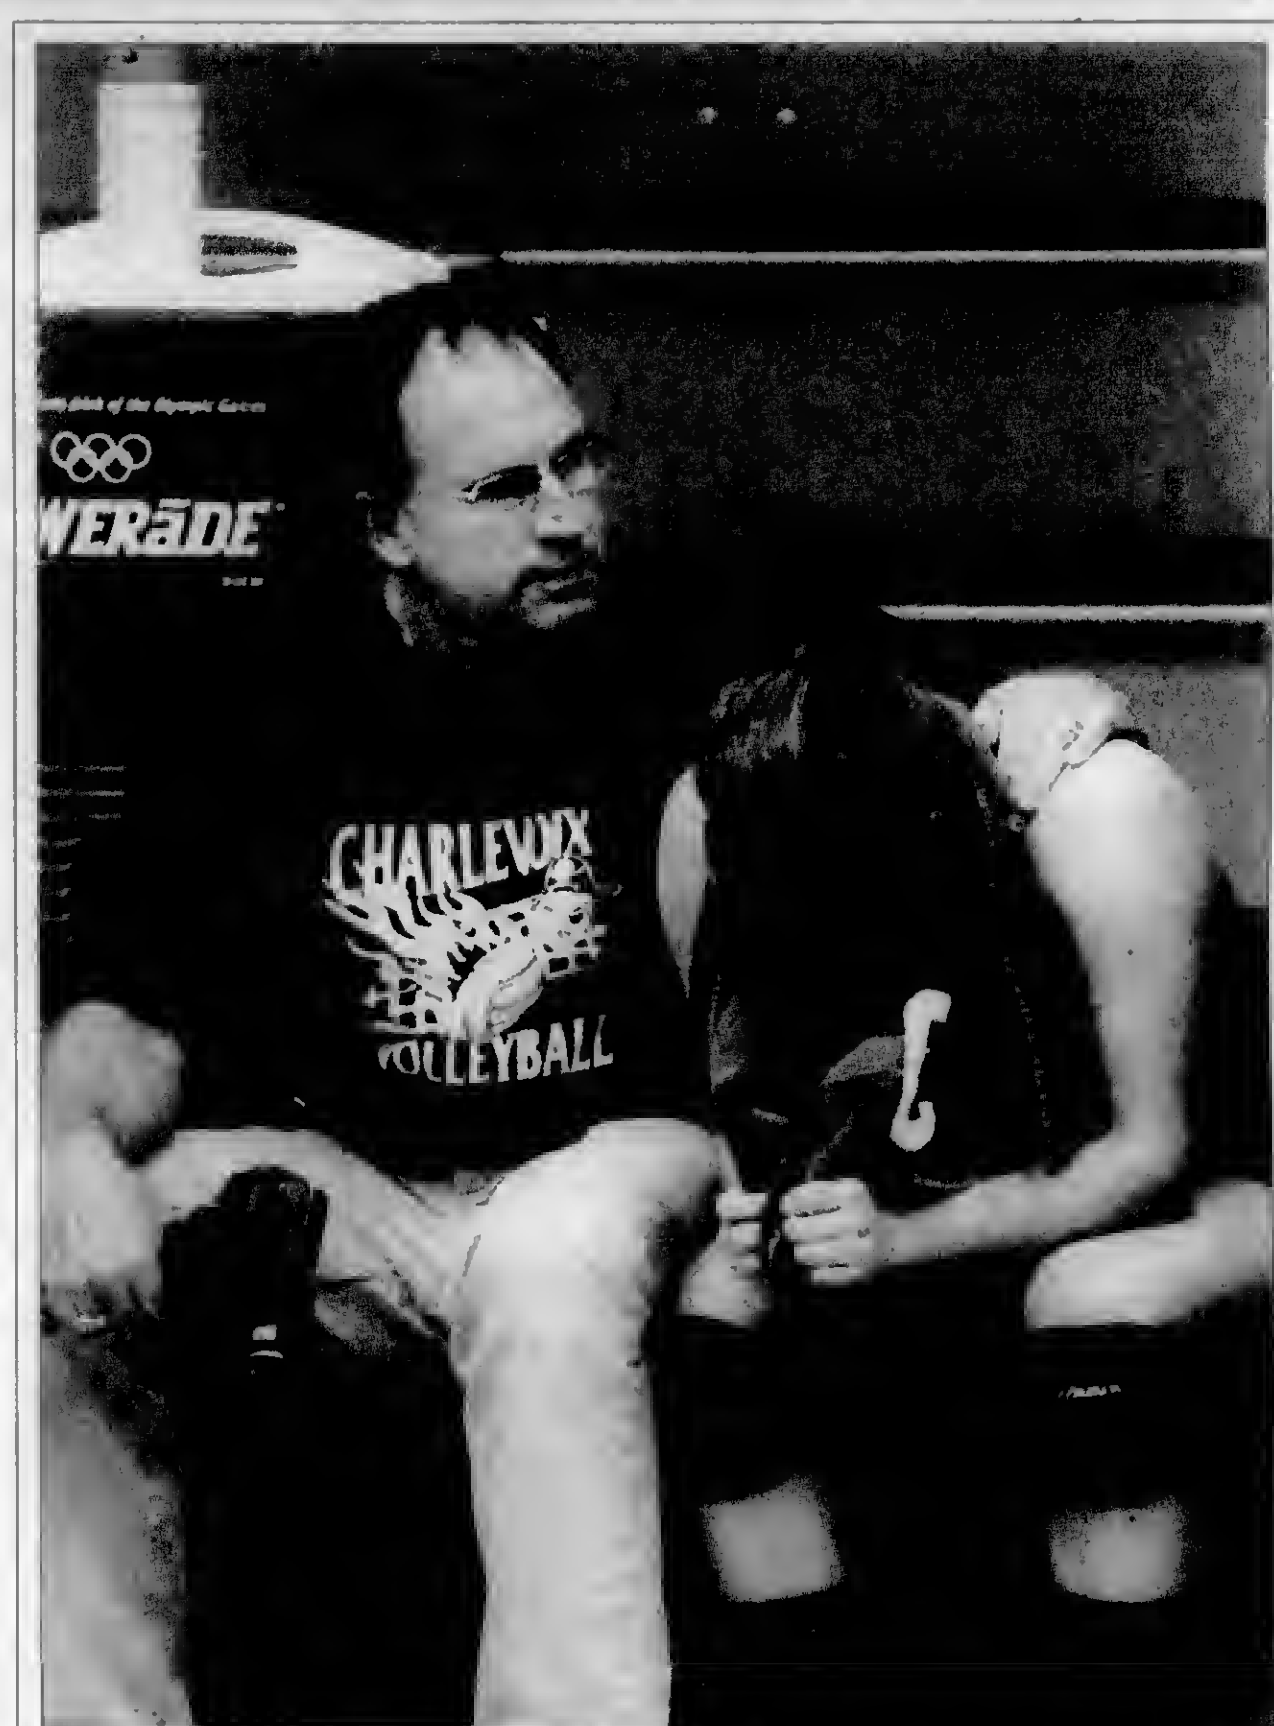

Freshman Emily Chapdelaine has a different opinion. Chapdelaine said, "I think that they do it to make themselves feel better."

Many students had their own answers to the "why" question. Some thought bullies want attention, while others went so far as to say they're "bored," or they think it's funny.

So exactly where and who is this affecting?

Most students at Charlevoix High School don't think that bullying is an extremely prominent problem, but they did say that it happens.

"I don't really think it's a problem. I see it every once in a while, but it's not an everyday thing," said sophomore Corey McClanathan.

"I had to move schools because of bullying, and in affected me in a way that made me change my whole outlook on other people. Bullying is definitely one of my pet peeves. It's wrong in every way to put somebody down for who they are," said Hybl.

Since coming to Charlevoix Schools, Hybl said that her situation has definitely improved.

"Nothing has affected me the same as that did," Hybl said. McClanathan shares those same feelings of animosity towards bullying as Hybl. Having been bullied in the past himself, McClanathan believes that it really affects one's self confidence. It's dangerous, and the effects are only getting worse.

EFFECTS OF BULLYING

Charlevoix Middle School recently hosted Tom Harrison. Harrison said the bullying his son Alex experienced caused him to take his own life.

The atmosphere in the Charlevoix Middle School gym quickly shifted from chatty to somber when Harrison introduced the video of his late son, Alex. For several minutes, the students were witness to Alex's short life through pictures accumulated of the 16-year-old who was deemed a "tough subject" when it came to being photographed. Seemingly choking back tears, Harrison told the students, "That's what I have left: Pictures, memories of my son. I'll never have him back. So I'm here to talk about how serious I really am about bringing an end to bullying and aggressive behavior."

Harrison said his son took his own life in February 2009 after being bullied by other students at his high school in Cadillac. Although he was continually harassed, the quiet teen never retaliated against those who mercilessly badgered him, Harrison said.

"He was less likely to stick up for himself than he was for his friends," said Harrison of his son. Alex didn't fight back against those who chanted "creep" as he walked by them at school. He didn't look for revenge on those students who locked arms in the hallway and wouldn't let him pass through. Not once did he think of getting even; of sinking down to the level of those who mistreated him. Instead, Alex ended it all by ending his life.

Alex Harrison is another tragic, yet familiar story in the news lately. Harrison is one of many teens to have committed suicide in the past year after being bullied and harassed by others. Unfortunately, a number of kids are choosing this over other solutions.

Kids like 15-year-old Phoebe Prince, who killed herself in January 2010 after being bullied by jealous girls. Kids like Tyler Clementi, an 18-year-old who jumped off the George Washington bridge after his roommate posted a video of Clementi in a sexual encounter with another man.

Kids like 13-year-old Asher

Brown, who took his own life in September 2010 after being harassed by other students.

SPREADING THE WORD

Meanwhile, Tom Harrison is doing his best to spread Alex's message of love and respect. Having delivered his message to at least 20 schools, Harrison continues to promote a "See it. Hear it. Stop it." approach to young students from all over. Middle school principal Travis Garrett agrees that we need to stand up against bullying. "We need to create a culture of respect and caring," said Garrett as he introduced the speaker, Harrison, "It's time for a culture change."

Sydney Carlson is a sophomore journalism student at Charlevoix High School and is the daughter of Lisa and Norman "Boogie" Carlson.

McSaubia.

Because their township opted to contribute to the city's operation of the ski area, Hayes Township residents will pay the lower in-city rates.

Hart said a survey by city staff showed that even with the increases, the rates for using Mount McSaubia are in line with other areas around similarly equipped recreation areas around the state.

See chart above for a complete list of former and current resident and non-resident rates for Mount McSaubia.

While fees will be up slightly when the first skiers head down the hill this season, Hart is hoping some changes in the area's operating hours will make it more user friendly as well.

Hart said since taking over the position at the end of August, she has created two youth advisory committees — one made up of middle school students, the other of high school students — to give recreation department staff input on improvements that can be made at the ski area.

One change that will take place this year that came out of those youth committees is some changes to the area's operational hours.

Hart said although the area's Monday-Thursday hours of 5-9 p.m. will remain the same, the ski hill will also be open from 6-9 p.m. on Friday — something that hasn't happened in a long time. Hours on Saturday will also be broken up into two sessions — one from noon-4 and then from 6-9 p.m.

"We heard loud and clear from the high school and middle school kids that they are more interested in the night hours," Hart said.

She said she's also planning to make some changes to the area's Christmas break schedule, which in the past had been daily from 11 a.m.- 4 p.m. (except Christmas Day and New Year's Day). She said those changes have not yet been worked out, and will be likely be decided once the season has begun. She recommended that users check the city's website at www.charlevoixcity.com for updates.

She added that the effort to increase the appeal of Mount McSaubia to teens isn't just about bringing in more revenue.

"We want to provide a positive, safe activity for kids," She said. "I'm really excited about the upcoming season."

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Times, they are 'a-changing'

What with days getting shorter rapidly and with trying to recall whether I am supposed to be getting up earlier or later (Daylight Saving Time has always confused me), it is the time of year to be thinking about time.

One of the proud moments recalled from my early primary education was making my own clock face from a round piece of paper, cutting out a long hand and a short hand, and then learning to "tell time." My teacher would move the hands of my hand-made clock and ask me what time was represented. A large part of the incentive for being able to tell time was coming to know that the hands on the BIG clock at the front of our one-room schoolhouse let us know how much longer it would be until recess or even, blessedly, the end of the school day. Somehow days then seemed longer than they do now, even with Daylight Saving Time.

Some of our rural neighbors during the World War II government demand for Daylight Saving Time refused to reset their clocks, and commonly referred to the time shown on theirs as "God's time" rather than the despised "government time." The Tea Party would have been welcomed by some of our neighbors. Strong anti-government sympathy tied to religious ideas is not exactly a new thing in American history.

EAR TO THE GROUND

I don't believe that school children learn to tell time any more by the positions of a long hand and a short hand on a clock face. Almost every time keeping machine is now digital and shows a set of numbers on a small screen. The only exceptions seem to be extraordinarily expensive wristwatches that have a half dozen hands and would be difficult for a first-grader to learn from.

The nearly complete demise of clocks and watches with "hands" is probably the highest change in our sense of time in the past century. We may have to modify our language to compensate. What does "clockwise" mean to someone who has not learned to tell time with a long hand and a short hand? Do airplane pilots still locate other aircraft with "bogey at three o'clock". Or has that lost meaning as clocks with permanently printed numbers have all but disappeared?

I once taught a blind-from-birth student. He wore a wristwatch with very sturdy hands that he could touch to determine when it was time to be in class. Are there digital watches for the sightless? I must confess I don't know.

With the ease available from digital timepieces we should all know what time it is, but I confess to some confusion a couple of times a year. And how can I possibly explain to young grandchildren what hands on clocks are and how satisfying it was to finally be able to tell time. Now it seems that time is telling us.

Sheriff offers hunter safety tips

Michigan's fields and forests are alive with blaze orange hunting gear. Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider wants both visitors and residents of Charlevoix County to know some important safety rules before setting out to deer camp.

Your hunting license and the identification used to purchase it (Michigan driver's license, identification card, or DNR sport card) must be carried with you at all times while hunting.

All hunters must wear an item of clothing (hat, cap, vest, jacket, or rain gear) in "hunter orange"; it must be the outermost garment; and it must be visible from all sides. If it is camouflage, at least 50 percent of the garment must be orange.

Hunting hours begin approximately one-half hour before sunrise and last until approximately one-half hour after sunset.

Safety zones include all areas within 150 yards (450 feet) of an occupied building, house, cabin, barn, or other farm building. You may not hunt in this area or shoot at any animal within this area, unless you have the written permission of the property owner.

It is illegal to drink alcohol or use intoxicating drugs before hunting. Sheriff Schneider also wants hunters to take the following precautions to prevent injury or death while hunting this season:

Familiarize yourself with the area where you will be hunting. Never assume you are alone in the woods. Never assume other hunters are acting responsibly. If sitting against a rock or tree, make sure it is wider than your shoulders so you are not mistaken for a target. Be 100 percent sure of your target before shooting.

Sheriff Schneider urges all hunters to act responsibly this season.

Reacquaint yourself with Michigan's hunting laws and follow these safety tips to prevent a tragedy from happening this year.

For more safety tips, Sheriff Schneider encourages residents to visit the Michigan Sheriffs Association website at www.mishers.org where you can sign up to receive monthly newsletters.

Clarification and update

A story appearing on page one of the Nov. 10 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik being named as one of four finalists to fill a vacancy as superintendent for the Kingsley Area Schools requires a clarification. Janik owns a home in both Traverse City and in Charlevoix. Although he spends time at both homes, his residence of record (for such things as voting and for his driver's license) is in Charlevoix.

Also, since last week, the Kingsley Area Schools Board of Education has scheduled a special board meeting for Thursday, Nov. 18, at which time it will decide how it will proceed in its superintendent search.

East Jordan's new fire, EMS station to open soon

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — The city of East Jordan's new emergency services building is near completion and emergency crews will soon be serving the area from the new location.

The city broke ground for the new facility last spring and residents of the area have watched it grow from the ground up at 555 Maple Street, just south of East Jordan. By the middle of the month the building was expected to be completed and will house emergency medical services and the fire department.

"We started breaking ground for the building in May and started on the foundation in June. It went up pretty quickly from there," East Jordan EMS director Jay Peck said.

City manager Bob Anderson said a few finishing touches are still needed on the building and city officials are hopeful that the two agencies will be able to occupy the new facility sometime early next week.

EMS currently works out of two buildings, including one rental space, and the fire department works out of a building that was constructed in the 1940s. The new building will be about the same size as the combined sizes of the former fire department and EMS buildings, at about 15,000 square feet, but the new facility will join the services and save money in the long run.

"This is a much better utilization of resources and we don't have to pay rent anymore," Peck said.

The building is designed with two wings and a common area in the middle. The south wing will house the fire apparatus bay, which will hold seven fire trucks and turnout gear. The north wing will house the EMS bay, which will hold six vehicles and gear. There will also be joint common areas, EMS quarters, a day room, bunk rooms, a full kitchen, a bathroom, EMS storage, a fitness area, public restrooms, the EMS director's office, the fire chief's office, the clerk's office, a shared classroom/meeting room, fire storage area and an open office.

"It will have everything we need to serve the area all in one building," Peck said.

Emergency crews don't anticipate a faster emergency response time than they currently have, but believe it will be a safer response because of the location just outside of town.

"We will have the same availability that we had, but the location will provide a safer response. Before we were coming from main street and had the danger of all the vehicle and pedestrian traffic with every single call. Now, we won't have to drive through the middle of town unless there is a call in that area," he said.

The Malpass Foundation donated new facility to the city and handled all costs associated with its construction.

"This is a huge step up from what we had and is a big pat on the back to our volunteers for the hard work they do," Peck said.

"The city will be opening the building to the public on a day in December so the community can see the new building that is serving the area's emergency needs."

Walt Drenth named Big Ten coach of the year

BY ANDY SNEDDON
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS EDITOR

EAST LANSING — Not bad for a kid who longed to be a football hero.

But as an 85-pound freshman at Charlevoix High School, Walt Drenth was steered away from the gridiron and onto the cross country trail.

Good call.

Drenth, a 1977 Charlevoix High School graduate, was named the Big Ten women's cross country coach of the year last week after his Spartans placed first in the league championships at Madison, Wis.

It's the latest in a long line of accomplishments for the humble Drenth, who is in his fifth year as director of MSU's cross country and track & field programs.

"It's far more exciting to win (the Big Ten) than to get a personal award," said Drenth, 51. "Great accomplishment for the kids. It never happens in a vacuum. I've gotten incredible help from (assistants) Kim McGreevy and Lisa Senakiewicz. They did a lot of work and kept a lot of people in line."

"Nobody wins an award without a lot of help from a lot of different angles. I feel like it's more of a program award than an individual one."

It was the third Big Ten title and first since 2001 for the Spartan women, who were led by senior Emily McLeod. McLeod won the league championship race and was named the league's cross country female athlete of the year.

MSU placed five runners in the top 27, including Traverse City Central graduate Julia Otwell, a freshman. The Spartans, who are ranked 16th, finished with 74 points, 14 better than runner-up Michigan.

Drenth characteristically deflected all credit for his program's success to his runners.

"There's no question about it, it's primarily on the athletes," he said. "If you can convince them there's a direction to go and get them to see that vision and they are excited to train. There's a lot of talented athletes in the country, but they're not all willing to do the work necessary to have this kind of success."

"It's really athlete-driven, and I think they've really created the culture of success here and then it's a matter of keeping them healthy."

Drenth knows a thing or two about a culture of success. He earned four letters in both cross country and track at Charlevoix, cutting his teeth as a skinny freshman in 1973. Gary Stutzman, the school's track & field coach at the time, convinced Drenth to trade his football helmet for running shoes.

"My cousin (Hud Drenth) was a really good football player," Walt Drenth said. "I wanted to play football so bad I couldn't see straight, but I only weighed 85 pounds. I went out for football and (Stutzman) said 'What are you doing?'

"He just said, 'This makes no sense. They've got a cross country team. You'd be better off running.' For whatever reason, I said OK."

Drenth eventually became an All-Stater in cross country, finishing third in the 1976 Class C state finals. His Charlevoix coaches included the likes of Stutzman, Dave Moyer, Hal Evans, Plas Presnell and, of course, the legendary Pete Spieles, who would lead the Rayders to seven state championships in a 10-year span from 1982-91.

"Pete was my cross country coach my senior year and both (Spieles and Evans) passed on a great passion for track and field and cross country to me," Walt Drenth said. "I learned a tremendous amount from both of them."

Drenth went on to run at Central Michigan University and, after earning his degree in psychology and political science in 1981, he returned to Charlevoix where he began his coaching career as an assistant to Spieles and Evans.

"That was a pretty good introduction to the coaching profession," Drenth said. Drenth coached the Central Michigan University cross country program from 1985-90, and was named the Mid-American Conference coach of the year in '88 and

'89, when he led the CMU to league titles. He earned his masters in physical education from Central in 1990.

Drenth then went to William & Mary where in a six-year stint he guided his men's cross country teams to five Colonial Athletic Association titles and two CAA track and field crowns.

He then coached at Arizona State from 1996-2004, leading a drastic program turnaround which saw the Sun Devil women make six NCAA Championship appearances and the men two after neither program had ever made the field prior to Drenth's arrival.

He was named the Pac-10 Conference women's cross country coach of the year in 1999 and 2000, and was selected as the NCAA West Region women's coach of the year in 2000.

His 2001 Sun Devil women's team was ranked third nationally, and his '99 men's team was ranked ninth. Neither squad had ever been ranked before Drenth's arrival.

In 2004, Drenth became the head men's cross country coach and assistant men's track & field coach at Michigan State. He was appointed director of the cross country and track and field programs on June 2, 2006.

He and his wife, Cara, have two children, 16-year-old Gerrit, and Emma, a freshman on the MSU women's team.

Raymond James Abraczinskas: 74, Nov. 9, 2010

Raymond James Abraczinskas, age 74, passed away peacefully at home on Tuesday, Nov. 9, 2010. He graduated from Tri-State College in 1961 with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering. Ray worked as a laser system project engineer and navigation engineer for Lear Siegler Inc. (later Smiths Industries) before switching to marketing research and development programs. He was instrumental in casting LSI's unique product, the Voice Controlled Interactive Device, which was designed to assist pilots with controls in the cockpit using voice commands. Ray, known as "Abe" to thousands of ham radio operators around the globe, was a dedicated amateur radio operator for 56 years. He was a genealogy buff, and enjoyed annual fishing trips to Quebec. He authored "Stories from my Pennsylvania" (Volumes 1 & 2), a collection of stories based on his childhood growing up in the Susquehanna Valley, Pa. Gail Weede: 59, Nov. 11, 2010

Gail Weede, 59, of Beaver Island, formerly of St. Joseph, left her beautiful world on Thursday, Nov. 11, 2010.

She is survived by her very-loved husband, Mike, children Rebecca Sailor-Dawson, Jeffrey Sailor (Lisa), Allyson (John) Arnold, Joseph Weede and Stephanie Sailor. "GG" will be sadly missed by her grandchildren Jack and Adele Dawson and Conley and Alexander Arnold.

She was born in Gary, Ind. into the loving arms of Loren and Adele Courtwright. Sharing her crowded family home with Carol (Dove) Rudzinski (deceased), Jim Courtwright, JoAnne (Jim) Meyer, Jeff (Renee) Courtwright, Paul Courtright, Peggy (Larry) Heaslip, Patty (Jim) Herrin, Jean (John) Musial, Annette (Mike) Gronck and Liz (Jim) Houchin.

In her large family, Gail was the 'best aunt ever' to many nieces and nephews, too numerous to list.

Gail lived an always-exciting life, and moved from Indiana to many different parts of the U.S. She accomplished much throughout her life. She got her college degree from Siena Heights College at the age of 40 and then proceeded to teach as an adjunct professor at Lake Michigan College. For a period of time she worked within the State of Michigan's court system for the care and support of abused women, coached track and volleyball, and was a certified volleyball referee. She went from being a non-swimmer to achieve the level of Padi Divermaster and tri-athlete. She ran and finished 12 marathons. She was bold enough to pick up stakes and start a new life and new business in a small town on a small island in the middle of Lake Michigan. She valiantly stared down cancer and put it in its place.

A celebration of Gail's life, began at the ferry that returned her to her beloved Beaver Island, departed the Charlevoix ferry dock at 11:30 a.m. Monday, Nov. 15, followed by a visitation at Holy Cross Catholic Church which took place from 6-8 p.m. A Mass celebrated by her good friend, Father Pat, to remember and rejoice Gail took place at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 16 at Holy Cross, followed by a luncheon at the Peaine Township Hall. Funeral services were provided by Winchester Funeral Home of Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be held in the St. Joseph area at a later date.

In lieu of flowers, donations to the 21st Century Learning Scholarship Fund, in care of the Beaver Island Community Schools, 37895 Kings Highway, Beaver Island, Mich. 49782 would be appreciated.

Timmons selected as EJ mayor

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — Members of the East Jordan City Commission voted in a new mayor at their annual organizational meeting Monday, Nov. 8.

Paul Timmons, who has been on the commission since November 2007, was nominated and received a unanimous vote to serve as the newest mayor of the city of East Jordan. He will take over the position immediately.

"In accordance with the city charter, the board has an organizational meeting every year right after the general elections. The mayor is selected from members of the city commission board," said Robert Anderson, East Jordan city administrator.

The former mayor, Russ Peck, served his first term on the commission 1988 and served as mayor from 1988 through 1999. He was re-elected to the commission in November of 2009 and has served as mayor since then until the Nov. 8 meeting. He will continue serving on the board, but will step down from his position as mayor.

"(Peck) is a good man and Paul's a good man so I anticipate that everything will continue to run smoothly with the board and the city," Anderson said.

Timmons will serve as mayor for a period of one year and then the board will determine if he will continue for another year or if someone else will take the position.

According to the city charter, "The mayor shall be the chief executive officer of the city and shall be recognized as head of the city government for all ceremonial purposes and by the governor for purposes of military law, but shall have no administrative duties."

Timmons said he is ready to take on the position and is pleased the board selected him after serving only three years on the board.

"It feels good that my constituents think I will do a good job in the position. I'll do my best for them and for the people of East Jordan. I just plan to continue on the way things have been going and do what I can to help East Jordan be a successful community," Timmons said.

Church collecting for Operation Christmas Child

Christmas is arriving early in Charlevoix, as Charlevoix Community Reformed Church is serving as a collection point for Operation Christmas Child.

Through Operation Christmas Child, the world's largest Christmas project, Charlevoix area residents will be helping send shoe box gifts to more than 8 million children in 100 countries suffering from natural disaster, war, terrorism, disease, famine and poverty.

From Charlevoix, the shoe box gifts will be sorted and sent using whatever means necessary — sea containers, trucks, trains, airplanes, boats, camels, even dog sleds — to reach suffering children around the world.

Operation Christmas Child uses tracking technology that allows donors to "follow your box" to the destination country where it will be hand-delivered to a child in need. To register shoe box gifts and find out what country they are delivered to, use the EZ Give donation form found at www.samaritanspurse.org.

Donations will be accepted at the Community Reformed Church, 100 Oak St., on from 5-6 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 17; from 4-6 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 18 and Friday, Nov. 19; from 10 a.m.-1 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 20; and from 10 a.m.-noon on Sunday, Nov.

21. This year, organizers of the drive at the church hope to collect more than 200 gift-filled shoe boxes from families, kids, churches, schools and civic organizations in the area.

Since 1993, Operation Christmas Child, a project of international Christian relief and evangelism organization Samaritan's Purse, headed by Franklin Graham, has delivered more than 77 million gift-filled shoe boxes to needy children in some 130 countries.

For more information on how to participate in Operation Christmas Child, call (800)353-5949 or visit www.samaritanspurse.org.

Road crews ready for winter

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Residents of Northern Michigan have already seen a little snow this season. It won't be long before everyone is digging their cars out of their driveways to venture into the harsh winter weather for school or work.

Northern Michigan is known for its heavy snowfall and cold weather, but there is a group of county employees dedicated to making sure everyone arrives safely to their destinations—the road commissions' snow removal teams.

"We work for the people and we take pride in making sure the roads are cleared so they can make it to work or wherever they're going," said Ron Furgeson, plow driver for the Emmet County Road Commission.

The Emmet County and Charlevoix County road commissions plow more than 1,200 miles of roads and they do it with limited resources. Emmet County has 24 drivers and Charlevoix County has 21 drivers.

"Eight years ago we had nine more drivers than now, but we had to reduce the number because of budget cuts. Every man we have goes above and beyond to get the work done," said Brian Gutowski, Emmet County Road Commission engineer/manager.

The plow drivers are currently out marking their routes. They are getting to know every detail and contour of their roads so they can effectively and safely remove the snow without damage to their trucks or private and public property.

"Every route is between 30 and 40 miles. They have to drive every inch to check for drops, shoulder problems, drains, mail boxes or anything else that could cause a problem on their route. They get intimately familiar with their roads," Gutowski said.

On a typical day, after or during a snow storm, the drivers will get started before 4 a.m. They have to mount plows on their trucks, determine what mixture of sand, salt and brine will be best to put on the roads for the current conditions, and do safety checks on their vehicles before heading out to their routes.

"We plow the highways first because they have the most traffic and then we move on to trouble areas and the rest of our routes," said Todd Granger, plow driver for Emmet County.

No matter how much preparation the drivers make before hitting the snow-covered roads there are still dangers when driving a more than 40,000-pound vehicle. Plow drivers have to watch out for stumps next to the road shoulder, low-hanging branches, cars on the road—even pedestrians.

The biggest safety concern for the drivers is the distance other drivers allow between themselves and the plow trucks.

"I can't say it enough times: Give us some space, especially at intersections where we back up and take several passes," Granger said. "A car can pull up behind me and I can't see them at all. They need to give us at least 100 feet. ... At least 100 feet."

The trucks drive with a 2-to-3-inch space between their plow and the curb and mailboxes. If they hit something they have the risk of losing a vehicle for a day when it's being repaired.

"A lesson I learned when I first started here 24 years ago is that you feel the road in the seat of your pants," Furgeson said. "Sometimes when the snow is really blowing you can't see 20 feet in front of your truck and you can't see the side of the road at all, but you can feel your way along the road with the seat of your pants."

"A lot of people aren't going to stay home in bad storms and we have to do what we can to make their trip safe," Furgeson said.

Drivers should also be careful to dim their lights when approaching a plow truck, from the front or rear, and be sure to use caution when near them. Also watch out for bouncing sand and salt as it comes off the truck.

"People get impatient with us for driving slow, but they don't realize that the faster we drive the more the material bounces off the road. And if it's bouncing off the road it isn't doing what it's supposed to do, which is melt the ice and provide traction," said Mark Kruskie, plow driver for Emmet County.

Until the first snow storm hits Northern Michigan the plow crews are preparing their routes, maintaining their vehicles and gathering tons of sand and salt for county roads.

"I just want people to be patient with us on the road and work with us. We are out there in the worst weather to make sure they are safe. We really take pride in our work and want everyone to be safe out there," Furgeson said.

Heartbreak

Pine River rally dashes Rayders playoff hopes

MAPLE CITY — Oh, so painstakingly close.

The Charlevoix High School volleyball team had Leroy Pine River right where it wanted it to start Thursday's Class C regional final.

That being up 2-0 in games and with a lead in the third set.

But, as it often is in high school volleyball, momentum can change in a heartbeat.

Pine River overcame an 11-15 deficit in the third game and then went on to claim the next two games to earn a dramatic, hard-fought and thrilling come-from-behind victory over Charlevoix, 20-25, 25-27, 25-23, 25-22, 15-10, Thursday at Glen Lake High School.

Senior outside hitter Miranda Nelson had a team-high 20 kills and 15 digs, junior setter Chelsea Nelson added 35 assists, 24 digs, 11 kills and five aces, and senior middle hitter Molly Motzer had 10 kills and seven blocks including the game-winning kills in games four and five for the Bucks, who claimed the first regional volleyball crown in school history.

"It feels amazing," first-year Pine River coach Jana Dennis said. "This is our first regional win ever and that was our focus, we wanted to get this far."

With the win, Pine River improves to 41-17-4 and advances to a Class C state quarterfinal match on Tuesday, Nov. 16, against Houghton at St. Ignace LaSalle Middle School.

Houghton advanced with a 25-22, 27-29, 25-15, 25-17 win over Gwinn in their regional final.

Charlevoix, playing in its second regional final in as many years, fell just short in its bid for the program's first-ever regional crown against a scrappy Pine River team that utilized strong serving and defense all evening.

"It wasn't for a lack of effort on our part," Charlevoix coach Liz Grunch said. "Our girls were so excited to be playing again in a regional final and they were so pumped up for it. We fought until the very last point, but unfortunately we were on the wrong end of things."

After winning the opening game by five points off the strong hitting of senior Katie Mays and junior Jenna Way and then earning a hard fought victory in the second game by just two points, Charlevoix built a 15-11 advantage in the third game.

Pine River eventually tied the game and then took a 20-19 lead off the serving of Chelsea Nelson, who collected a pair of aces. The Bucks then upped their advantage to 23-20 following a tip and kill from Miranda Nelson before the Rayders closed the gap to 23-22 off a Mays block.

Pine River then put the third game away behind a Charlevoix attacking error and a perfectly placed tip in the middle from Jessica Hoagland.

"In that third game, we were so close," Grunch said. "It could've went either way. We were up and in just a couple of minutes, it seemed the momentum shifted and it carried over onto the fourth game."

The Bucks forced Charlevoix into several passing and attacking errors in the fourth game and quickly built a 12-6 advantage before the Rayders clawed back to make it 18-16 off the hitting of Jenna Way and Mays.

Charlevoix again came within two points, 24-22, in the late stages following two kills apiece from Allison Hankins and Jenna Way, but couldn't put up a block on Pine River's Motzer who gathered the game-winning point.

"Our No. 11 (Motzer) was just phenomenal down the stretch," Dennis said. "In that fourth game, when we got the first few points I felt we had a good chance."

Pine River again jumped out to an early lead in the fifth and final game. Chelsea Nelson had an ace and a kill and Motzer added a block as the Bucks led 7-3 before a Miranda Nelson kill and Sheena Vokes ace pushed the margin to 9-3.

The Rayders, closed the deficit to 12-10 following a pair of Pine River errors and a Madison Zimmermann ace, but couldn't get any closer.

Motzer had the final two points for the Bucks prior to a Charlevoix net violation as Pine River overcame a seemingly deep 2-0 deficit to sweep the next three games.

Also for Pine River, Megan Kollmeyer finished with 36 digs.

"We just needed to continue to play hard and just go out there and leave it all out on the floor," Dennis said. "We played very smart and we felt we could attack some of their weaknesses."

"We knew their No. 8 (Jenna Way) was a strong player and we wanted to frustrate her as much as possible. I thought we played good defense against her, but in the first couple of games, we let a few too many balls get to the floor."

For Charlevoix, which last season fell to McBain in the regional final, Jenna Way finished with 27 assists, 23 kills and seven digs, while Hankins added 16 kills and four blocks.

Mays collected 14 kills, eight digs and four blocks, while Anna Way had four kills; Kelsey Way had eight digs and four blocks; Zimmerman had two aces and five assists and Megan Peters added five assists.

Defensively, Kelly Greyerbiehl had 29 digs, while Chelsea Hoffman had 12 digs.

"It was heartbreaking for everybody," said Grunch, who's team closes a 44-12-3 season. "For the fans, the parents, the players and the coaches, it's heartbreaking."

Charlevoix will lose just two players to graduation, Mays and Clairissa Kenwahikise.

"Most of the team were juniors and most of them were starters," Grunch said. "This was the one we really wanted and I know we have some strong players coming up, but that doesn't make this feeling any easier."

Grunch, who a week ago gave berth to her first child, Bree, lauded her players' and coaching staff's effort throughout the season.

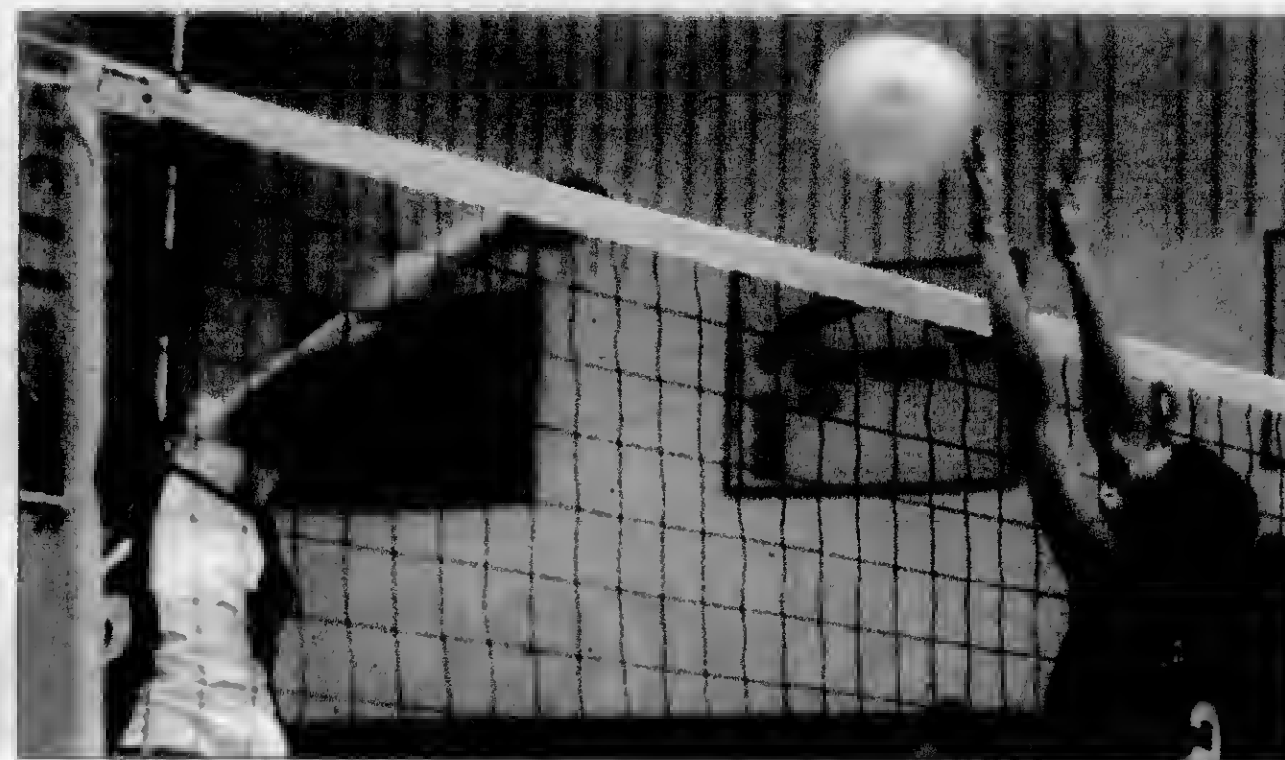

"(Assistant coaches) Chris (Way), Audra (Randall) and Murphy (Gillespie) kept the program going when I was basically gone for two and a half weeks," she said. "They've really helped out a lot this season and it's just nice to have those types of people around you."

"I think that's why we were successful this season, we're like a family."

Charitable Giving: A "Win-win" Activity

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

Thanksgiving is a good time to be thankful for those charitable, educational and religious groups that provide your community with valuable services. And now may be a good time to consider supporting these groups because, if you contribute before the year is over, you may "do well by doing good" through valuable tax deductions.

To claim a charitable deduction, you must itemize deductions on your taxes.

To illustrate the benefit of these deductions, let's assume you're in the 25% tax bracket. If you give $100 to a qualified charity, you can deduct $100 (with a tax benefit of $25) when you file your taxes. Consequently, the real cost of your donation is just $75 ($100 minus the $25 tax savings).

As you consider your charitable gifts, keep the following points in mind:

- You must donate — not just pledge. You can make a pledge to donate, but the amount is not deductible until you actually pay it.
- You must contribute to a qualified charitable group.

For your gift to be deductible, it must go to a qualified tax-exempt organization — either a religious group or a group that has received 501(c)(3) status from the IRS. If you're unsure if the group you want to support is tax-exempt, just ask.

You must itemize. To claim a charitable deduction, you must itemize deductions on your taxes.

Thus far, we've talked only about cash gifts. But you may have other financial assets, such as stocks, that you can give to charitable groups, and these gifts also can earn you tax benefits. For example, suppose you give $500 worth of stock in XYZ Company to a charitable group. If you're in the 25% tax bracket, you can deduct $125 when you file your taxes for 2010. But by donating the XYZ stock, you avoid paying any capital gains taxes you might have incurred if you had sold the stock yourself.

Making charitable gifts now may help you reduce the size of your estate and potentially lower any future estate tax burden on your heirs. Right now, federal estate tax laws are in flux, but it's possible that, one day, your estate might be large enough to generate estate taxes. If you wanted to formalize your charitable gifts and help your estate planning, you might consider establishing a charitable remainder trust. Under such an arrangement, you'd place some assets, such as stocks or real estate, in a trust, which could then use these assets to pay you a lifetime income stream. When you establish the trust, you may be able to receive a tax deduction based on the charitable group's "remainder interest" — the amount the charity is likely to ultimately receive. (This figure is determined by an IRS formula.) Upon your death, the trust would relinquish the remaining assets to the charitable organization you've named. Keep in mind, though, that this type of trust can be complex. To establish one, you'll need to work with your tax and legal advisors.

In any case, be generous during this season of giving. You'll be helping a charitable group accomplish its worthy goals — and you may be helping yourself when tax time arrives.

Michigan Scientific employees donate to United Way

Michigan Scientific Corporation recently devised a unique way to contribute to United Way.

The Milford-based designer and manufacturer of automotive testing products offered to provide each of the 40 employees in its Charlevoix plant a pair of work shoes, if the employees contributed 25 percent of the cost to United Way.

This effort netted $810 for United Way and safe shoes for the employees.

Michigan Scientific manager, Mike Castiglione said, "This was a great way to promote safety and provide funds to a worthy cause."

"We were very pleased to work with Michigan Scientific on this creative way to benefit United Way," Char-Em United Way Executive Director Martha Lancaster said. "The company and its employees are always generous supporters of our annual fall campaign, but this special fundraising drive was a great way to involve additional employees in investing in United Way's community solutions. We are pleased to provide materials and ideas to help local businesses conduct special events - benefit meals, jeans days, coin drives, etc. to support United Way."

Char-Em United Way's annual campaign is under way and includes worksite fundraising campaigns in a variety of local businesses, as well as raising funds from the general public. Funds are invested in community health and human service programs which meet United Way's mission of improving the lives of people in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. For more information, contact United Way staff at (231) 487-1006 or info@char-unitedway.org.

Community Foundation engages youth in philanthropy

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) met recently to review grant proposals submitted for their consideration by area nonprofit agencies. During the session, which took place at the Charlevoix Public Library, the committee interviewed a representative from each of the seven agencies submitting grant applications. Following the interviews, the students discussed each proposal, ranked them, and allocated dollar awards, with recommendations that would be advanced to the foundation's Board of Trustees for final action.

The youth advisory committee is composed of 16 student representatives from each of six Charlevoix County high schools, who work closely together to address the needs of young people in our communities. That's the part that Molli Andor, a senior from East Jordan High School, enjoys the most. "I enjoy helping youth in our community," she said, adding, "It's been great to meet others my own age who are also interested in helping others."

Wade also had some advice to students who might apply for membership on the youth advisory committee in the future. "Be thankful for the opportunity to be a part of this wonderful organization," he said, adding, "Take full advantage and be the change that your community needs."

Molli is one of three senior committee members this year, joining Brontae Lemmink from Beaver Island Community School and Wade Werth, representing Charlevoix High School.

Brontae and Wade share similar feelings about their committee experiences. "I've grown up on an island where everyone loves and respects their small community, and I take pride in seeing that people are truly trying to help the youth have the best possible future," Brontae said.

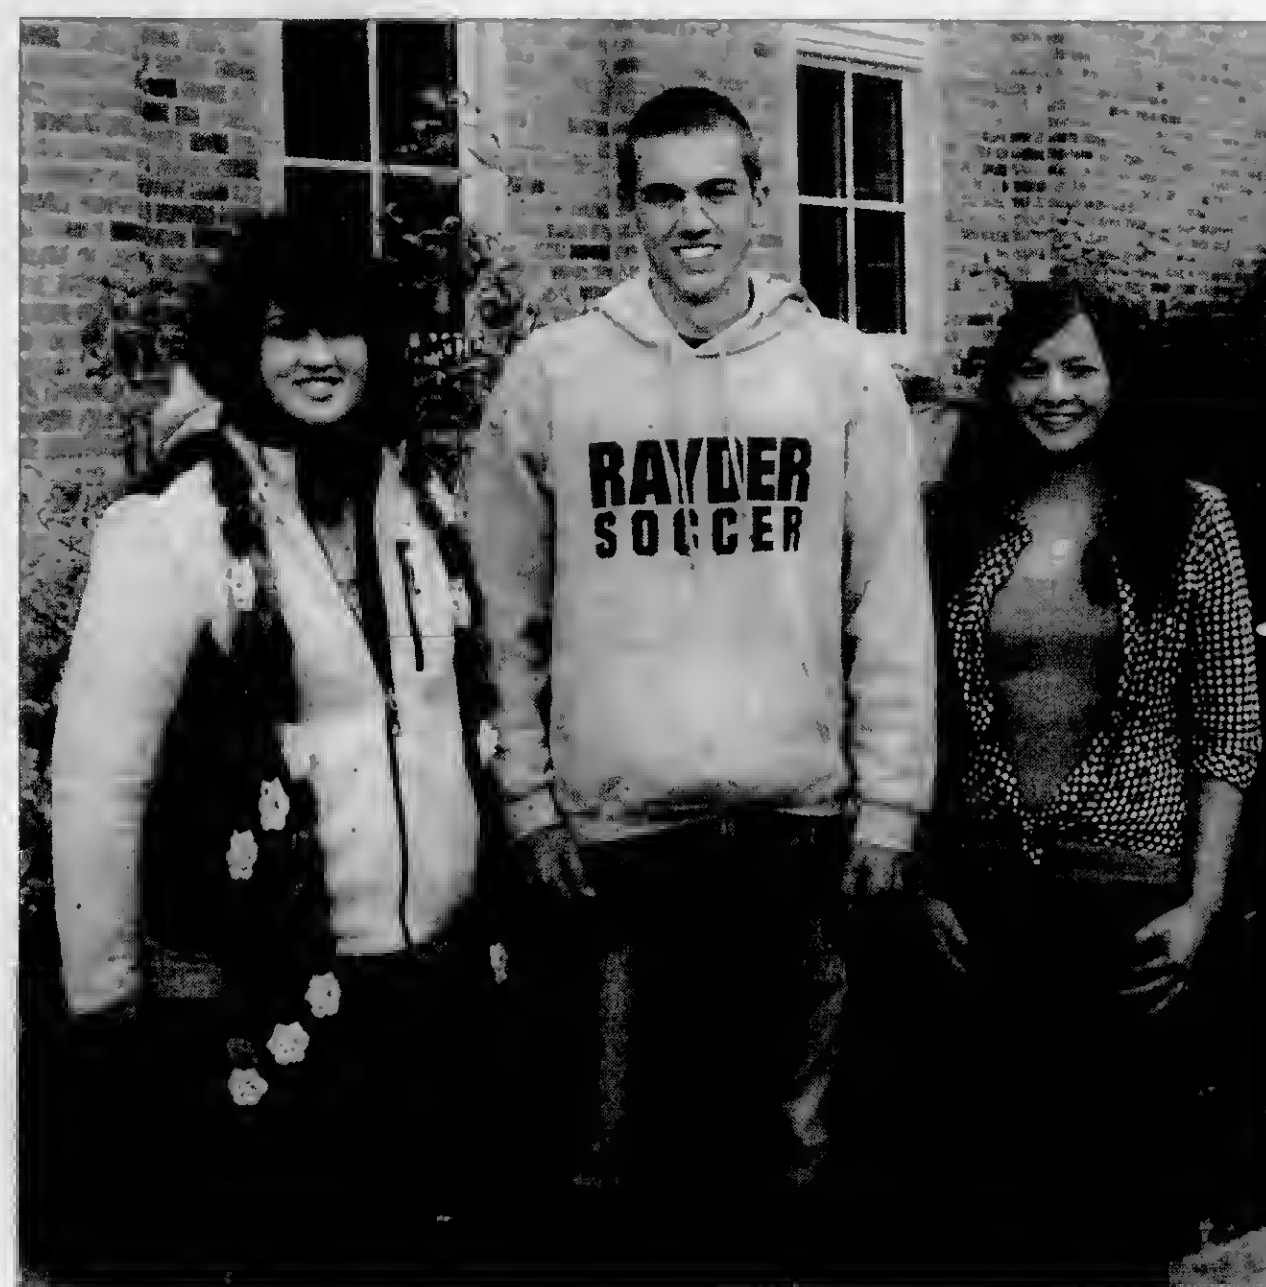

Wade agreed, saying, "My YAC experience has had a great effect on my vision of the community and the world. I never realized how many nonprofit organizations there are and how many people need our help to live the normal lives we strive for."

Wade also had some advice to students who might apply for membership on the youth advisory committee in the future. "Be thankful for the opportunity to be a part of this wonderful organization," he said, adding, "Take full advantage and be the change that your community needs."

The Youth Fund was launched in 1992 with a million dollar challenge from the Kellogg Foundation. The local community, through the generosity of many donors, was successfully met in just four years. Since that time, the committee has awarded more than $668,000 in grants to benefit this area's children, teens and families.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds — all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come.

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

Feast or famine

As many prepare for holiday banquets, food pantries remain in high demand

KRISTIN BATES
SATURDAY
STAFF WRITER

With the colder temperatures and the impending arrival of snow, many area food pantries are preparing for the long winter months and the expected demand for assistance, which has been on the rise since 2008.

"In January of 2008, we had 93 families who needed help feeding their families throughout the month. This number has continued to climb each month through the years; however, recently, this has increased dramatically. We supplied 180 families this past September and the numbers are going to be even higher this month," said Kathy Reid, administrator for the Care & Share Food Pantry in East Jordan.

Reid, who has volunteered her services for the pantry since 1995, recently was welcomed aboard as its first paid member in March 2010. All together, she has 10-12 volunteers helping run the pantry.

"I work with a computer program which we determine the food needed for the family by assessing their needs, then it is printed. This list is given to the volunteers, who pack the items up. We try to distribute a week's worth of food to each family. With this list, families aren't given food they don't want or know how to use, which cuts down on waste,"

Janik not chosen for Kingsley schools position

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik was not chosen to be the next superintendent for Kingsley Area School.

Kingsley interim superintendent Mike Jurgensen said during a special school board meeting Thursday, the Kingsley Area Schools Board of Education voted to offer the superintendent's position to one of the other three finalists for the position, Clio High School Principal Keith Smith.

Jurgensen said the offer was contingent upon successful contract negotiations between the school board and Smith.

The other two finalists

were Lisa DiCamilo, coordinator of special programs and projects for Elktion-Pigeon-Bayport Laker Schools and Kingsley Area Schools Business Manager James Mouch. Janik, who has been the district's superintendent since June of 2007, earlier told the Courier he applied for the position with Kingsley Schools, which has about 500 more students than Charlevoix, because it would be a career stepping stone for him.

Welcome home

Charlevoix High School graduate and former Charlevoix Elementary School student Brian Christiansen, who is currently serving in the U.S. Navy, took time out of his leave last week to pay a visit to the third-grade students at his former elementary school. Christiansen, 25, is the son of Julie and Dave Christiansen of Charlevoix. His leave, which runs through Dec. 5, marks the first time he has been home in three years. He is currently stationed in Guam where he works in search and rescue. He has previously served in other locations such as Kuwait and Iraq. On Thursday, Christiansen talked with the students about his role in the Navy and his personal interests. Pictured standing behind the third-grade class are (from left) third-grade teachers Julie McLean and Cathy Silberhorn, Christiansen and elementary school principal Doug Drenth.

Clarification on McSaubra rate increase story

A story appearing in the Wednesday, Nov. 17 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about the Charlevoix City Council approving rate increases for the Mount McSaubra Recreation Area ski operations for the coming season requires some clarification.

While it is correct that in August, the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees decided that it would not make a contribution to the operation of the ski hill as it did for the 2009-10 season, the amount requested by the city was significantly more than the $7,000 the township contributed last year.

In fact, the amount that the city requested from the township was $16,371 — more than double the amount that the township had contributed the prior year. For this contribution the city would have extended the lower rates enjoyed by city residents at Mount McSaubra to residents in Charlevoix Township, as it did the prior year for the $7,000 contribution.

The $16,371 figure was not mentioned at the Monday, Nov. 15 meeting at which the rate increase was approved, nor was it mentioned in the packet accompanying the council's agenda, or in an Aug. 10 letter from Charlevoix Township Supervisor Dale Glass to Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel included in the packet. In the letter Glass indicates that the township has chosen not to contribute to the ski hill operation because of budget constraints, but does not mention the increase in the amount requested.

Straebel said the township was derived from records of usage at the ski area collected last season which showed that Charlevoix Township residents accounted for about 31 percent of users at the facility. That percentage was then multiplied by the area's operating deficit.

Glass said that the board had chosen to contribute last year as a means of helping young people from the township more easily afford using the ski area. However, he said, when the amount requested came in significantly higher than last year, the board chose not to participate this year.

In the first lawsuit, filed in Charlevoix County Circuit Court on Oct. 22, Kelisha Veryser claims she was forced to resign from her position in March "in response to threats and intimidation of various supervisors all of whom were (diocese) employees."

Former St. Mary's principal sues diocese

Kelisha Veryser claims she was wrongfully discharged from her position, diocese files counter suit

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The former principal at St. Mary's School in Charlevoix has filed a lawsuit against the Diocese of Gaylord in which she claims she was wrongfully terminated from her position at the school earlier this year.

The diocese has since filed both an answer to the suit denying the allegations, and filed its own counter-suit seeking repayment of money it claims were misappropriated.

In the first lawsuit, filed in Charlevoix County Circuit Court on Oct. 22, Kelisha Veryser claims she was forced to resign from her position in March "in response to threats and intimidation of various supervisors all of whom were (diocese) employees."

In the lawsuit Veryser claims that prior to her resignation, her supervisors accused her of "utilizing funds from the enrichment program for her personal benefit and threatened her with public exposure and prosecution if she did not resign immediately."

Veryser goes on to claim that the conduct which were the basis of the diocese officials' accusations had been authorized by her immediate supervisor and had been reviewed in audits by the diocese don in the two preceding years "without complaint or comment."

In the suit, Veryser claims diocese officials told her that if she resigned immediately, there would be no further consequences, but if she fought the allegations, the matter would be reported to the police and become public.

However, Veryser claims after her resignation, the diocese "intensified its investigation, reported it to the police and broadcasted their allegations throughout segments of the community."

Veryser claims that she was made to be a "scapegoat" for shoddy bookkeeping practices set up by her supervisors prior to her arrival.

"After more than seven months of relentless investigation, the (diocese) has failed to provide any reason or justification for its demand of (Veryser's) resignation or its continuing 'investigation' or (Veryser's) management of the business affairs of St. Mary's School," the lawsuit reads.

Veryser claims the diocese breached her employment contract "by forcing her resignation in response to its threats thereby constituting wrongful constructive discharge." She also claims that the diocese has defamed her both professionally and personally, that she has lost not only the income and benefits from the position but also, "all future employability in the position for which she has been trained and otherwise." She also claims the diocese intentionally inflicted emotional distress upon her.

Veryser does not specify the amount she is seeking the suit other than it "fully and fairly compensates her for her losses past and in the future" and that it exceeds the $25,000 minimum for the circuit court to have jurisdiction.

In its answer to Veryser's lawsuit, filed on Nov. 15, the diocese denies her allegation and asserts multiple possible defenses. It also filed a counter-suit repayment of the diocese money it says Veryser converted to her own use.

In its suit, the diocese claims that as principal of the school, Veryser had access to the various accounts of St. Mary School and/or church and a credit card in the name of the school. Diocese officials claim that on various occasions while employed with the school, Veryser used the accounts or credit cards for her or her family's personal use, or non-school matters, and that she was never authorized to do so.

Finally, the diocese claims that despite being presented with records and reports of her alleged personal use of school accounts, Veryser has failed to return any of the funds in question.

In the suit the diocese does not specify how much it believes Veryser owes the diocese but it also claims the amount is in excess of the $25,000 circuit court minimum. The diocese also asks the court to award it "treble" damages, which are punitive damages up to three times the amount it claims to be owed.

Contacted Monday, Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said his office did receive a complaint about the matter from the diocese. However, Doan said because he is a parishioner at St Mary's Church, he turned the matter over to the Michigan State Police.

Michigan State Police Det. Sgt. Jerry Briolat, who is handling the case, did not return a message seeking an update on the status of the case before presstime Tuesday.

No court dates have yet been set in the civil suit.

Veryser was hired as the school's principal in 2006 and resigned on March 19 of this year. In mid-April she told the Courier that she said she quit because of "personal reasons."

A time of thanks

Pumpkins that were lucky enough to remain unscathed from Halloween festivities have met their demise in my oven. They are patiently cooling on the kitchen counter until their pulp becomes the base for a beautiful pumpkin pie.

As the holiday draws near, requests begin to come in for specific foods — ones other than the usual favorites. We all possess our own unique likes and dislikes and while whipping up a large dinner it becomes very noticeable.

In our home there will always be at least two different varieties available in each of the mainstays of our Thanksgiving meal. Stuffing — the traditional breaded and then the yippie version with wild rice. I enjoy making cranberry relish with fresh berries and steaming them with oranges. Most family members prefer it sliced straight from a can. Potatoes will be Idaho and mashed, accented with the rich flavors of cream cheese and garlic while others will be sweet; baked to perfection with marshmallows that missed out on becoming summer's morsels. Green beans are baked as a casserole with fried onions and mushroom soup or slowly steamed with slivered almonds.

Biscuits will be freshly baked and buttered or served smothered in sausage gravy. Just writing about this menu is making me hungry so if you feel the need to leave your newspaper and get a snack from the kitchen, please be my guest. Yep, it's quite the smorgasbord but it's the coming together that is important, almost as important as the meal itself. We are gathering to be thankful

A LOOK AT LIFE

we have our health, our job or that we are still able to contact a family member or friend living far away and hear a voice that soothes our heart. Thankful we have a little bit of piece of heaven in Northern Michigan. That even though we are all different we can come together and enjoy the camaraderie of a holiday where we have different philosophies and life styles and still be under the same roof. We put all differences aside to be a family around the table or in some cases a couple of tables and maybe a few TV trays in between.

It's the holiday that focuses on being thankful. Whether you eat a meal at a local church, with your in-laws, in your parents' home, or that of a friend; taking time to reflect on your year is helpful in giving you direction on what's important in life. Look around and you'll realize your own situation may be better than you thought. Talking with a family member, friend or new acquaintance will give you yet another outlook on life itself.

For some of us who have experienced the loss of a parent, spouse or good friend it's helpful to change up your routine by doing at least one thing different. It makes the sorrow a little less overwhelming. The change can be as simple as eating a Thanksgiving meal at a different time of day, adding new friends to sit at your table or changing the location where you usually eat this hearty meal.

Whether you prefer dark meat or light, potatoes mashed or sweet, it's good to be reminded we are all family by blood or friendship and that besides watching football, hunting, or eating, it's just plain nice to share it with others realizing the more we are different the more we are the same. We all want peace in our lives and in our homes. Good health and enough time in our lives so we may continue to share stories and touch each other's lives. From our home to yours we wish everyone a very blessed, bountiful, and beautiful holiday.

LETTERS to the editor

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR EXPLAINS MCSAUBA CONTRIBUTION DECISION

Editor:

The primary reason that Charlevoix Township contributed the $7,000 in the past year was because by that contribution, township residents of 15 years of age and younger could use the ski hill facilities at the same rate as in-city residents. The township board felt that this contribution would also subsidize the cost of operating the ski hill facilities.

The request for a contribution from the City of Charlevoix to subsidize the ski hill for the present year was $16,371 and only a payment of this amount would allow in-city rates to township residents. One of the main reasons the township made a contribution was for the benefit of those children where their financial situation was such that a bit of help was needed for them to enjoy the facilities. However, the request of more than twice the prior year was not feasible at this time. Future contributions will be considered on a yearly basis.

ELKS SEEK SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS

Editor:

In early October, letters were sent out to area high school guidance counselors informing them of scholarship opportunities that are available through the Elks National Foundation. The Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks in Charlevoix is proud to be a part of an organization that recognizes our youth and their accomplishments. The Elks National Foundation is second only to the U.S. government in the amount of college scholarships awarded to high school seniors. This year alone the Elks will award almost $2.3 million in four-year scholarships to 500 high school seniors through its Most Valuable Student Scholarship competition. In addition to the national level awards, the Michigan Elks will award $64,000 in one-year scholarships to 64 high school students.

This award, along with the Elk's "Legacy" award is available online. The Legacy award is for a child or grandchild of an active Elks member. The Most Valuable Student award is open to all current seniors. To download an application, go to www.elks.org/enf/scholars/mvs.cfm for the Most Valuable Student Scholarship and www.elks.org/enf/scholars/legacy.cfm for the Legacy award. Completed applications may be dropped off or mailed to Charlevoix Elks Lodge, 104 Mason St. Suite 105, Charlevoix, MI 49720 by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 1.

Another award worthy of mention is the Gold Key Scholarship Program. This scholarship is intended to aid special-needs students who wish to continue their education at an accredited college, university, licensed trade or vocational school. A member lodge must sponsor the candidate. This award is in the amount of $2,000 per year and may be renewable for up to three additional years.

We hope to have a great response from all schools within the Char-Em ISD. Last year we received approximately 10 applications and look forward to many more this year. A young man from East Jordan was the recipient of a Gold Key award and, a young woman from Petoskey was awarded a $1,000 scholarship. For more information drop us a line at the address list above or at chxelks@yahoo.com.

explained Reid.

The Harbor Springs Community Food Pantry reports a 29 percent increase in need over the past year and November is considerably busier.

At the Boyne City Community Food Pantry, boxes are packed with dry goods and nonperishable items. However, donated items that might be hard for families to use are offered on the side.

Lei Nahinu, director of the pantry, said, "We don't want someone to take an item that they wouldn't know how to use or would throw away. This way, the food isn't wasted and is available for those who want it. We find this cuts down on waste."

For volunteer opportunities, there are many possibilities. Kathy Hart, executive director of the Manna Food Project in Harbor Springs, suggested making a call to the pantry ahead of time to make sure that you are given the right opportunity to serve. In addition to distribution to the families, volunteers are needed to pick up collections, haul boxes to out to vehicles, act as a personal shopper and much more.

"Our most faithful volunteers are in their 70s and 80s. We work with their limitations to ensure it is a beneficial experience for everyone. We are willing and able to accommodate school or youth groups who would like to volunteer their time. There is always an opportunity to volunteer," added Hart.

Sue Dixon, a volunteer for the past 10 years at the Community Food Pantry in Charlevoix, agreed.

"We have about 40 volunteers that help us. One of our volunteers is 82 years old and has been with the pantry since the beginning. Without their help and the Manna Food Bank, which we are able to utilize twice a month and purchase food for 16 cents a pound, it would be difficult to service our 115 families," said Dixon.

The Manna Food Project, located in Harbor Springs, helps distribute food to 34 different food pantries across Northern Michigan. In 2009, they supplied approximately 1.7 million pounds of food to 137,635 families in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Through their website, www.mannafoodproject.org, a person can make a monetary donation and designate the specific food pantry they wish to receive the gift.

"We can always use the staple items such as peanut butter, tuna fish, canned fruits and vegetables. Non-perishable items, especially soup during the winter, are desirable," said Hart.

Dixon suggested, "Personal items such as laundry soap, deodorant, diapers and shampoo are important. We feel like we need to spend our monetary donations on food, so, these items are offered a small portion of the time."

Pfeifer said, "We need the hearty meals or something substantial such as stews, raviolis, dried potatoes or cereal. We offer personal items once a month and it would be great to increase this. Also, cookies would be a nice donation because this is an item we don't typically purchase."

Other desirable items are fresh vegetables and produce, baked goods, such as bagels or doughnuts, and family size pasta dishes, which include macaroni and cheese. Personal items include toothpaste, shampoo, conditioner and body lotions.

Nahinu said, "We live in a great area. It isn't easy seeing our neighbors struggling to keep their heads above water. By giving these families a week's supply of food, we help keep them going and on their feet. After all, isn't that what a community does? We stick together."

Charlevoix County's new human resources coordinator, Kevin Shepard, 42, started work on Monday, Nov. 15. He's ready to take on the challenges of his position and become part of the county team.

After years of discussion about hiring a human resources coordinator and months of searching to fill the spot, the board of commissioners hired Shepard to help manage county employees.

"I'm very happy to be here and to get settled into the job, Shepard said.

The county has never had a human resources person before to help manage its employees so there may be an adjustment period for everyone as Shepard gets situated into his new position. That's a challenge he's ready to face.

"Initially, the challenge will be getting the county employees to work with an HR person for the first time. They need to get to know me and trust me and I need to get to know them," he said.

Shepard was born and raised in the city of Charlevoix, but nine years in the U.S. Air Force took him around the country where he gained education and experience, preparing him for his career.

"While in the Air Force I was a training manager and went to school at the same time. I got my bachelor's degree from Southern Illinois University and my master's degree from the University of Oklahoma," Shepard said.

After serving in the military, Shepard came back to Northern Michigan, started a family and began his career in human resources.

"Most recently, I worked in human resources at Lexamar in Boyne City. I was there for eight years and that really helped prepare me for this job," Shepard said.

He feels the basics of the position will be similar to his past experience. He will be helping coordinate between 170 and 180 employees at the county and hopes he will be able to help things operate efficiently. He will help manage hiring, purchasing, personnel policies, employee compensation and other duties.

"There has been a need here for an HR person for a long time. They've been doing a good job with the basic HR functions, but there's another level that I hope to provide for them to help things run smoothly," Shepard said.

He currently lives in East Jordan with his wife and two sons and spends his free time enjoying sporting events with his family.

"I'm a real sports fan. My sons are both involved in sports so I'm always running to one event or another to watch them. It's a lot of running around, but I wouldn't have it any other way," Shepard said.

The walls of his new office are still bare after only one day on the job. He will soon add his personal touch to the room with the addition of photos of his family, but those aren't the only faces he hopes to see in his office as he settles in.

"I always want to have an open door policy. I want people to always feel welcome coming to me with any questions, concerns or just to say hello. My success here in this position is knowing people and that starts with being accessible to them," Shepard said.

Hitting the road

After 22 years, Wayne Saunders retiring from road commission

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — After nearly a lifetime of service to the community, one Charlevoix County Road Commission board member is ready to step down and enjoy his golden years.

Wayne Saunders, 80, has lived in East Jordan almost his entire life. And during much of that time he has served on numerous boards, commissions and panels, has been a farmer and a friend to the community, but starting the first of the year he will be relaxing.

"I've been serving on boards most of my life. I want to relax and enjoy warmer winters in Florida," Saunders said, rubbing his chin thoughtfully with his work-worn hand.

Saunders' life started in Charlevoix County in 1930. He was born in the old Charlevoix hospital and then was brought home to his parents' farm, which is only a couple miles from where he lives today with his wife, Sally.

"I was born and raised on a farm and never got far from it," Saunders said.

He graduated from high school in 1947 and then went to Michigan State College for a short period of time before purchasing 50 acres of farm land near the farm of his childhood.

"We bought the land, 50 acres, in 1951. We lived in Traverse City then to make enough money to pay for the land. Then moved here in 1952," Saunders said.

He later purchased more land to make it an even 210 acres for farming hay and beef cattle.

"He stopped farming in 1998 and then he went right into gardening. He's never really relaxed," said Sally.

While farming his land, Saunders started getting into local politics.

"In 1964 I got into public office and have been in it ever since," he said.

Among his public positions were: treasurer of three different churches, director of a co-op, Eveline Township board member and Eveline Township supervisor.

In 1988 Saunders was selected to be on the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

"There was a lot of debt when I started on the board. They were laying people off and just didn't have money. We had to stop spending money," he said.

For the next 22 years he helped the county make decisions about building and maintaining roads with numerous other board members who came and went.

Saunders is retiring with two years left on his six-year term. The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is currently conducting interviews to fill the final two years of Saunders' term. They are also interviewing to fill Doug Way's seat because his term expires at the end of this year. There are nine applicants for the position.

and they hope to make a decision on both seats later this month.

Saunders is happy to be retiring from the position so he can relax and travel the country to visit his three daughters and 15 grandkids in California, North Carolina and Wisconsin, but he wishes the best of luck to the road commission in his absence.

"Roads are very important to us. I hope they manage to maintain them. We need better roads than we did 50 years ago because of the way cars are built and I hope they can maintain them. There are good people working for the road commission. They will do fine," Saunders said.

His time in public office is nearly done and when the final meeting is adjourned he will be packing his warm-weather clothes and hitting the open road.

"I'm heading south as soon as I'm done with the board. I only have three meetings left," Saunders said, smiling.

depiction of traditional Thanksgiving items and includes a television public service announcement, billboards, outdoor banners and place mats in restaurants.

It precedes the annual Operation C.A.R.E. enforcement for Thanksgiving and the ensuing weekend.

Eleven people were killed in 10 traffic accidents across Michigan over last year's Thanksgiving holiday.

Charter school bands gather

Northwest Academy band members performed at Concord Montessori and Community School in Mancelona on Tuesday, Nov. 16, during "An Evening of Band Music." The event followed a day of mass band practice and collaboration between Northwest Academy, Concord Montessori and Community and Concord Academy Boyne. Leaders from the schools hope to involve more charter schools from the region and create an annual event. Northwest Academy Director Gary Stutzman said the event was so successful that school officials are now planning a spring event sponsored by Circle of the Arts to showcase visual arts, dance, vocals, strings and band student talent. For MacLeod, this marks the second consecutive year she has received the post-season distinction.

"It is such an honor to once again be named the Great Lakes Athlete of the Year," said MacLeod. "I am so happy to be recognized with such a great distinction. Most importantly, this is something that signifies the hard work the whole team has put into the year in getting where we are heading into the final race of the season on Monday. At the beginning of the season, this was something my coaches and I put into my race plan so it has been something I was working towards."

MacLeod won the NCAA Great Lakes Regional by seven seconds over Wisconsin's Emily Sisson for her second-straight regional crown. MacLeod is the first in Michigan State history to win back-to-back regional titles. The Spartans also won the Big Ten title, clocking a career-best 6k time of 19:53.8 to earn Big Ten Athlete of the Year distinction.

The Loveland, Ohio, native, has led the Spartans this season in each of her five races she has competed in, finishing in the top-nine in each of those races. MacLeod has been the top runner in three races this year, highlighted by her first place showing at both the Big Ten Championships and the NCAA Great Lakes Regional.

Drenth, a 1977 Charlevoix High School graduate and All-State cross country runner, joins MacLeod for his second coach of the year distinction this season as he earned Big Ten Women's Coach of the Year. MSU finished tops at the conference meet for the first time since the 2001 season, and just the third time in school history. Drenth's Spartans won the NCAA Great Lakes Regional by 16 points over second-place Michigan, their first since taking titles in 2006 and 2007. Michigan State placed three in the race's top 11 at the regional meet. Drenth's crew, ranked 16th nationally, finished sixth at the Pre-National Invitational meet earlier this season. This marks the third time Drenth has received Regional Coach of the Year honors in his MSU career (2006, 2007).

MacLeod and Drenth, along with the rest of the women's team traveled to Terre Haute, Ind. on Monday for their 12th-consecutive NCAA Championships appearance, and 19th overall. The women's team finished 23rd with a score of 481. MacLeod paced the Spartans with a time of 20:48 to finish 37th overall.

Madison earns college soccer accolades

Charlevoix's Belle Madison was one of four members of the Ohio Wesleyan University women's soccer team recently named to the All-North Coast Athletic Conference teams. Madison, a defensive midfielder, contributed 2 goals to the Bishop offense in 2010. She was a first-team All-NCAC selection for the second straight season.

Ohio Wesleyan finished the season with a 4-10-3 record. The Bishops finished sixth in the NCAC championship race.

Jordan Valley Community band to present concert

The Jordan Valley Community Band will present its "Winter Concert" at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 5, in the East Jordan High School auditorium. In addition to movements from Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" and other classic Christmas melodies, the program will once again feature song selections performed by the East Jordan Rotary Barber-shoppers. Admission is free. Now in its 20th year, the East Jordan Community Band not only provides area musicians with a means for continued musical expression, but is also an important cultural resource for our area. With diverse musical backgrounds and abilities, members range in age from students to senior citizens who travel from communities in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties to participate. If you or someone you know plays an instrument or has played in the past and would like to join us, contact director, Rebecca Palmer at (231) 582-3734, president, Leslie Cunningham at (231) 547-2145 or secretary/treasurer, Phyllis Childs at (231) 582-3488 to have your name added to the organization's mailing list or if you need help finding an instrument.

Toys for Tots campaign kicks off

Large boxes wrapped in Christmas paper and banners with the well-known train engine logo have sprung at businesses and other locations all over the Charlevoix Area in the past week heralding the start of this year's Toys for Tots campaign.

Since 1947, U.S. Marines have collected toys at Christmas time and distributed delivered them to less fortunate children.

In the Charlevoix area, the Toys for Tots program is overseen by the Northern Michigan Marine Corps League #690 representing the Marine Corps Reserve.

Boxes for the collection of new, unwrapped toys have been placed at 30 area businesses and organizations. Organizers suggest contributions such as toys, batteries, wrapping paper, or personal items such as backpacks, books, games, sleeping bags.

Those wishing to contribute to this year's Toys for Tots campaign, should have their donations placed in a collection box by Wednesday, Dec. 15.

The toys and other items will be distributed through the Charlevoix Community Christmas program, which will conduct its distribution day on Saturday, Dec. 17.

Collection locations for this year's drive include:

Charlevoix Senior Center, Ace Hardware, Dollar Tree, K-Mart, Rite Aid, Copy Plus, Dollar General, Glen's, Harbor Industries, Fox Motors, Holiday Gas Station, Flap Jack Restaurant, Oleson's, Clothing Company, First State Bank, Bay Winds Federal Credit Union, First State Bank, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Weathervane Restaurant, Grey Gables Inn Restaurant, Charlevoix Elementary School, Charlevoix High School, Charlevoix High School Cheerleaders, Walgreens, Charlevoix City Hall, Bold Designs, Muscle Menders, Bethany Lutheran Church, Greensky Hill Church, Republican Party (Tim Boyko), Charlevoix Municipal Airport, Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, Front Porch Restaurant (Ellsworth).

Also, the Grey Gables is offering a program through which those who bring in one toy will receive 20 percent off their entree, and 40 percent off for two toys.

For more information about the program, contact, Russell Bolt, at (231) 547-4855.

"We'd like to thank all the many volunteers who, without their dedication to the children and young teens, this project would not happen," Bolt, a member of the Toys for Tots committee said.

Marking the kickoff of this year's Toys for Tots campaign are (front, from left) Charlie Butcher, Russ Bolt, Ken Staley, and George Wahl; and (back, from left) Fox Motors representatives Mike Bennett and Frank Veraldi. The Fox Motors locations south of Charlevoix are just two of about 30 locations around the area where toys and other items may be dropped off for the campaign.

Soup and more...

From 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 4 (during Flurry Fest) the Charlevoix United Methodist Church invites the community to enjoy a warming bowl of soup and find some bargains too. The church will offer a variety of homemade soups for $3 per bowl. Baked goods, and crafted or gently used Christmas items will also be for sale. The church is located on the corner of Clinton and State streets, one block west of the Bridge Street traffic light.

Fresh, pasture-raised turkeys growing in popularity

BRANDON HUBBARD
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

MANCELONA — Maybe the most tell-tale sign that Thanksgiving is approaching isn't the boys in orange heading to deer camp, or the occasional snowflake in Northern Michigan, but rather the arrival of hundreds of white-feathered turkeys appearing at local farms.

Just north of Mancelona on M-66, one group of local downy-swaddled turkeys mill about the fenced lawn at Duerksen Turkey Farm, where about 600 pasture-raised birds are living out their final days of culinary privilege -- combining the grass at will -- to be some of the tastiest and most pampered fowls headed to the table this November.

More than 247 million turkeys are expected to be raised for consumption in America for 2010, with about 31 percent of those birds being eaten over the holidays, according to the National Turkey Federation, a Washington, D.C.-based group of industry advocates.

The majority of those turkeys are raised in "environmentally controlled barns" to eventually be sold as a frozen bowling ball of turkey at the grocery store.

But, a small niche of turkey producers nationally and locally have begun taking a free-range approach to farming.

"They love being outside," Rick Duerksen, says walking out to where the turkeys roam on the 44-acre farm he runs with his wife, Sue.

In 2007, the family-owned Duerksen Turkey Farm elected make the switch to pasture-raised turkeys after doing business for more than 20 years.

"We feel the pasture-raising makes the big difference in the meat and quality," Rick said.

Keeping his birds free of chemicals, antibiotics and growth hormones has made Duerksen's turkey meat popular at regional farm markets and locations such as the Grain Train in Petoskey, which sells the meat in its deli.

"No injections at all means, it really makes things like animal husbandry important,"

Rick said. "Here if the bird gets sick, it dies. So, it is really important to keep their water clean, their litter dry, keep them in areas where it is never messy. They are happy right up until the end."

For Thanksgiving, Duerksen begins to harvest their turkeys the Friday before the holiday to keep the meat fresh and avoid freezing.

One nutritional value to eating pasture-raised turkeys is the added Omega-3 fatty acids in the meat -- the healthy substance that has made salmon famous in recent years -- as a result of the added greens and grass in the turkeys' diet.

Allowing the turkeys to walk freely also helps avoid toxic ammonia fumes often associated with crowded growing houses.

"What we try to do is resemble what they experience in the wild," Rick added.

Sherry Rosenblatt, spokesperson for the American Turkey Federation, said "free-range" -- birds with access to the outside -- as defined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, remains a small niche market.

"We're not cookie-cutter consumers, so there is a wide variety of products to choose from -- especially during the holiday season," Rosenblatt said. "(Free-range turkeys are) a little harder to raise, cost a little bit more, but for those people who philosophically choose to and can financially afford to do so, they are available."

National averages for turkey put a conventionally raised turkey at about $2 per pound. Duerksen's website lists their prices at $3.25 per pound for the coming season.

But, Rick stands by his product and the extra care that translates to a little more at the register.

"Obviously, you can go into a store and get a turkey for a lot less money -- you don't know how it has been raised or what it has been fed," he said. "But, a growing movement has been to grow local and chemical free, and a pasture-raised turkey is what we feel is the top of the line."

For more information and turkey recipes from the National Turkey Federation, visit www.eatmoreturkey.com.

The anatomy of a turkey

The Caruncle -- a red-pink fleshy growth on the head and upper neck of the turkey

The Snood -- a long, red, fleshy growth from the base of the beak that hangs down over the beak

The Wattle -- a bright red appendage at the neck

The Beard -- a black lock of hair found on the chest of the male turkey

A large group of turkeys is called a flock.

A baby turkey is called a poult and is tan and brown.

Turkey eggs are tan with brown specks and are larger than chicken eggs.

Male turkeys are toms. Female turkeys are hens.

East Jordan school audit shows budget improvements

ALICE PERRAULT
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — As another fiscal year comes to an end, East Jordan Public Schools received its annual audit for the 2009-2010 school year.

Auditor Ron Harris of the Harris Group visited with the school board during its regular meeting Monday night, Nov. 15.

He said, "You (the school district) have been following all the rules applied to your school when it comes to budgeting."

According to the audit, the district's financial status improved this year. Total net assets increased to about $8 million compared to $6.9 million last year. The taxable value of all properties in the district also increased this year by 3.3 percent.

Total revenues and expenditures for the district were $11,883,996 and $10,751,849 respectively. Last year, revenues were $11,807,060 and expenditures were $11,328,770. This means the district gained $76,936 in revenue and reduced expenditures by $576,921 compared to the last school year. The general fund currently is $999,465.

Total assets for the district were $15,783,185 and liabilities were $7,726,097.

Another factor impacting the district's budget is declining enrollment. The district had approximately 1,081 students at the end of the 2009-2010 fiscal year. This is a reduction of about 46 students. As of count day in early October, the district had about 1,068 students.

Business manager Brian Olszewski said, "Overall we did end up with a good fund balance."

"My opinion of the budget is very positive, I was very pleased that we started with nearly a $1 million fund equity. I will do my best to preserve that," superintendent Susan Wooden said.

Harris did mention the district needs to move its athletic fund into the general fund as it is not a self-sustaining fund and therefore cannot be listed as such. He also informed the district to keep an eye on factors that could affect the 2010-2011 budget. These include declining student enrollment combined with state aid not expected to go above $7,151 per pupil; increases in health insurance rates, retirement benefit and others.

Board president Kevin Keane said, "It was a great budget. Considering our position we couldn't have done better. We were able to build up that fund balance because we didn't spend money on things we needed. We are going to have to now spend down that general fund to get some programs and equipment that we need."

Keane added there is a chance that the general fund will be reduced in the 2010-2011 budget as there is currently a deficit.

After the board received their audit, they went into closed session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

The next school board meeting is 5:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 20, in the media center at East Jordan High School. For more information, contact Brian Olszewski at (231) 536-7564.

American Legion closing its hall

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

After spending most of its 87-year history at its home at 106 East Garfield St., the Charlevoix American Legion Post 226 is closing its hall (but not the organization) next week.

Post commander Joe Seidel said the move was prompted by dwindling member participation.

"We (close the hall) with a heavy heart," Seidel wrote in a letter announcing the closure. "However, declining participation has forced us to do so in order to prevent worse consequences."

The organization itself, however, plans to continue on, operating out of the Charlevoix

VFW Post 1153 building on U.S. 31 just north of the city.

Coincidentally, the building on Garfield will host its final event — the post's Christmas dinner — on Tuesday, Dec. 7, the anniversary of the attacks on Pearl Harbor.

Seidel said that the post currently has about 100 members on its roster, but there are only about eight who are active.

He said that makes it difficult to conduct post functions and impractical to keep paying the costs associated with maintaining and operating the post building on Garfield.

The post has also put the monthly pancake breakfasts it has hosted for many years as a fundraiser on the back burner — indefinitely.

"We want the community to know how grateful we are for all the support they have shown — especially for the pancake breakfasts — over the years," Seidel said.

If dwindling numbers of active members weren't enough to flip the switch on the breakfasts, the fact that the VFW hall's kitchen isn't certified for such events was.

"With things like paying $1,000-$2,000 a year for snowplowing and the gas bill, we were exceeding our ability to operate on with our limited resources," Seidel said.

Seidel said in recent years the post's activities have been largely limited to providing color guards and honor guards for area veterans' funerals, parades and ceremonies such as Memorial Day and Veteran's Day.

He said the closure of the hall, a former school building that was constructed in the late 1890s, is a sad milestone for him, personally as well.

Retired from a career in the U.S. Army, and the son of Legion members, Seidel recalls spending a great deal of time at the hall as a child.

"I grew up in that building," he said. "I remember setting up for pancake breakfasts as a kid."

Despite the somber tone that comes with closing the hall and putting it up for sale, Seidel said there is hope among organization officials that the change will provide an opportunity for rejuvenation.

"Our activities have really gone down from what the Legion was doing when I was a kid," he said. "Hopefully when if we are not being distracted by an old building, we can re-establish some of those programs," Seidel said.

He said several scholarship programs and Boys State and Girls State as just a couple examples of programs they hope to bring back. He said the group also plans to continue its efforts to bring in new members, especially among younger, more recent veterans.

The Charlevoix American Legion Post 226 will host its first monthly meeting at the VFW hall at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 4.

Seidel said the he's hoping to get started on rejuvenating the organization right away with plans to make the first meeting a bit of open house. Anyone interested in learning more about the American Legion may come to a meeting on the first Tuesday of the month or call Seidel at (231) 547-2181.

Crash in Cadillac claims former Charlevoix teenager

A former Charlevoix teenager and another person died in a traffic crash that took place near Cadillac Wednesday, Nov. 24.

State police officials in Cadillac identified the deceased as Steven Allen Gelderblom, 19, of Cadillac and formerly of Charlevoix and Deborah Kay Rickard, 49, of Cadillac.

Police said the crash happened at about 8 a.m. in Haring Township at the intersection of 34 Road and 39 Road. Police said Gelderblom was a passenger in a car which Rickard was driving north on 39 Road when, according to witnesses, she failed to stop at the intersection with 34 Road and was struck by a westbound semi-truck pulling a trailer.

Gelderblom was pronounced dead at the scene. Rickard died later at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

The driver of the truck was not injured in the crash.

Gelderblom was born in Cadillac, but attended Charlevoix Public Schools until he moved to Cadillac in 2008 where he was still a student. His parents are Paul and Deborah Gelderblom of Charlevoix.

New road commissioner named

County board chooses Russell MaGee, retains Doug Way

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted on Wednesday night to select candidates to fill the two vacancies on the road commission.

Doug Way was selected to return for another six year term and Russell MaGee was selected to fill the final two years of the term left vacant when road commission member Wayne Saunders put in his resignation for the first of the year.

"I personally was looking for someone with a lot of common sense, no ax to grind — that's to say no personal agenda — and someone who could learn. I didn't necessarily want someone who knew everything about roads, but someone who would have the best interest of the county in mind," said Ron Reinhardt, Charlevoix County commissioner.

Ten candidates applied for the position. Seven were interviewed on Wednesday and the other three were interviewed at an earlier date.

The board of commissioners considered pushing the vote to fill the positions to later meeting to allow themselves more time to consider the candidates, but after some discussion about the positions decided to go ahead with the vote.

"We had a lot of qualified people here and I think we need to get this thing done tonight," said Joel Evans, chairman of the board.

Way was selected with a 4-1 vote. Typically there are six total votes; however, commissioner Shirley Roloff was excluded from being able to vote because she was a candidate for the road commission.

Way has been on the road commission board for 12 years and feels his experience on the board will allow him to serve the people through discovering new ways to pay for county roads.

"We need to seek some different and creative kinds of financing to pay for our roads in the future," he said.

MaGee was selected for the board with a vote of three to two.

"Everybody I talked to about (MaGee) said he was a good person and a hard worker," Reinhardt said.

MaGee was a school teacher for 30 years, a park ranger for 19 years and has lived in Boyne Valley Township his entire life.

"I just want to do the best for the people of the area as I can," MaGee said.

Way and MaGee will join road commission board member Keith Ogden after the first of the year.

"I hope the road commission will be able to work well together and accomplish a lot," Reinhardt said.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Life lessons from life's problems

Thirty years of college teaching convinced me that problem solving is one of the most effective teaching techniques. Provide students with a solvable problem and they learn more rapidly than in situations that merely require mastery of some amount of information.

With that in mind I have recently reopened my annual advanced squirrel education program. Like any quality educational program, it has a history.

The annual installation of a winter bird feeder, offering presumably delicious, high-energy food, provides the campus for the program. Each year I attempt to provide the squirrels with new problems to solve. Of course birds also visit the feeder. There are at least a dozen species of birds seen there on an almost daily basis, but the squirrels have eaten most of the food every year, while learning to solve the problems posed.

In past semesters the squirrels have learned to walk on a thin horizontal wire for at least ten feet. They have learned to leap from surrounding, but distant branches and somehow hold onto the metal-sheathed roof of the feeder. They can balance on the thinnest of ledges, while securing and shelling sunflower seeds. They have learned to get around rat guard-like baffles fixed on the suspending wires. And they end each winter season sleek, fat and healthy.

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

Every year the squirrels have found a way to slide down the suspending wire to the feeder. This year's feeder location is too far from surrounding branches to encourage leaping. This year's problem for the squirrel students involved a way of making the suspending wire less accessible.

One of the plants I nourish in an out-of-the-way corner of my yard is called a Hercules' club. It has inch-thick branches studded with half inch, stout re-curved spines. I split one of those branches lengthwise and wrapped it around the wire suspending the feeder. What will the squirrel-students do?

They approach the suspending wire cautiously, feel the spines and retreat. One of them, an especially athletic one it seems, climbed down from the tree and approached the area on the ground. The bottom of the feeder is almost five feet above ground level. He watched and calculated for a while, then leaped and caught the bottom of the feeder. That is roughly the equivalent of a 20-foot vertical leap for a human. I chased him off the feeder to see if he could repeat the performance, and he did, this time without any hesitation. He was the only squirrel to even try. The other half-dozen of them solved the problem in their own way.

Carefully eyeing the now spiny wire, one after another they managed to tiptoe down to the feeder by stepping only in between the spines, which are less than an inch apart.

This year's squirrel education program would appear to be complete. They have solved the problem and earned a high grade. Now if only I could figure out how to solve the problem of the squirrels eating most of my bird food.

THANKSGIVING DAY DINNER SERVES 150

Editor:

The fourth annual Thanksgiving Day dinner served nearly 150 people, a record number for this event. Like any project of this nature, it could only happen with citizens and local businesses stepping up and giving of their time and talents in the service of others. This would include: the 25 people who showed up to volunteer; the Villager Pub, and Kelsey B's for cooking the 10 turkeys that Bill Schuiling donated; Grey Gables for baking the pies; Charlevoix Middle School students for making 14 center pieces; the Bergmann Center for baking the rolls and the Charlevoix Ministerial Association for their financial support. Thank you all for your support.

Sincerely,
The dinner committee

Jamie Winters works hard to make sure her guests are comfortable, but she's running out of supplies.

"This fall, our pantry and cupboards are getting pretty low," said Winters who serves as the safe home coordinator for the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey. "November and December are always our biggest months for donations, but there comes a time at the end of each year that we are really scraping thin as we wait for those donations to roll in."

The Women's Resource Center safe home in Petoskey serves approximately 175 people a year, most of them women and children who are escaping stressful and often dangerous situations.

"We housed 74 women last year and 103 children," Winters said. "Most of these families are coming in with just the shirt on their back and they have a lot going on. The best we can do is to make their stay with us as comforting as possible."

But even in an crisis situation, life has to go on. Women staying at the safe home often have the task of not only dealing with stress, but are often looking for employment, transportation, child care and housing.

"Whenever people ask me about what donations we need, I tell them to think about what you would need if you had 177 people stay at your house each year," Winters said. "There are so many foods and supplies you need to run a household."

The safe home spends approximately $25,000 each year on food and supplies, most of which comes from community donation.

On average, eight people stay at the safe home each day and the home provides 8,500 meals each year.

Everything from food to cleaning supplies, toiletries and toys need to be donated. "I really think of our kids a lot," Winters explained. "A lot of these children are in the middle of a struggle and our goal is to make it as secure for them as we can."

Winters said kid-friendly foods such as canned pasta, macaroni and cheese, and easy snacks such as fruit roll ups, granola bars, crackers, juice boxes and pudding and Jell-O cups are always well received because they are quick, easy and children can also bring them to school.

Other items, such as brownie and cake mixes allow mothers and children to do something together while taking a break from the stress.

"Every item people donate is something we need and will use, but one thing we tend to end up short on is baby supplies," Winters added. "We are always looking for diapers, baby wipes, baby food, sippy cups — those are things we really plow through in a year."

In addition to nonperishable foods and supplies, Winters said financial donations and gift card donations can go a long way.

Financial donations are used to purchase fresh vegetables and fruit on an as-needed basis to make sure nothing goes to waste.

And gift and gas cards can help women who are trying to get back on their feet.

Earlier this month the Women's Resource Center kicked off its Harvest Food Drive that runs through Thanksgiving.

As part of the campaign, shoppers at Oleson's Food Store in Petoskey can donate $1 to help support the safe home.

Craig Antoine, store manager at Oleson's, said he's happy to support the program which is in its third year.

"They do a good job at the safe home and we wanted to get involved," Antoine said. "With the economy the way it is, it's hard for everyone to raise money so we are happy to be involved."

Winters hopes the sluggish economy won't prevent people from donating the food and items they rely on each year.

She hopes generosity will once more allow her pantry and kitchen cupboards to overflow with much needed supplies.

"If you haven't before, just donate," Winters said. "The donation goes directly to serving families in need in your own community and you have a direct and positive impact on these families lives and their success."

Women's Resource Center hires prevention coordinator

Charlebois

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan has hired Dar Charlebois as its community prevention coordinator. Charlebois will be responsible for leading the community violence prevention team, in addition to providing sexual assault prevention education curriculum to area schools.

Charlebois earned degrees in education and performance art from Laurentian University and Brock University in Ontario, Canada. Her work experience has the common thread of making a difference in the lives of others and within the community.

In addition to being an inspirational speaker and teacher, Charlebois is an innovator and entrepreneur as the founder of the first yoga studio in Sault Ste. Marie, Canada. During the six years she grew the business she enjoyed inspiring customers in their journey of self-discovery.

According to a news release from the organization, her time working an actress in social issue theater has helped Charlebois to become well-versed in researching and presenting a variety of social issues in a meaningful and compelling way, including sensitive topics like incest, date rape and gender stereotyping.

"Bringing learning to life and inspiring change has been a beautiful gift to me," said Charlebois, who will be working with students, civic and social organizations and other community groups in the prevention of violence against women.

Bringing social issues to life and changing cultural norms which support negative behavior has always interested Charlebois and is one reason she was attracted to the job. She is enthusiastic about working with the center in its primary prevention efforts to eliminate violence in our community through education and awareness, while inspiring community-driven action.

For more information on community violence prevention programs, contact the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-1572.

Six begin new jobs at News-Review

RYAN BENTLEY
(231) 439-9342 RBENTLEY@PETOSKEYNEWS.COM

In recent weeks, the Petoskey News-Review has welcomed six women to new employment positions in its editorial, classified advertising and display advertising departments.

Morgan Sherburne, 27, has joined the News-Review as a feature and sports writer. She obtained a bachelor's degree in creative writing and literature from Grand Valley State University in 2006, a master's in creative writing from the University of Minnesota in 2009, and another master's in science writing from Massachusetts Institute of Technology this year.

In conjunction with the MIT program, Sherburne worked as an intern for The Nature Conservancy in Lansing, writing articles for a website and newsletter. She also has taught creative writing, composition and literature classes at Muskegon Community College.

Along with writing for the News-Review, Sherburne also will provide some content for The Graphic arts and entertainment weekly and for other publications produced by Northern Michigan Review.

"I'm excited to get more and more experience writing," she said.

A Mesick native, Sherburne now lives in Charlevoix.

Carrie Ingalls, 29, recently began work as a classified advertising sales representative at the News-Review.

During the past year, Ingalls has served as a motor-route carrier for The Graphic. She also has a background in secretarial work.

A 2000 graduate of Petoskey High School, Ingalls took coursework in business management and technology at the high-school level. She lives in Walloon Lake.

Bridge Wertz, 55, recently started a position as a display advertising sales representative for the News-Review, and will work mainly with advertising clients in the Petoskey and Walloon Lake areas.

Wertz, who recently relocated to Petoskey from Alpena, has about 20 years of experience in the newspaper field, having worked for the Traverse City Record-Eagle and The Alpena News. She has handled tasks ranging from obituary writing to advertising sales.

Along with her newspaper positions, Wertz's work background also includes an events coordinator/sales position at Northern Lights Arena in Alpena.

In her new job, Wertz believes she'll enjoy working with clients to boost their business.

"To get more people in the door is a really great feeling," she said.

Also starting a display advertising sales position is Lisa Sladek, who will deal primarily with clients around Charlevoix and Boyne City.

Sladek, a Charlevoix resident, started working in classified advertising for the News-Review's sister publication, the Charlevoix Courier, in 2005. More recently, she helped handle classified sales at the News-Review.

In her new position, Sladek, 44, believes she'll enjoy the energy level and pace of her job.

"I like change, so I like that aspect of the job," she said. "Things always seem to be changing."

"I like to have fun at work," Osborn, 48, filled a position similar to her new sales assistant job during an earlier stint at the News-Review in the 1980s. She believes she'll enjoy working for the newspaper once again.

East Jordan firm wins Chinese fireworks contest

Great Lakes Fireworks chosen over teams from Italy, Austria and China

JENNIFER RICHARDSON
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — Local resident Bruce Tyree has returned from Yueyang, China, the winner of the Yueyang Tower Cup, a fireworks competition which took place Nov. 8 in Hunan Province.

Tyree and his business partner in Great Lakes Fireworks, Barry Beltz, competed with teams from Italy and Australia, in addition to teams from the host country. The challenge was to choreograph a three minute display to traditional Chinese music.

Tyree said the fireworks and equipment were supplied by the host government, and each display had a value of $15,000-$20,000.

"Although we picked the product to go with the music, it was more about the choreography to the music," Tyree said. "Trying to get a feeling and flow into the choreography with only a three minute time limit was an artistic challenge."

Tyree said the language barrier was also a big challenge, as he and Beltz worked with Chinese technicians to orchestrate their display. But the experience also showed the partners that they can take their same ideas just about anywhere in the world and find success.

The competition was organized by the city of Yueyang to draw tourism to the area. The city has historic significance because of its tower, considered one of China's three great towers, and it is also near the heart of the fireworks industry in China. Great Lakes Fireworks received an invitation to compete in the contest in late July.

Tyree said that he and Beltz have expressed an interest in competing in the Yueyang Tower Cup again next year, but do not know at this time if they will be invited.

Looking ahead, Tyree said that he and Beltz have been notified of several more competitions coming up next year, but the details are still way out.

"One thing of note that we do have coming up is, we have been asked by the National Fireworks Association to provide the Grand Public Display at the closing night of the 2011 expo on Sept. 10, 2011, in Stevens Point, Wis.," Tyree said. "We have, of course, accepted. This display is only an exhibition and not a competition, but still an honor to be invited to provide the closing show. We have done this show once before about 10 years ago."

Great Lakes Fireworks has also provided the fireworks displays at the East Jordan Freedom Festival and Traverse City's National Cherry Festival in past years.

United Way is 55 percent to fundraising goal

Char-Em United Way representatives recently announced that the organization has passed the 55 percent mark toward its 2010 Campaign Goal of $350,000.

"At this time of Thanksgiving, we want to thank our donors who are reaching deep in their pockets to help us support community services," United Way Executive Director Martha Lancaster said. "As the economic downturn continues to hit Northern Michigan hard, we are especially grateful that so many people and businesses have been so generous to United Way and the community. Our theme of Live United is striking a responsive chord."

"We are pleased that we are ahead of dollars raised at this time last year. With the need so great in our community for a wide range of health and human services, we have increased our goal 8 percent. The Frey Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge grant if we reach the goal, which is a great incentive," Lancaster said. "All but 1.5 percent of the funds we raise stay in our community."

Programs selected for funding are reviewed by United Way's Citizen Review Panel to ensure they make a significant impact on the education, income, and health needs in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Earlier this year, Char-Em United Way invested more than $210,000 in effective health and human service programs reaching local residents. In addition, United Way is involved in many other initiatives - Volunteer Connections, Day of Caring, 2-1-1, Friends Enhancing Emmet Transit, the Poverty Reduction Initiative, and others. Funds raised this fall will be invested in community programs in the coming year.

Much of the funds raised by United Way come from workplace campaigns. Early employee and corporate support for the United Way Campaign has come from Alanson Public Schools, Huntington, PNC, and Fifth Third Banks. Fletch's, Harbor Industries, and Michigan Scientific Corporation.

Campaigns are currently underway in many other local workplaces. Donations from individual and small businesses are up significantly this year, Lancaster said.

"Additional gifts have come from other worksite campaigns and many generous individual and small business donors," says Lancaster.

New workplace campaigns this year include Northern Michigan Regional Hospital's Management Team, Fox Motors, Town and Country Cedar Homes, and Meijer's. Several new donors have also been added to the organization's Leadership Circle of individual and business donors who contribute $500 or more each year.

Char-Em United Way is continuing to accept tax-deductible contributions to the 2010-2011 Campaign. Donations can be mailed to PO Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770.

Gifts can be made online by going to: www.charunitedway.org and selecting "Give." For more information about United Way call (231) 487-1006 or email: info@charunitedway.org.

Still Time for Year-end Financial Moves

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

The holiday season is always a busy time of year, so you're probably pretty busy. But it is important to take some time now to evaluate year-end financial moves that may be beneficial in preparing for your financial future.

Which year-end moves should you consider? You will want to talk to your financial advisor and tax and legal professionals first, but here are a few ideas to get you started:

- Boost your IRA contributions. You have until April 15, 2011, to fully fund your IRA for the 2010 tax year, but the sooner you finish with your 2010 contribution, the quicker you can get started on your 2011 contribution — and the earlier in the year you fund your IRA, the more time you give your account the opportunity to grow.
- Put more money into college savings plans. If you have a 529 college savings plan for yourself or someone else, consider putting more money in before year-end. You can gift up to $13,000 ($26,000 per married couple) per person per year without gift tax consequences. However, this must be accomplished by year-end.

Be generous. If you've been thinking of making charitable gifts, don't put them off any longer. As long as you make a donation to a qualified charity before the year ends, you can claim a deduction on your 2010 tax return.

For example, if you donate $100 to a charitable group (either a religious organization or one that has received 501(c)(3) status from the Internal Revenue Service), and you're in the 25% tax bracket, you can deduct $100 (with a tax benefit of $25) when you file your taxes for 2010, providing, of course, that you itemize. If you donate stocks or other types of assets, you may also be able to save on capital gains taxes, because it will be the charity, not you, that eventually sells those assets.

Sell your "losers." If you own investments that have lost value since you purchased them, you can sell them before 2010 ends and then use the tax loss to offset capital gains you may have earned in other investments. If you don't have any capital gains, you can use up to $3,000 of your tax losses to offset other ordinary income. If your loss is greater than $3,000, you can "carry over" the excess and deduct it from your taxes in future years. However, if you then want to repurchase the investment you sold, you'll need to wait at least 31 days to avoid violating the IRS' "wash sale" rules.

Take capital gains. In 2011, the tax rate on long-term capital gains is scheduled to increase to 20% for most investors, up from the 15% rate it's been the last several years. If you have stocks or other appreciated assets that you were thinking of selling in the near future, you might want to do so before the year comes to a close. However, it's generally not a good idea to make investment decisions strictly because of tax consequences. If your appreciated assets are still a part of your overall financial strategy, you may be better off holding them for the long term, even with a higher capital gains rate.

Considering these moves before the year ends may help you better prepare to address your financial picture in 2011.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Familiar face takes the varsity helm

Former Rayder all-conference player
Leslie Hoffman takes over as head coach

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

A new, but familiar face will grace the sidelines at Charlevoix girls varsity basketball games this season as Leslie Hoffman takes over the head coach position for the team.

Hoffman, 27, served as the Rayders' junior varsity coach under Bret Erskine for the past three years. Before that, she was the freshman coach for a year.

The 2001 Charlevoix graduate earned three varsity letters while playing for coach Jason Otter, and in her senior year, the fall of 2000, she helped lead the Rayders to a district championship while earning All-Lake Michigan Conference honors.

Hoffman, a kindergarten teacher at Concord Academy Boyne, went on to play for four years at Aquinas College.

She has been surrounded by good coaching influences both as a player and as a coach, having honed her craft over the past few years under Erskine, longtime Rayder boys' coach Keith Haske, and, as a prep player, under Otter.

"Jason was probably one of the biggest influences on my life as a basketball player," Hoffman said. "One of the main things in playing for him, and I tell the girls this all the time, is we got after it all the time. One of the big things he really focused on was mental toughness and I can see myself trying to bring that out in my players."

It's been a bit of a slow go for Hoffman in getting started. Seven of her players were members of the Rayders' volleyball team that advanced to the regional final two weeks ago. Then, most of her players went on a school trip to New York.

"It's like, 'Holy cow, I have a basketball in my hands, not a volleyball,'" Hoffman said. "The transition has been a little challenging."

Still, helping to smooth that transition is familiarity. Hoffman coached most all of her players in the past.

"I know their strengths, their abilities and ways to encourage them," she said. "You get to know people's temperaments. That's definitely been a plus."

Hoffman will be one of three new girls basketball head coaches in the area this season.

Jennifer Foley will take over at Harbor Springs and Eric Huffman will take over at Harbor Light Christian.

See page 23 for a season preview on the Rayder girls basketball team.

VOLLEYBALL, SOCCER

Many Rayders earn post-season volleyball, soccer honors

Two Charlevoix Rayders were among 13 area players who were named to the All-State volleyball and boys' soccer teams as selected by their respective coaches' associations last week.

In volleyball, nine players were selected by the Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association, including Charlevoix's Jenna Way and Pellston's Tayler Friend, who were named to the first-teams in Class C and Class D, respectively.

Way, a setter, led the Rayders to the Lake Michigan Conference championship, a second consecutive district championship, and a berth in a regional title game for the second straight year.

Friend, an outside hitter, led the Hornets to their fourth consecutive regional championship and a third straight trip to the state Final Four in Battle Creek.

Pellston's Kristi Lewis was named to the All-State second-team in Class D, while teammates Samantha McNitt and Shelby Hughey received honorable mention.

In Class A, Petoskey senior setter Carly Searles earned a spot on the All-State third-team, while teammate Megan Tomkins, a sophomore, received honorable mention.

In Class C, Boyne City's Veronica Sisson earned a spot on the All-State third-team, while Charlevoix's Allison Hankins earned honorable mention.

Charlevoix's Ben Myers was named to the Division III All-State first-team by the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association for the second consecutive year.

Last year, Myers became the first Rayder ever named All-State first-team.

Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy had two players, Aaron Chatfield and Paul Chatfield, named to the Division IV All-State team. Aaron Chatfield was named to the second-team, Paul Chatfield to the third-team.

In Division II, Petoskey senior Nick Manzer received honorable mention.

In addition to the All-State volleyball honors, several area players earned All-Region recognition.

Seven of the eight spots on the All-Region Dream Team were filled by area players, including Searles and Tomkins, along with Petoskey teammate Kerby Tamm.

Sisson, Way, Lewis and Friend were also named to the Dream Team along with Molly Warren of Cheboygan.

Petoskey's Katie Kidd and Kelsey Ance were selected to the All-Region Class A squad.

The All-Region Class C team included Charlevoix's Hankins, Katie Mays and Kelly Greyerbiel; Boyne City's Kylie Hicks and Kaley Aown; Haley Kloss and Megan Mathews of Harbor Springs; and Caitlin Ortiz of Inland Lakes.

The All-Region Class D team included Hughey and McNitt of Pellston, and Eliza beth Britton of Harbor Light Christian.

Kris Jewell of Cheboygan was named the regional coach of the year.

About 5,000 set to see benefits expire in Emmet, Charlevoix counties by April

BRANDON HUBBARD

BHUBBARD@
PETOSKEYNEWS.COM

Thousands of Emmet and Charlevoix county residents will see their unemployment benefits expire in the coming months, after Congress failed to renew the program last week.

Michigan will stop taking new applications for unemployment extensions after Saturday, Nov. 27, allowing 181,500 jobless state residents to exhaust their unemployment benefits between December and April 2011. In Emmet and Charlevoix counties, the failed extension will leave 4,947 people with exhausted unemployment benefits from September 2010 to April 2011.

"In Michigan, we are emerging from these difficult economic times, but we still have many families who continue to weather this storm," Gov. Jennifer Granholm wrote in a letter to Michigan congressmen last week urging them to extend the Emergency Compensation program.

The governor highlights the fact that 336,000 Michigan residents currently receive state or federal unemployment benefits.

"Now is not the time to pull the rug out from those who need assistance to provide for their families," Granholm said.

The U.S. House of Representatives voted 258 in favor to 154 opposed on House Bill 6419 to pass a three-month extension for unemployment insurance, falling short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

Michigan congressmen were split partisans with all eight Democrats supporting the extension and five of seven Republicans rejecting the bill.

Congressman Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, supported the bill to extend the benefits until February and said a "lack of bipartisan support" defeated the measure.

"Particularly, as we enter the holiday season and winter months, now is no time to leave these families without the ability to make ends meet," Stupak said Tuesday. "I will continue to push for an extension of unemployment benefits when Congress returns after Thanksgiving."

Midland Republican Congressman Dave Camp opposed the bill based on a lack of funding, though he supports the unemployment extensions, said his spokeswoman Lauren Phillips.

"It's such a silly thing because it is as easy as adding one amendment, less than one hundred words," Phillips said. "But, they are not letting us add any amendments."

Phillips said Camp offered to introduce amendments to fund extensions with unused federal stimulus funds or by cutting other programs previously.

Phillips said the Camp staff is not commenting on the future of what the Republican House majority will do when they take office in January.

"We can't crystal-ball it," she said.

UNEMPLOYED LIKELY TO TURN TO STATE SUBSISTENCE

New unemployment insurance claims will be limited to 26 weeks, compared to current extensions of up to 99 weeks.

Those checks averaged about $309 per week for Michigan in 2009, according to the Michigan Department of Energy, Labor & Economic Growth.

Northwest Michigan Works is already gearing up to help the unemployed with résumé writing and job skills programs.

Jane Sage, manager at Northwest Michigan Works, said in every center in Northern Michigan the number of unemployed residents seeking help in finding employment or benefits is "increasing dramatically."

"Again we are trying to gear up and help provide (the jobless) with services that will make them employable," Sage said.

"There are employment opportunities but just not enough yet."

Few options remain for those with exhausted resources and no new job.

"In terms of unemployment benefits, there are no other benefits, that's it," Norm Isotalo, a spokesperson for the Michigan Department of Energy, Labor & Economic Growth. "We anticipate the majority of these people will go on to seek assistance from the Department of Human Services."

But, the additional caseloads for the human services department will likely just slow the already strained state assistance office.

Bill Denemy, Emmet/Charlevoix Department of Human Services director, said there is nothing his office can do to prepare for the influx of people.

"We don't have any additional resources that we can apply to this, and we're barely hanging on providing to the people that are eligible right now," Denemy said.

Caseworkers have seen increases of as much as 200 percent in the past several years.

"What this is going to do is we have (a certain) amount of days to process an application (for programs such as food assistance)," Denemy said. "Normally we can get eligibility and benefits to people relatively quickly. This large number of people that have to come through our system is going to push those benefits toward the end of the time we have to process."

People who are used to getting things quickly, he said, could wait up to 45 days to receive benefits.

"And when you need something, generally they come to our office because they need it right away," he added.

He cautioned that with the already stressful holiday season, the loss of a minimal income can have a "ripple effect" on other department-handled issues such as domestic abuse.

At the Manna Food Project, a food bank servicing 34 pantries and agencies throughout Northern Michigan, 671 families have signed up for Thanksgiving assistance and about another 200 have been walk-ins.

"This has been honestly the busiest Thanksgiving that we have ever seen," said Gabrielle Bilton, Manna Food Project administrative assistant. "It's been pretty frightening."

Luckily, Bilton said people donations have also been "phenomenal," especially from local school programs.

"It's a full circle," she said. "Even people that don't have a lot are still giving to the next family."

BUSINESSES FEEL THE CRUNCH AS WELL

Michigan is among 31 states in the nation where businesses are getting an extra bill in addition to their standard unemployment taxes this year.

Because the state borrowed about $3.8 million in money from the federal government to cover unemployment benefits pursuant to state and federal law, it owes millions in interest. However, under the federal stimulus act in February 2009 the interest normally accrued was waived as a temporary relief action. In turn, the Michigan Legislature enacted Public Act 1 of 2009, suspending state solvency tax.

What does this mean for businesses?

Michigan businesses will pay a minimum of $67.50 per employee starting when the interest waiver expires Jan. 1, 2011 — in addition to the usual unemployment tax, which cost more than $450 for each employee in 2009.

Girls basketball preview

Rayders hoping to springboard off volleyball team's success

BY MORGAN SHERBURNE
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

Nearly half of the Rayders have hardly been to practice, because of the volleyball team's run to the regional final and a school trip to New York during the week of Nov. 15.

"There's no hiding the fact that we'll be definitely off to a slow start," first-year coach Leslie Hoffman said. "They've got fire from their (volleyball) season and ended on a great note. They've got chemistry and good balance that's going to transfer over to basketball as well."

The Rayders finished 9-12 a year ago after winning or sharing the Lake Michigan Conference championship for five consecutive years.

Charlevoix had just eight varsity players last season, but that number has increased to a healthy 14 in 2010-11, which should make for stronger competition for starting spots and better depth.

Seniors Hannah Hybl, Lynzie Gotshall and senior Barron are among the front-runners for starting spots along with juniors Megan Peters, Kristin Cole.

'He would give you the shirt off his back'

Steven Gelderblom remembered as blessing to others

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

When you ask around Cadillac High School about Steven Gelderblom's personality, it doesn't take long to hear how great a loss students and staff at the school are feeling after he died in a traffic accident recently.

On Nov. 24, Steven was traveling in a car driven by Deborah Kay Rickard, also of Cadillac, when she apparently missed a stop and was struck by an oncoming semi truck. Steven died on the scene and Rickard was died later at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

"Steven would give you the shirt off his back," his father, Paul said. Paul and Deborah Gelderblom adopted Steven and his two brothers in 1997. Steven was 6 at the time.

"We knew we wanted to adopt a child, but we were looking for teenagers in need," his father remarked, adding, "The agency presented us with these three young boys, each with special needs, and we knew right away that we wanted them."

The Gelderbloms would later adopt two girls as well ending up with a family of 10. "Adoption of special needs children is difficult but necessary," Deborah said, adding, "Loving homes are needed for children even in our communities. There is no need to go beyond Michigan's borders to find children (in need)."

Despite the rough start, Steven grew up much like most other boys in Charlevoix do — learning to enjoy the outdoors and becoming part of the small community.

Gelderblom

part in many community programs, often cleaning up yards and doing chores for families.

Steven's parents said.

Steven loved living in the country setting and took every opportunity to enjoy it. He developed a love of horses and riding, taking every chance to be around them. At the age of 17 Steven moved to Cadillac to finish his schooling there, his parents said.

When the children were very young, the Gelderblom family began taking trips to the Smoky mountains each spring for hiking and camping.

"The neighbors thought we were crazy taking all these kids on such a long and difficult trip," Paul said.

Steven took to hiking right away though, and it remained a love of his throughout his life. Every year the family would pack up their eight children and a trailer and make the long trip to the mountains.

"We made kind of a chuck wagon with everything we needed, and we'd stay there in

Charlevoix Community Christmas Project enters last week of donation campaign

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Community Christmas Project, which has been distributing toys, clothing food and to those in need during the holiday season since the late 1980s is entering the final week of its 2010 donation efforts, and organizers say the need continues to be high.

Project chairwoman Bev Boss, said as of Tuesday morning the organization had 185 families including more than 400 children on its roster to receive donations. She said the program usually receives a last-minute influx of about another 20 families in the last week. If that happens that would bring the total number of families to 205 — down about 40 from last year. Last year the program served 245 families including 530 children.

Boss said she and other organizers are not sure if the slightly lower numbers are a sign that the economy might be improving a little, or that people have learned how to get by with less. She also noted that several families the program has served in the past have moved away from the area.

But as the need continues, so do the ways people in the community are donating to the project.

Boss said she was recently surprised by two members of the Charlevoix Senior Center with a gift of hand knitted items and Christmas wrapping paper.

Norma Evans began knitting as a teenager for a World War II Project and has been knitting for friends and family ever since. When presented with donated yarn from center director Earl Muma, Norma put the yarn to good use and began knitting for the Christmas Project's mitten trees. She has since produced more than 30 hats and mittens.

Doris Hayes joined her friend by donating Christmas wrapping paper, which she knew the project could use in wrapping donated toys. Both ladies are active members of the senior center and participate in a number of activities.

Other Christmas Projects that are taking place in the community are the "sock boxes" that have been placed at local businesses after Thanksgiving by committee member Joan Balch. The Street Legends Car Club is sponsoring the sock drive and will also collect bags of socks from its members at their annual Christmas party. The club plans also make a "sock for sock" contribution for the Christmas Project for each sock collected in the drive.

Some are salons have special drop boxes, which were put out by committee member Sheila Bogart. Last year, the Christmas Project helped 114 teens with special gift items of grooming products and gift cards. To further help with the teen program, the Charlevoix Zonta organization has come forward to sponsor teen girls by collecting much needed personal items for them.

Boss said in the last week, money contributions become particularly important as shoppers are sent out to purchase items that were not directly donated.

The Charlevoix area Toys For Tots Program, which has drop boxes located at numerous are businesses, is providing many of the toys for the project.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the Community Christmas Project has several options.

Money contribution to the Christmas Project can be mailed to or dropped off at the Community Reformed Church, 100 Oak Street, Charlevoix, Attention: John Coolman. Checks should be made payable to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project.

Food, clothing, toys or other items may also be dropped off at the church through Friday, Dec. 10.

Starting on Monday, Dec. 13, the group will begin organizing this year's distribution at Bethany Lutheran Church, 11906 U.S. 31 North. Volunteers will be at the church from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. through Thursday, Dec. 16. This year's distribution day will take place on Friday, Dec. 17.

Anyone interested in adopting a family should contact Boss at (231) 547-2078.

Organizers will host an open house at Bethany Lutheran from 2-4 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 16, to thank donors and volunteers and allow them to see the fruits of their efforts.

Be careful around snowplows

The Michigan Department of Transportation and the County Road Association of Michigan recently announced an education campaign aimed at urging motorists to remember good driving habits in winter weather conditions: "Snowplows Need Room to Groom."

"Road crews put their lives on the line every day to keep Michigan roads safe for everyone," said state transportation director Kirk T. Steudle. "Motorists must remember to drive with caution no matter how much salt we use or how often the roads are plowed."

A steady decrease in road funding and an increase in costs have caused state and local agencies to alter their winter maintenance plans and change plowing priorities.

Road officials said one important fact has not changed: Road crews must have ample room in order to safely clear the many miles of roadway of snow and ice.

"Motorists must do their best to minimize distractions and focus on driving and changes in road conditions," John Niemela, County Road Association of Michigan Director, said. "Every year, despite the flashing lights, poor driver behavior near snowplows leads to collisions that can be deadly."

Road officials offer the following tips for motorists:

— Snowplows have limited visibility and drivers cannot see directly behind their trucks.

— Snowplows often throw up snow clouds, reducing visibility on all sides of the truck.

— Motorists should never attempt to pass a moving snowplow on the right. With new wing-plow technology, the blade can clear the shoulder and the lane of travel simultaneously. Motorists attempting an illegal pass through a snow cloud on the right and/or shoulder of the road most likely won't see the plow blade and run the risk of a serious crash.

— Always wear your safety belt and allow extra time to reach your destinations this winter.

Suffering from a learning disability, Steven often struggled with school and some of life's common tasks.

"Steven could be a real chore at times" his father said, laughing. "The blessing of having him around far outweighed that though" he quickly added.

Steven was finishing his schooling at Cadillac High School this year, working with their special needs department. Steven was part of a program at the school that helps special needs students learn to be independent. He was on the school's honor roll for the first time in his life this past period.

In the wake of Steven's death, the school put together a poster honoring him, which they presented to the Gelderbloms.

"Steven was full of life and laughter" one of his instructors noted saying "Steven was a great comforter, often the first one to be there to help."

Steven's funeral was Nov. 30 in Charlevoix. He is survived by his parents, Paul and Deborah of Charlevoix; brothers and sisters, Walter Kujawski of Charlevoix, Amy (Michael) Paulus of Petoskey, Allison (Jason) Howson of Livonia, Howard Gelderblom serving his country in the U.S. Army stationed in Fairbanks, Alaska, Kayla Gelderblom of Charlevoix, Terry Gelderblom of Gaylord, and Julie Gelderblom of Charlevoix; seven nieces and nephews, Grandparents, Bea and Milt Benment of White Cloud, Alice Clay Smith of Novi. The family requests memorial contributions in Steven's name be made to Show Hope, P.O. Box 647, Franklin, TN 37065.

What's ahead for your community paper

This column might be a few weeks early for the typical end-of-year contemplation that follows, but I figured I'd take this opportunity for a look both back and forward.

It's been almost six months since I took over as editor at the Charlevoix Courier and it's been an interesting experience so far. From reporting on my first Venetian Festival to more difficult stories, the job has been anything but boring. If you add in an eight-week period where a maternity leave caused me to have very limited page design assistance, that adds up to some busy days.

I'd like to offer my thanks to the many people who have offered their feedback and encouragement since May. Of course any "look back" should also come with a "look forward."

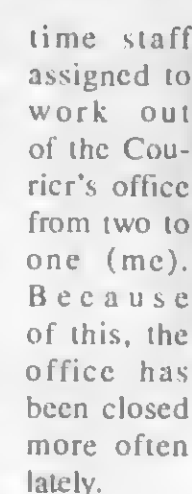

And speaking of "looking forward," I'd like to take this opportunity to address a concern that may be lingering out in the community that there might not much future left for the Charlevoix Courier.

While I understand how some people may have come to such speculation, let me reassure there are no plans to discontinue publication of the Courier on the table.

If one considers the state of the economy in general, the newspaper industry more specifically, and changes in staffing levels here at the Courier in recent years, it's understandable if some people have drawn that inference.

It is true that times have been tough in the newspaper industry in recent years, and those trends have affected us at the Charlevoix Courier and our sister publication, the Petoskey News-Review.

The most recent change involved the reduction of full-

Steve Zucker
Editor,
Charlevoix Courier

time staff assigned to work out of the Courier's office from two to one (me). Because of this, the office has been closed more often lately.

(By the way, there will likely be a few more of those "closed office" days between now and Jan. 1 because I have several vacation days in use by the end of the year.)

While this most recent change might lead some to speculate that the paper's days are numbered, my bosses tell me that's not at all the case.

In fact, I've recently been encouraged by my boss, Petoskey News-Review editor (and former Courier editor) Jeremy McBain to make efforts to broaden our coverage.

So, I thought now would be a good time to our readers a little insight into some of the plans in the works for the coming year here at the Charlevoix Courier.

— I've heard a lot of positive feedback from people about our efforts to expand our sports coverage. As I've told many people in my view, a weekly paper such as the Courier is the ideal place to feature those types of stories. Look for that to continue and perhaps expand in the coming year. For example, I've been talking with the city's new recreation director Teresa Hart, about publishing results from recreation league sports such as volleyball.

— I'm planning to rekindle broader coverage of the townships surrounding Charlevoix. While this probably won't mean we'll have someone covering every township board meeting, I do plan to get more regular updates on township government and happenings into the pages of the Courier.

— Efforts have already begun to better organize our "Stepping Out" section. I plan to continue these "tweaks" into the new year.

— History buffs take note: I've been working with David Miles at the Charlevoix Historical Society and we are planning to start a weekly feature after the first of the year that gives our readers some glimpse into the area's past through the society's extensive archives. We're going to start with a photographic look back at the last year for the old Charlevoix High School (now the location of the Charlevoix Public Library) which was 50 years ago.

— I have plans to make better use of online social media such as Facebook and Twitter to stay in touch with our readers on a regular basis. For a couple years now, reporters and editors at the Petoskey News-Review have been using Twitter to let people know about breaking news and local sports scores. I believe this can also be a valuable tool for the Courier, especially because it is a weekly publication.

These are just some of the things I/we will be working on in 2011.

As always, I welcome your input — not only on specific story ideas for the paper, but also on what types of content you'd like to see on a regular basis.

Thanks again for your support over the past year and I look forward to continuing to serve our readers in 2011.

Accountability can improve our personal 'ratings'

Our household was one of the many asked in the community to report daily on what we watched or listened to on TV. In other words we participated in the latest Nielsen Ratings. When the envelope with the paperwork arrived I suddenly heard myself say, "What did I get myself into?"

Every time a TV set goes on you need to mark who was watching or listening to it and what channel it was on. The popularity of the shows marked on the various time sheets becomes a tool to determine which shows will have a better chance to remain in their time slot and run another season. I apologize up front if a TV show you love to watch is no longer on the air.

Although it seemed to be a bit cumbersome at times, I enjoyed learning what I gleaned from it all. I almost felt guilty at times for turning the TV on. As a result, after one week of reporting my television use, I am more apt to leave the TV off and use the iPod for background noise. I also realized that my television viewing boils down to three genres: crime shows, cooking and movies — in that order.

I must admit, I did get side tracked when "Dancing with the Stars" semi-finals came around. Recently, I joined the throng of Christmas shoppers and experienced a young woman working the cash register who inadvertently made an error. She quickly apologized and made things right. I said that it was OK because after all it was busy and the hours were long. She was quick to reply that she would be held accountable for her mistake and it would come out of her pay check so she gladly corrected her error. I found her resolve very refreshing. It reminded me of the sage old advice: "When young children are held accountable they will do a better job, when teenagers are held accountable for their actions they will try to improve, albeit some grace for their raging hormones."

Even as adults we need to hold ourselves accountable for things we do. The buzz word for 2010 has been "transparency." What this boils down to is allowing someone to review our actions and let us know how we are doing from time to time. It really is a good thing and supports us in doing a better job at anything we choose to do whether it is our work, the amount of time set aside for family and friends or as simple as the foods we eat or the amount or type of TV we watch — a sort of Nielsen rating on our lifestyle. Ask your coworker, a friend, a spouse or even your child, "How am I doing?" occasionally. The results may surprise you and give you a new goal to work on for the coming year.

As a side note: The History Channel is secure as my husband never swayed to change the channel during our week of ratings. Now as an adult I understand why there two television sets in my parents' home.

During popcorn week, the atmosphere of the kindergarten class at Charlevoix Elementary School was guaranteed to be one filled with happiness and the distinct giggles of a 5-year-old. The students in Lynn Vollmer's kindergarten class participated in many different popcorn activities while learning about the letter "P." The students all agreed they were very happy doing fun activities while still learning.

"My favorite part was when we got to draw popcorn on stuff like race cars and dinosaurs," kindergarten student Bram Louiselle said. Another popcorn activity the students did was to lay a big sheet on the floor and put the hot air popcorn popper in the middle of it and to take the top off and to see where all the kernels flew to. The students had to guess where the popcorn kernels would land. To their surprise, the kernels landed very close to the popcorn popper.

"It was really cool when Mrs. Vollmer took the top off the popcorn machine, and we got to see the kernels fly everywhere on the sheet," said, kindergarten student Gary Haight.

This was the first year Vollmer has used popcorn to teach the children about the letter P. In previous years, she's used discussions about polar bears instead of popcorn.

"Popcorn week is a lot of fun and hands-on learning," Vollmer said.

Popcorn week wasn't just about learning the letter, the students also did activities involving math and language arts while still using popcorn. The students all taste-tested different kinds of popcorn such as butter, cheese and caramel. They then graphed the results to find which flavor was the class favorite. After the graphing, it was clear that cheese flavored popcorn was favored most by the students.

For most of the kindergartners, learning about popcorn was an entertaining week, for Faith Murray it was a memorable experience. With the charming smile of a kindergarten she promised, "I would never stop loving popcorn."

Area high school students are now able to get college credits in their home districts thanks to a new program started in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District this year.

The intermediate school district has created a partnership with North Central Michigan College, allowing high school students to experience college-level courses, earn college credit and reduce the overall cost of a college education without leaving their school in the new Early College program.

"I've been in education for a lot of years and I've never been this excited about a program. I can't say enough about the program and the great working relationship we have with North Central Michigan College," said James Cooper, Early College coordinator for the intermediate school district.

Other school districts around the state have been doing similar early college programs for the past several years. Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District first thought of developing their own program in the spring of 2009 and since then has been working with North Central Michigan College to make the program here a reality.

"I think it's another avenue for students to get college credit and a way for them to know if they're ready yet to go to college. Some students may not feel they are ready to handle college and the program helps them determine if they are or not," said Karen Jarrena, Boyne City High School principal.

In the program, high school juniors and seniors can take certain college classes and receive the same credit for the course as if they were taking it at North Central Michigan College. They take the class for two semesters or two trimesters and receive the equivalent of taking the class for a semester in college.

"To be accepted in the program the students have to take the ACT (American College Test) and receive North Central Michigan College's minimum score for acceptance," Cooper said.

There are currently nine different classes offered at the eight districts that are taking advantage of the program in the intermediate school district. Some of the schools have several different classes while others only offer one at this time.

Classes such as accounting, personal finance, medical terminology, office administrative services, anatomy and physiology, child psychology, child guidance, marketing and programming are currently offered.

One of the benefits of the program is that it allows students to start earning college credits at no cost while they're still in high school.

"There is no cost to the students and the cost to the school is greatly reduced. They pay the college 15 percent of the cost of taking the class on campus," Cooper said.

Teaching the courses are high school teachers who are also adjunct professors credentialed through North Central Michigan College.

"I had to send them all my transcripts and they evaluated them to make sure I was able to teach the class," said Sharon Velding, Central Lake High School teacher. Velding teaches the office administrative services course at Central Lake.

Currently eight of the 11 school districts and more than 70 students in the intermediate school district are participating in the Early College program, but schools are expecting to offer more classes and have more participation in the future.

"I think it's a great program. It gets us ready for taking other college classes and we're all learning a lot," said Tasha Crouse, 17, a student at Central Lake High School. Tasha is taking office administration services through the program.

OBITUARIES

Maurine E. Loop: May 10, 1909 - Dec. 1, 2010

Maurine E. Loop, known to family and friends as "Muggie," died peacefully at Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix on Dec. 1, 2010. She was born on May 10, 1909, to William and Mabel (Richards) Spence in London, Ontario. Maurine was a graduate of the West-erly Business School. She emigrated to the United States when she was 16 years old and went to work for the Detroit Free Press. She married Edwin A. Loop on May 10, 1927. Maurine and Ed lived in Grand Rapids for many years, and spent summers at their cottage on Oyster Bay near Charlevoix. They retired to Charlevoix in 1968. Mr. Loop preceded her in death in 1984.

In her more active years, Maurine enjoyed golfing, knitting, bridge, and was active in her church Bible study. She was also a volunteer with the "Grey Ladies" at the hospital in Grand Rapids, and the Hospital Guild in Charlevoix. The essence of hospitality, one was always "as welcome as the flowers in May" in Maurine's home. She was a superb cook, and her pies were legendary. Maurine was very active in her church and lived her faith every day. She was incapable of saying a bad word about anyone, and always found the good in every situation. Unwavering in spirit and devotion to her family, Maurine inspired all who knew her and leaves a legacy of love, faith and kindness.

In addition to her husband, Maurine was preceded in death by her brother, Lawrence Spence, daughters, Yvonne Cornelisse, and Arlene Whitney, granddaughter Shelli Filatof, all of California, and her son Gerald Loop of Grand Rapids.

Joining in thanksgiving for her life and love are the members of her family, daughter Jeannine Wallace of Charlevoix, and grandchildren Maurine (Tina) Watts of Harbor Springs, Rebecca (Jamie) Beattie of Golden, Colo., Jerilyn (Robert) Keeney of Grand Rapids, and Mark, Bruce and Renee Cornelisse.

She is also survived by seven great-grandchildren, great-great-grandchildren, many nieces and nephews.

Maurine's failing health in the last few years required the compassionate care of others. Her family is very grateful for the dedicated staff at Boulder Park Terrace. Maurine repeatedly told family and friends that if she couldn't be at home, there was "no better place to be than Boulder."

Those wishing to honor Maurine's memory may make donations to Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix or to the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

Services will be held at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 11 at the Community Reformed Church. Friends are invited to meet with the family at a luncheon after the service.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Wood hopes returning talent will bolster coaching debut

First-year coach Adam Wood has said it once, and he'll say it again: "Coach (Haske) coached here for 13 years. I've got some big shoes to fill."

Indeed, Wood, who played for Haske during his high school days, is seeking to replace one of the most successful coaches in the history of Northern Michigan high school basketball.

On the good side for Wood, plenty of talent returns, beginning with diminutive junior guard Keegan LaBlance, a first-team All-Lake Michigan Conference pick a year ago who could be among the best guards in the area.

Also back are seniors Ben Myers and Dylan Putman, both of whom earned all-conference accolades last season, and junior Andrew Plude, who will also start.

As for the fifth spot? "It's very up in the air this year," said Wood, who, like Haske, will enjoy a deep bench. "We're in a position where everybody can give us something positive on any night. We're in the midst of really competing each and every day amongst ourselves to earn our spots."

"We're going to have enough for a second starting five coming off our bench."

Though the Raydors don't have a lot of size, Wood is looking to their speed, skill set, and shooting ability to be advantages throughout the season.

"We're in a transition period here this year with a new coach," he said. "But I couldn't ask for a better group of young men and I couldn't ask for more effort than we're getting every day in practice."

ELSWHERE IN THE LAKE MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

In East Jordan, coach Darin Weber graduated an entire starting lineup — and then some — from his 2009-10 team. And he returns just one player, senior Wes Petrie, who got any measurable playing time a year ago. "We'll be expecting big things out of (Wes)," Weber said, adding that Petrie invested a large amount of time in off-season camps and has shown tremendous improvement. "He will be the lone senior starter."

The Red Devils also gain a solid group of juniors who comprised a 17-3 JV team last year.

"We have some juniors that have some speed and bring some athleticism to the team," said Weber, who is in his fifth year at East Jordan and 16th overall of coaching varsity basketball. "Our height will be a concern. We have no one over 6-2. Our strengths will be our speed and athleticism. The kids get after it at both ends of the court."

In Boyne City, last year, for the first time in 12 years, the Ramblers won a district championship.

"We finished the season real strong," coach Nick Redman said.

Maybe this year won't be much different. "We're going to be deeper this year," Redman said. "We're going to be bigger and deeper than we've been."

Two starters, Caleb Roberts and Jay Redman, return. Jay Redman was an All-Lake Michigan Conference first-teamer and second-team News-Review All-Area pick a year ago, while Roberts earned all-league honorable mention.

Among the Ramblers' other top players are seniors Kolbi Shumaker and Luke Thorp, juniors TJ Douglas and Gerrit Moeke, and freshman Ryan Carson.

"Our strength is going to be that the kids really care about each other," Nick Redman said. "We have a good chemistry this season."

But the team doesn't just care about its own players. Redman wants to send a message to the whole school.

"We have a goal we've talked about," he said. "Our goal is that we want everyone who is involved, grades four-12, to be proud to be part of our basketball program."

For Ellsworth, which plays in the Northern Lakes Conference, first-year Lancer coach Kirk Ikens has his work cut out for him.

Ikens replaces longtime coach Tex Drenth, who is now the school's athletic director, and he has to deal with the loss to graduation of a pair of standouts in Jared Danbert and Nate Peterson. Danbert was a first-team All-Stater in both basketball and football, and both were mainstays on some incredibly good Ellsworth squads over the past few years.

"We've lost some good athletes in the last couple of years," Ikens says.

But the Lancers return two starters in seniors Robert Gruse and Jordan Muma. Muma was an All-Northern Lakes Conference selection a year ago.

The Lancers also feature a solid group of juniors in Jake Seaney, Dalton Swenson, Matt Borrow and Corbin Cassio. It's a group with whom Ikens should be familiar as he was Ellsworth's junior varsity coach for the past eight years.

Returning seniors Scott Drenth and Ben Veenstra and 6-6 sophomore Jake Collins round out the team.

"We're going to play an uptempo style of basketball," says Ikens. "We have decent depth, and we'll see what happens."

Making cents

Staff and students at Charlevoix Elementary School are collecting pennies for Toys for Tots and second grade class has taken on the responsibility of counting and rolling the pennies. The students then graph how much they roll each day. Students will be going to Kmart on Monday Dec. 13 to shop for presents using the pennies the school has collected. Charlevoix State Bank is assisting the students in some of the penny rolling and counting, too. Picture above, second grade students (from left) Annie Bergmann, Kelsey Smith, Grace Ward, and Andrea McQuilston count pennies on a recent school day.

Solid quartet returns for Rayder wrestling team

A solid quartet returns for the Rayders and coach Craig Golovich, who has taken on a young team this winter.

"We have six freshmen, but for the first time in a while we have weights 103-135 filled," Golovich said. "We're just missing kids at 189 and a heavyweight."

"We'll just take it as it comes. There's no long-term goals for this year, but we might be able to pull one or two to go to the state finals. We'll see what happens at regionals."

Seniors Jacob Roach, 215; Chris Keie, 160; Marc Durkee, 152; and Ryan Penfold, 130; lead the Rayders, who open the season on Wednesday, Dec. 1, at Mancelona in a tri-meet that includes Onaway.

Rayder girls open season with 1 win, 2 losses

KINGSLEY — Stephanie Berreth scored 24 points and Lexie Benton added 14 as the Stags handed the Rayders a non-league loss on Friday.

Lynzie Gotshall scored 13 points to lead the Rayders, 1-2, who won at Cheboygan on Thursday, but were held to just seven second-half points Friday by the Stags.

"We were on the road (Thursday) night and it's our exam week," Charlevoix coach Leslie Hoffman said. "We knew being tired would be a factor. Their fullcourt press gave us a lot of trouble right from the get-go. I'd say they converted on about 90 percent of our turnovers."

Kingsley won the JV game, 53-26. Karley Pearsall scored 14 points and Baile Stevens added 10 for the Stags.

In the their season opener on Tuesday, Nov. 30, Frankfort outscored Charlevoix, 18-13, in the fourth quarter to pull away from the Rayders and post a 44-36 non-league girls' basketball victory, spoiling rookie Rayder coach Leslie Hoffman's varsity debut.

"We played really, really hard," Hoffman said. "I was really impressed. It was our first five-on-five competition. We didn't have a scrimmage, so for the amount of time we had together, we did a lot of good things."

"We played really hard on both ends and saw some really good things, and saw some things we have to work on. It was a good experience for us."

Tami Bankston scored 17 points to lead the Panthers, while senior forward Lynzie Gotshall scored a game-high 20 to pace Charlevoix. Hannah Hybl grabbed 13 rebounds for the Rayders.

The game was tied 17-17 at halftime, and Frankfort led, 26-23, after three quarters.

Charlevoix won the JV game, 44-38. Katie Hybl scored 17 points and Karley Pearsall added 15 for the Rayders.

AT&T adds 3G service to parts of area

Communications provider AT&T announced last week that it has brought parts of Emmet and Charlevoix counties into its mobile broadband network.

The new technology — incorporating 3G, or 3rd Generation mobile telecommunications standards — extends access for advanced mobile services, devices, and feature-rich audio and video content to customers in the area.

The activation of mobile broadband technology on nearly 20 cell sites will enhance wireless coverage for residents and businesses in communities including Petoskey, Bay Harbor, Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan. The network has also been enhanced along major roadways in the area, including U.S. 31.

"We are focused in Lansing on putting Michigan back to work," said state Sen. Jason Allen, R-Traverse City. "AT&T's commitment to Charlevoix and Petoskey helps attract jobs, connect families and educate our kids. This investment is great news for all of Northern Michigan."

AT&T's mobile broadband network is based on the 3rd Generation Partnership Project (3GPP) family of technologies that includes GSM and UMTS, the most widely used wireless network platforms in the world.

"Demand for wireless bandwidth is growing rapidly, whether it's for sharing video and photos with friends, watching a movie, checking the latest scores, or listening to music on a phone, netbook or other on-the-go devices," said Brian Ducharme, vice president and general manager for AT&T Mobility and Consumer Markets in Michigan. "With this expansion, our customers can enjoy the nation's best, most advanced mobile broadband experience with emerging devices and tens of thousands of mobile applications."

For more information about AT&T's coverage in Michigan or elsewhere in the United States, consumers can visit the AT&T Coverage Viewer online at <http://www.wireless.att.com/coverageviewer>. Using this tool, AT&T customers can measure coverage quality from a street address, intersection, ZIP code or landmark.

Let it snow!

Crews at the Mount McSaubas Ski Area had the facility's snow gun blasting away Monday, helping Mother Nature get the ski hill ready to open for the season. City recreation department officials have indicated that they tentatively plan to open the ski area for the season on Monday, Dec. 13, weather permitting. With recent lake-effect snows and a forecast calling for daily high temperatures to remain below the freezing mark, it appears likely that the weather will cooperate. City officials recently approved some rate increases for the facility and the ski hill's hours of operation have also been modified slightly. Visit the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org for more information.

Fast Eddie's – providing quality service and local jobs

SWARTZ CREEK – For more than three generations the Letavis family has been providing a valuable, essential service at an affordable price for the customer.

At Fast Eddie's Car Wash and Oil Change, 8478 Miller Rd., Swartz Creek, that family tradition continues – as well as the company's 15 other locations across mid-Michigan.

Fast Eddie's provides interior and exterior cleaning of the vehicle. They also change oil with premium branded products such as Valvoline and Castrol Oils.

Letavis said he considers his business a preventative maintenance facility and perform numerous services such as coolant flushes, transmission flushes, all systems cleaning and serpentine belt replacement. Customer service is key to the success of the Fast Eddie's chain, said Letavis, adding, what he enjoys most about his business is "working with people and providing a valuable, essential service at an affordable price for the customer."

For Fast Eddie's, Letavis said the company's more than 30 years in business has given it an image of being a professional, well-maintained facility run by organized, trained employees giving honest service at an affordable price.

The company employs more than 260 people, a fact Letavis said he and his family are proud of. "We are proud to be a small family-owned business that employs more than 260 people in the state of Michigan," he said "We pride ourselves, even during these hard economic times, to provide jobs."

Holly Daze 2010

The 18th Annual Charlevoix Area Hospital Holly Daze fundraising event drew a record crowd of more than 300, beating last year's turnout by about 50 people. The sold-out event included silent and live auction of many items and services donated by area businesses and individuals, a sit-down dinner catered by the Grey Gables of Charlevoix and tables adorned with centerpieces created by area garden club members and florists to the theme of "How the Grinch Stole Holly Daze." In all, the event raised more than $100,000 for the hospital's electronic medical records project.

Norovirus illness making its way around area

Some people call it "stomach flu", but the 24-hour illness causing fever and vomiting that's currently circulating throughout Northern Michigan is not actually caused by flu virus.

"Norovirus, not an influenza virus, is the most likely culprit," said Dr. Joshua Meyerson, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "It's very common for norovirus to circulate this time of year."

The symptoms of norovirus usually include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and stomach cramping. Sometimes people have a low-grade fever, chills, headache, muscle aches, and a general sense of tiredness. The illness is usually brief, with symptoms lasting only one or two days.

Norovirus is very contagious and spread easily from person to person. People can become infected in several ways, including eating food or drinking liquids that are contaminated by infected food handlers, touching contaminated surfaces or objects and then touching their mouths, or having direct contact with another person who is infected and then touching their mouths. Persons working in daycare centers or nursing homes should pay special attention to children or residents who have norovirus illness because the virus can spread quickly.

"Good handwashing is your best defense against all kinds of communicable diseases, including viruses," Meyerson said.

Since the virus is passed in vomit and stool, children should not go to daycare or school while they have diarrhea or vomiting. Once illness ends, children can return to daycare, but hand washing must be strictly monitored. Persons who work in nursing homes, take care of patients, or handle food should stay out of work for at least three days after their symptoms end.

You can decrease your chance of coming into contact with noroviruses by following the following practices:

- Frequent hand washing with warm soap and water
- Promptly disinfecting contaminated surfaces with household chlorine bleach-based cleaners
- Washing soiled clothing and linens
- Avoiding food or water from sources that may be contaminated.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. For additional information, visit <http://www.edc.gov/ncidd/dvrd/revb/gastro/norovirus.htm>.

New Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs director

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — The office of Veterans Affairs in Charlevoix County has a new director and he's ready to serve those who have served.

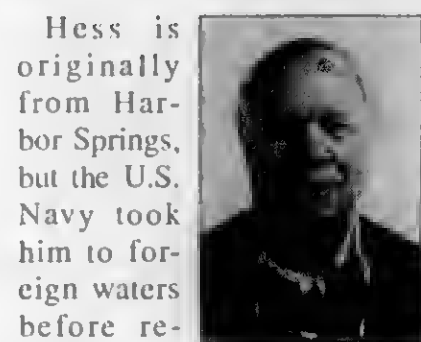

John Hess, 65, will be using his experience as a veteran and as a city planning director to take care of the needs of the county's veterans.

Hess, who was a submariner during the Vietnam War era, has been on the job for about a week and is excited to get to work for local veterans.

"We're the first stop for vets. We're the advocates for making sure they get the benefits they need and are entitled to, and I'm happy to be here to help them," he said.

Hess will be replacing the former director, Edward Holm, who retired from the position, but isn't completely leaving his work with veterans.

"Edward has been helping me get settled into the position and has been showing me the ropes. He will be serving on the VA committee so he will still be around to help me get adjusted," Hess said.

Hess

Hess is originally from Harbor Springs, but the U.S. Navy took him to foreign waters before returning to Michigan. Upon his return, he moved to Marquette to attend college where he earned a bachelor's degree in land use planning and a master's degree in land use management from Northern Michigan University.

After completing college, he worked as the assistant county planner in Marquette before taking the county planner job in Charlevoix County in 1977.

"After I was the county planner I did some consulting work in the area," Hess said.

He currently works part time with his son, Eric Hess, making ornamental metals at Northern Forge and Fabrication in Charlevoix, but his attention is now on his job with the county.

"I do a little work with Northern Forge, but my focus will mainly be on my job here and helping veterans," Hess said.

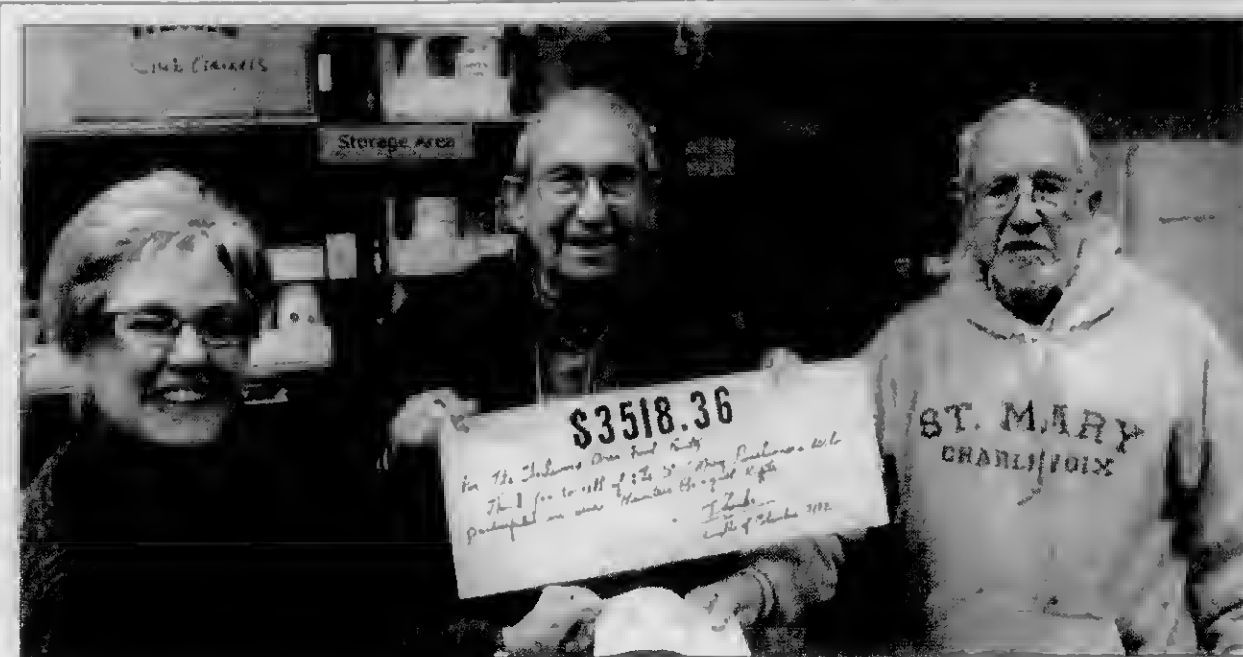

The Veterans Affairs director job presents many challenges, but Hess is ready to settle into his new office and face them.

"The first challenge I'm facing is getting to know all the programs there are available for vets so I can help them. Secondly, I want to get to know the veterans and have them get to know me," Hess said.

He says he's thankful for the sacrifices of all veterans and believes they are entitled to the programs provided by the state and federal government.

"The veteran programs are something (veterans) have earned through their service. It isn't something they were simply given. They need to take advantage of what they have coming to them and I'm here to help them do that," Hess said.

The Veterans Affairs office is located on the first floor of the Charlevoix County building and is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. For information about services provided by Veterans Affairs, contact John Hess at (231) 547-7220.

Knights donate

LETTER to the editor

Editor:

The Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Council 7172 held its eight annual Hunter's Banquet on Thursday, Oct. 28 at the Charlevoix VFW Post #1153, which graciously provided use of their building in support of the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. Roasted pig prepared by Greg Whitley, Jason Whitley and Pat Elliott was served along with a special sampling of bear roast provided by Bob Denise and Roger Pitman. The guest speaker was coach Chuck Fairbanks. He spoke to several issues concerning high school, college and professional athletics. He also gave personal observations concerning Michigan State University, and the University of Michigan. Mr. Fairbanks also reminisced about his youth growing up in Charlevoix and reminded us all of the treasure we possess here in Charlevoix. The event raised $3,518 for the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. An additional $260 was approved by the council to diminish the expense of providing dinner and will be given to the funds raised by the event. Our council would like to thank all those who worked on, or provided donations to support the banquet. Thanks to coach Chuck Fairbanks, Greg and Jason Whitley, Pat Elliott, Bob Denise, Roger Pitman, Ken and Birdy Whitley, Oleson's Food Market, Gary Smith, Terry Left, Subway of Charlevoix, VFW Post #1153, Brother Knights of Columbus Council #7172, Jay's Sporting Goods, and all the people who purchased raffle and dinner tickets. Again, thank you for your help in making this event a success.

Sincerely,
Larry Campbell, event co-chair

Standing against bullying

Charlevoix Middle School recently hosted a bullying assembly featuring Tom Harrison from Cadillac. In response to that presentation, and in an effort to make students more aware of their behavior and actions toward others, T-shirts with the slogan "See it, Hear it, STOP IT," created in honor of Harrison's deceased son, Alex, were recently awarded to students who were seen doing random acts of kindness at Charlevoix Middle School. Pictured above are (from left), principal Travis Garrett, Tori Clark, Noah Carson, Madison Olach, Olivia Storm, Tyler McCallum, Jerry Lowell, Aliyah Pearsall, Chase Jenkins, Luke Richman, Tabetha Penfold, Taya Steen, Jamie Kelly, Jonathon Pischner, Walker Drost, Freyah Sizemore and Tanner Drost. Mikaya Dixon and Elizabeth Way are missing from the photo.

Dozens cash in yesterday with jewelry, railroad watches and guitars. An estimated $200,000 in Petoskey!

By DAVID MORGAN
STAFF WRITER

The first days of the 5 day reclamation drive in Petoskey will be a hit with those looking to sell their gold and silver. Representatives are on hand this week purchasing all types of unwanted and broken jewelry. An estimated 55 people left the event with over $200 dollars from old class rings, wedding bands, herringbones, and gold teeth. Coins dated 1964 and earlier were bringing big premiums as well. Silver dollars, halves and quarters arrived in large quantities. Lots of gold coins. were also brought in. Rebecca Hughes walked away with over $1200.00 after selling an original $20 gold piece from 1888.

On the other side of the room were representatives from the Antique Association. They were purchasing all types of guitars, large currency bills dated before 1923, military items and pocket watches. One watch was purchased by a collector in Montana for $835 dollars. There were piles of sterling silver items like old silverware sets and tea pots. One gentleman rolled a cart in with 3 boxes full of silver coins. Company officials reported spending over $80,000 the first day of the event, alone. Brian Eades with Ohio Valley said, "We have had an overwhelming turnout this first day and we expect to get busier every day this week." The event continues today and runs through Saturday. The event is free and the public is welcome.

When Jack McCreadie, of West Branch tells you he has a tradition of making a big build-up to Christmas in his family, he means it — literally.

Almost every year for about the past five decades McCreadie has been creating buildings out of candy and gingerbread — first for his children and now for his grandchildren — in the days leading up to Christmas.

And while many people try their hand at gingerbread-and-candy houses at this time of the year, most of them don't "go condo" with it like McCreadie does.

McCreadie said he got the idea to start building his annual Christmas candy village from a story he read in the newspaper when he was living in Detroit about 50 years ago and he's been doing one almost every year ever since.

One challenge McCreadie has to overcome each year is transporting the completed village to his son's house for the grandchildren. This year, however, the village traveled north from West Branch to Charlevoix instead of south.

McCreadie's son Tim, daughter-in-law Patti and grandchildren Gavin, Taggart and Avery recently moved to the area from Northville

And this year McCreadie thought he would share the village for a while with the students and staff at Avery's new school — Charlevoix Elementary School. On Thursday McCreadie brought the village to the school's front hallway where it will stay until school lets out for Christmas break.

Over the years he's learned some tricks and added some elements, such as battery powered lights, but no two years' villages are the same.

"The hardest part is the gingerbread. You have to get it just right," McCreadie said.

St. Mary's pastor leaving Dec. 27

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

After serving as pastor of St. Mary Catholic Church for five and a half years, the Rev. Jerry Hunko will be leaving his duties with the parish effective Dec. 27.

On Monday, Diocese of Gaylord spokesperson, Candace Neff told the Courier that Rev. Hunko's last day at the St. Mary parish will be Monday, Dec. 27.

Neff said in July Rev. Hunko, citing "several stressors" asked to be given another assignment. However, taking into account all of the circumstance at the time of the request, Bishop Bernard Hebda asked Rev. Hunko to stay on until at least Christmas, and Rev. Hunko agreed, Neff said.

She said last week Bishop Hebda decided to grant Rev. Hunko's request to be relieved as pastor at St. Mary.

Neff said Rev. Hunko will not immediately be receiving another assignment, but will be taking time away to "tend to his health."

She said it will likely take several weeks before a permanent replacement for Rev. Hunko is appointed for St. Mary. In the meantime, she said, the diocese will likely appoint a "sacramental minister" to the parish. Such a minister would be a priest who would mainly care for the sacramental needs of the St. Mary parishioners such as masses, weddings, funerals, etc.

St. Mary's staff said Tuesday that Rev. Joe Kuczborski, a retired U.S. Air Force chaplain who lives in the area and who has filled in at the church in the past will be taking over as the parish's sacramental minister, at least through January.

Neff said diocese officials are still working out the details of who will handle other administrative functions of the parish pastor until a permanent replacement is appointed.

Rev. Hunko has been the pastor at St. Mary since July of 2005.

Established in 1890, St. Mary Church is located at 1003 Bridge St. It has about 400 active parishioners and has a school with an enrollment of 93 students in preschool through sixth grade.

St. Mary's staff said there are no immediate plans for a send-off event marking Rev. Hunko's departure, but one is tentatively planned for after the first of the year.

Rev. Hunko could not be reached for comment before press time, Tuesday.

Two pedestrians, driver injured in crash

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Two Charlevoix Middle School students and an adult driver were injured in a traffic crash in Charlevoix today, Thursday.

The crash happened shortly after 11 a.m. at the intersection of U.S. 31 and Lincoln Street.

All three victims were transported to the hospital by ambulance. All three appeared to be conscious and talking at the scene.

At 3 p.m. today, Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said all three of the victims had been treated for their injuries and released from the hospital.

Doan said he was not yet prepared to release the names of the injured because the crash report was still incomplete and not all of the information was available.

Doan said the preliminary investigation shows that the crash happened as a Charlevoix woman was crossing Bridge Street (U.S. 31) headed east on Lincoln Street. As her vehicle was crossing Bridge Street, it was struck in the right rear corner by a white minivan that was traveling north in the outside lane of Bridge Street. The impact caused the back of passenger car to be spun to the left where it struck two girls who were crossing Lincoln Street on the east side of Bridge Street, Doan said.

He said the girls, both eighth grade students at Charlevoix

Charlevoix Schools were scheduled for a half-day today for parent-teacher conferences at the elementary school and staff inservices at the middle and high schools. Classes at the middle school were dismissed at 10:50 a.m. today and many students were among the bystanders who watched at the scene as emergency crews provided care to the injured.

Traffic was slowed, but not stopped on U.S. 31 as emergency crews attended to the crash scene.

Doan said crash remains under investigation and he expects additional information to be available Friday morning.

Emergency crews render aid to two 13-year-old Charlevoix middle school students who were injured when they were struck by a car while crossing East Lincoln Street Thursday.

County planners unveil capital improvement plan

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County Planning Commission director, Larry Sullivan, presented his ideas for a Capital Improvement Plan to the board of commissioners at the regular meeting on Wednesday.

The plan, if implemented, will assist the county with organizing capital projects -- projects over a certain dollar amount -- so they can prioritize spending county-wide throughout all the departments.

"The Capital Improvement Plan will be very challenging to get started. It will be a five to six year plan to help organize capital projects in the county," Sullivan said.

When the plan is in effect it will help in identifying capital projects and equipment purchases, will provide a planning schedule and will help identify options for financing the projects.

Other organizations, including the city of Charlevoix, already have Capital Improvement Plans in place. This will be the first time the county will use the system.

"The first year will be the most difficult. We will have to figure out what is capital and what isn't and just trying to get everything organized is going to be a challenge," Sullivan said.

He went on to explain that typically a dollar value for a project or piece of equipment determines what is considered capital and what isn't. Any project or equipment purchase equal to or greater than the predetermined value will be considered capital and will go into the system. They are still determining what price value they will use to consider a project as capital.

The plan will include all the county departments and will give the board of commissioners a look at what each department needs. They can then place all capital projects in order of importance so the most important projects are completed first.

"Mentally, we do these things in our own lives. We look at what needs to be done around our homes in the kitchen, in the garage and so on and we prioritize what needs to be done first. We will be doing this on a much bigger scale for the county. The sheriff's office has a list, I have a list and other departments have lists of what they want to get done in their areas. We will compile everything and present it to the board so they can prioritize what is most important across the county so things are done in a logical order," Sullivan said.

Besides organizing the projects for the county the Capital Improvement Plan will help with the grant process to assist with funding.

Sullivan

"There aren't grants for everything, but we can help them determine what grants may be available and can help with the application process," Sullivan said.

They won't write all grants for the departments, but will use their experience to help where they can.

"Some grants the departments will handle themselves. A grant for something for the sheriff's office may look better coming from them, but we can use our experience with the process to help them with the applications," Sullivan said.

Daily snows bring chance to track the past

There must be something good about the daily blanket of new lake-effect snow we get this time of year. Of course it does keep things beautiful compared to the gray snow of more urban places. But there's more. It provides a remarkable way of traveling through time into the past; a way of knowing things we have not seen.

With an added inch or so of new lake-effect snow each day, overnight movements of people and other animals in our neighborhood are as clear as if we had stayed up all night and watched them. We usually see the first shift of the local deer to visit our "bird" feeder around 8:30 p.m. or 9 p.m. each evening, but the deer tracks in the morning tell me that there is a later shift of different deer nibbling on our yew bushes and cedar trees.

I walk downtown most mornings around 8 a.m., and get an overview of the night and early morning activities — not only deer and fox and rabbits and squirrels, but all the early morning dog-walkers.

Each of those has a different shoe print and a different sized or paced set of paw prints. There was a lame dog in last year's morning tracks. I never saw the dog, but it clearly had trouble with one foot or leg.

My favorite deer sighting (I only saw the tracks, but the tracks are proof-positive of the deer) was a single trail of prints in the sidewalk outside the door of Terry's Restaurant on Antrim Street. The tracks continued to the corner of Bridge Street and headed north, where they were lost among the tracks of previously passing people. We have at least a few downtown deer.

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

Someone is out early on a bicycle most days, leaving a wavy and uncertain trace. Bicycle tracks in the snow are rare, as anyone who has tried to manage a bicycle on a slippery surface can attest.

It is even possible to use numbers of tracks to predict the future. Judging from the number of tracks in the new snow, squirrel populations seem to be high this winter compared to last winter, and with squirrel reproduction being what it is, I can almost confidently predict that there will be more swimming squirrels next fall in Round Lake and in the Pine River channel, since those excursions are the result of high numbers of squirrels competing for space at the end of summer.

There are practical considerations as well to watching tracks in the snow. I can know for certain without checking the mailbox, whether the post-person has been by, (she usually crosses the yard) and I know that the afternoon News-Review has been delivered from the tracks on the un-shoveled front walk.

It is really not possible to follow tracks from an automobile, but a walking pace is just about right to see into the past, and predict the future. And besides, you leave your own tracks for someone else to interpret.

The lake-effect is not so much a plague as an opportunity.

LETTERS to the editor

Editor:

The fourth annual Flurry Fest is in the books and we're once again reminded of how fortunate we are to live in our close-knit Northern Michigan communities. A beautiful winter's day allowed an unprecedented number of area residents and visitors to experience the holiday sights and sounds of downtown Charlevoix in search of great deals, engaging entertainment, and most important of all, community cheer.

This event couldn't have enjoyed its success without the numerous businesses willing to invest in downtown Charlevoix. Our corporate supporters deserve a great deal of credit for financially supporting Flurry Fest when budget times are particularly difficult. Bay Winds Federal Credit Union, Bingham Insurance Services, Captain's Corner Shopping Center, Charlevoix Ace Hardware, Charlevoix State Bank, Charlevoix Cinema, the Charlevoix Courier, Huntington Bank, Landscape Logic, Northwestern Bank and Way Transportation were integral partners in supporting the festivities. Oleson's Food Store kindly donated a portion of the s'mores supplies, as well. Please consider showing them your appreciation with your patronage.

It's a lot to ask of our area restaurants to add concocting a significant quantity of special recipe hot chocolate this time of year and serving it to hundreds of area chocoholics seeking to identify Charlevoix's Hot Chocolate Champ, but 10 area eateries made the contest a rousing success. Sincere thanks to A Matter of Taste, Edgewater Bistro, Grey Gables, Kilwin's, Sadie and Jake's Gallery & Café, Scoville's, Whitney's Woolly Bugger, Roquette Burger Bistro and Stafford's Weather-vane for keeping festival attendees' bellies warm with fantastic chocolate delights.

Seamless logistical support was made possible through the combined efforts of the City of Charlevoix's electric, fire, police and street departments who once again demonstrated unmatched professionalism and commitment to our citizens. The Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighter's Association again delivered Santa to the throngs of children anxious to bend his ear with their Christmas wishes. And coordinating municipal event support fell to Linda Weller in the city manager's office, who made certain everything happened as it should, when it should.

And finally, extra special thanks to the many families who chose to spend all or part of their Saturday in downtown Charlevoix or in other area retail stores. We know you work hard to earn your paycheck and our area retailers work hard to earn your holiday business. Thank you for your patronage and your support of our local economy. If Flurry Fest beckons you to town on a chilly December day, you've got our word we'll continue to make it happen.

Happy Holidays,
Paul Andrzejewski and Jodi Bingham, Flurry Fest committee members
Keith Carey,
Executive Director

Absolutely. McCreddie said every year the children spend the last days before Christmas eyeing up their favorite morsels in the village. But they must

Community foundation releases annual report, shows assets up for 2010

Despite the struggling economy, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation saw an increase in assets in 2010.

In its annual report released last week, foundation officials said nearly 1,100 people made a charitable contribution to the organization, with overall gifts totaling more than $1 million. Many others stepped up too, by making special donations to ensure that sufficient revenues were available for grantmaking, the foundation said.

As a result, the foundation was able to distribute more than $900,000 in support of the area's nonprofit agencies and other causes. In addition, the foundation also provided more than $148,000 in scholarships to local students.

Some of the grants help programs that benefit children and young people, while others address pressing environmental or health needs. Programs that meet the most urgent needs — purchasing warm clothes, covering the cost of emergencies and supplying area food pantries — received special attention again this year.

The foundation also saw a change in its leadership this year as the Bob Tambellini, who served as the foundation's only president for the 18 years since its formation, retire. That, led to the hiring of former East Jordan Public Schools superintendent, Chip Hansen, as the foundation's new president.

"In so many ways, 2010 was a transition year for us," Hansen said. "We were able to use our resources wisely, while still being able to respond to the needs in our community."

Because the foundation's assets are permanently endowed and carefully managed for the long term, the organization generated earnings, even as the market continued to experience ups and downs.

"Our endowed funds are a major advantage," Hansen said, adding, "They're there in good times and bad to improve the quality of life in our community."

"Our asset base of more than $20.2 million provides a significant pool of charitable capital to serve Charlevoix County," Hansen said, adding that consistent support has allowed the foundation to grant more than $11 million since 1992.

"It's rare for communities of our size to have so many resources available to them, and that's a tribute to the generous nature and goodwill of so many people who call Charlevoix County home."

More information about the community foundation is available in their annual report, which was distributed in early December. The report summarizes the organization's highlights and invites those who are able to make a tax-deductible, year-end gift. Those who would like a copy may call the foundation office, (231) 536-2440. A full report of the year's activities, as well as information about grants, gifts, donors, funds, and financials is available on the foundation website, at www.c3f.org.

Vrondran chosen to join county DHS board

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners selected a new Department of Human Services board member on Wednesday, Dec. 8, to fill a vacancy of more than a month.

John Vrondran will be filling the opening on the board that was left vacant when Ron Moore's term expired on Oct. 31.

"He'll be replacing Ron Moore whose term already expired. Ron has been staying around to help the board until he was replaced today," said Joel Evans, Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners chairman.

Vrondran brings experience to the DHS board. He has played a role in local government and has served on other boards. He is currently the township supervisor and assessor for Eveline Township and is on the county roads steering committee.

"I know he'll do a good job because of his background as a township supervisor and some of the other things he's involved in. He has experience with boards and will be a great addition to the DHS," said Bob Drebenstedt, county commissioner.

One of the biggest duties for Vrondran and the DHS board is helping oversee the operations of Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

"I don't want to change anything they are doing at Grandvue. I just want to keep it going as it is. It's like a family and there are a lot of good people doing a lot of good things for the residents," Vrondran said.

There has been some controversy at Grandvue over the last year with law suits, but Vrondran is ready to face the issues and help them move on with their task of taking care of residents.

"There are a lot of rumors flying around (about Grandvue). We need to keep the rumors down because they don't help anyone," Vrondran said.

Vrondran will start his three-year term on the board immediately and at least one county commissioner is ready for him to get in the seat.

"He's an administrator who's not afraid to step on toes to get things done. He won't w, but he will be on top of things. He will do a good job of representing Grandvue and the DHS," Drebenstedt said.

Security camera's installed at county building

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County recently installed surveillance cameras in the halls and entrances of the county building to provide added security and protection to county employees.

Thirteen cameras were installed in November, which give views-down main hallways so sheriff's deputies can watch for any possible danger in the building. Prior to the installation the only security measures were the metal detectors at the entrances of the court rooms.

"Some of the offices in the building were worried about security and this system was installed to ease their minds," said Frank Shaler maintenance director for the Charlevoix County.

The county installed the camera system for less than $5,000 from the county general fund and networked them so they can all be viewed from a control center in the building and from a terminal in the Sheriff's office.

"The cameras detect movement and then start to record in real time at 30 frames per second," Shaler said.

The system will allow sheriff's deputies to see anything that goes on in the building so they can react, but one of the biggest assets of the cameras is the ability to record situations.

"When something happens (in the building) we have a record of it. There is no denying it in court," said Don Schneider, Charlevoix County sheriff.

The county isn't stopping their safety and security efforts with the camera system. They have plans for additional safety measures that will be completed in 2011.

"It's just the first part of a surveillance and security system for the building. We are also going to install a fire alarm system with strobe lights and pull stations. Then we're going to put in panic buttons in some of the offices and judges' chambers," Shaler said. There have not been any serious security incidents in the building and the system will help ensure nothing happens now.

"It's incumbent on us to make sure we can provide as much protection for (county employees) as we can," Schneider said.

Grey Gables wins hot chocolate contest

The Grey Gables may want to consider broadening their menu to include specialty hot chocolate drinks after the local eatery was named Charlevoix's "Hot Chocolate Champ" for the fourth year in a row at Flurry Fest in Downtown Charlevoix earlier this month.

The 330 votes cast represent a new high for event, Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority director Keith Carey said. Grey Gables' hot chocolate concoction was preferred by 84 of those voters. Kilwin's (46 votes) and Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant (43 votes) finished second and third. Other participating restaurants included A Matter of Taste, Edgewater Bistro, Roquette Burger Bistro, Sadie and Jake's Gallery & Café, Scoville's, Whitney's and Woolly Bugger.

"Not only did Flurry Fest see a substantial increase in festival attendees and voters, but the event featured ten restaurants, up from seven in 2009," Carey said. "We sincerely appreciate the efforts of each and every participating restaurant. It's a lot of work to prepare enough hot chocolate for several hundred people to sample."

More energy savings for Charlevoix County

DAVID HOPKINS
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners on Wednesday, Dec. 8, approved to use more than $31,000 of grant money to install insulation in the Humane Society/Animal control building in Boyne City.

Earlier in the year the county received a $40,000 grant from Northwest Michigan Council of Governments to enhance their energy savings in county buildings.

"We had an energy assessment done and the commissioners asked me to review it to see where we were losing the most energy and where we could save," said Frank Shaler, maintenance director for Charlevoix County.

After careful consideration of the assessment report, Shaler decided the building that houses the Charlevoix County Humane Society and Animal Control Office was the biggest energy priority in the county. The building was constructed in 1999 and there is little insulation in the walls or ceiling.

"There was a plan to install insulation in the building when it was first built, but the county was short on funds and they couldn't complete it at that time," Shaler said.

Installation will begin this week when eight inches of insulation are blown into the ceiling to reduce heat loss through the roof over the winter, but will have to wait until spring to attach the insulation to the exterior walls of the building.

"The heat loss through the ceiling is so bad we get icicles from the roof to the ground," said Jodie Adams, Charlevoix County Humane Society director.

She also said the cinder block walls transfer the cold directly into the building, making the offices on the outside edges of the building a cold place to work.

In the spring the exterior walls will have three inch thick Styrofoam panels mechanically attached to the cinder blocks. Then a mesh is attached to the foam before a coating is sprayed on to seal it all in. It has to be at least 40 degrees for the coating to adhere to the mesh layer.

"We looked in to having them do the work on the exterior this winter, but they would have to put a cover over the whole building to bring the temperature up. The additional $3,000 cost of the work wouldn't be worth the energy savings throughout the winter so we decided to just wait until spring," Shaler said.

The entire cost of the insulation project is $31,358. The county is using a portion of the remaining $8,642 from the grant to install programmable thermostats in the animal control office and energy efficient light bulbs in the court house to further the energy savings for the county.

Thompsons celebrate 50 years

Curt and Louise Thompson of Charlevoix recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Curtis Thompson and Louise Bader were married on Aug. 4, 1960 in East Jordan.

They lived in Battle Creek for several years before moving to Petoskey in 1964 where Curt owned and operated Thompson's Standard Service at the corner of Mitchell and Emmet streets. In 1970, they moved to Charlevoix where Curt became the AMOCO agent. Curt attended the Ferris (then Ferris Institute) automotive program. He is an ASE certified and licensed master mechanic and now owns Curt's Garage on U.S. 31 South in Charlevoix.

Curt is also the chief of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, having joined the department as a volunteer firefighter in 1974. Louise graduated from Ferris State University in 1986 as a registered dental hygienist and continues to work in various local offices on a contingency basis. She is also a circuit coach at Curves of Charlevoix.

The Thompsons are proud parents of four: Brian (Ann Farley) of Jacksonville, Fla., Gerry (Erin Campbell) of Tampa, Fla., Kelly (Mark) Peterson of Grand Rapids, and Michael, of Frankfort. They have seven grandchildren including Ben and Sophia, Megan and Bradley and Kyle, Kevin and Katie.

The family gathered to celebrate the 50th anniversary on a trip to the Smoky Mountains in July where they hiked and biked Clingman's Dome and Cade's Cove Loop in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park.

The performance will include a quartet of soloists including: Sarah Hibbard, soprano; Martha Hart, alto; David Theis, tenor; and Adrian Sanchez, bass. The vocalists will join the orchestra and chorus in the performance. During the Advent and Christmas seasons usually only the first section and selected portions of the remainder are performed.

Tickets are available online at Treatickets.com, or by visiting the orchestra's website, www.glorchestra.org. Reserved seating is available for $75, $50, or $25. Tickets may also be purchased by calling the orchestra at (231) 487-0010. General admission tickets are $15 and are available at chambers of commerce and bookstores in Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan, and the Crooked Tree Art Center. Remaining tickets will be sold at the door.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra presentation of Handel's "Messiah" is sponsored by the Bank of Northern Michigan and the Bay Harbor Foundation. The Michigan Council for the Arts, the Petoskey/Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Great Lakes Energy, and more than 338 contributing members support the mission of the orchestra: "To produce live orchestral performances providing entertainment, education and inspiration for our northern Michigan community."

Northwest Academy bands to present holiday concert

The Northwest Academy music students will present their annual holiday concert at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 21, at the First Congregational Church located on the corner of State St. and Park Ave.

The concert will include the sounds of Christmas provided by the advanced band, intermediate band, beginning band, strings, and special solos and ensembles performed by special guests.

The school's advanced band participated in the first annual massed band concert earlier this fall that took place at Concord Academy Boyne and the response to their individual performance at the concert was overwhelmingly positive, band director and school administrator Gary Stutzman said.

He said the clinician at the concert, David Overton, praised the band saying, "It is amazing that such a small ensemble can make such beautiful music."

Stutzman added, "The instrumental music program has been a highlight of the many outstanding programs that are offered through the curriculum at Northwest."

Family's living nativity returns to Horton Bay

The Bradley, Robinson, and Lee family and friends will again team up to present their well-known living nativity event from 6-8 p.m. on Sunday Dec. 19, and Monday, Dec. 20.

The group which has put the production together all but two years since 1996, said they are "excited about sharing Christ's birth with the local community."

After the 12 minute performance there are cookies and hot chocolate available.

Family members noted that many people come to the event each year and have made it a part of their holiday traditions.

A star and a campfire will light the way to the manger at the Bradley farm located at 6090 Horton Bay Road, a quarter mile off of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. The farm is about five miles north of Boyne City and about 4.6 miles south of U.S. 31. Performances will begin on each half-hour.

Boys basketball team notches win in season opener

The new era got off to a good start for the Charlevoix Rayder Friday boys varsity basketball team Friday.

Charlevoix overcame a fourth-quarter deficit to post a 69-67 victory over Maple City Glen Lake in Adam Wood's debut as the Rayders' boys' basketball coach.

Brennan Ackerman led the Rayders with 17 points and six rebounds, while Dylan Putman added 16 points, six rebounds and five steals as the Rayders overcame a 36-30 halftime deficit and a fourth-quarter deficit.

"I give our kids a lot of credit for continuing to fight back throughout the game," Wood said. "We went down 10 points or so, we battled back and in the fourth quarter we made some adjustments."

"The kids just kept fighting and I'm very proud of the way they came together."

Both Ackerman and Putman played key roles in the fourth-quarter surge, Wood said.

"Brennan really stepped up when we needed him and Dylan is one of the best athletes we've had in 10 years at this school," he said. "When he sets his mind to it, he's very difficult to stop."

Also for the Rayders, Keegan LeBlanc and Josh Nitchman had 11 points each. LeBlanc also made four steals.

"Obviously, we all have emotions and it feels great," Wood said. "It was a stressful way to win a game, but you'll take them any way you can get them. We don't expect them all to be perfect."

"Following a legend in coach (Keith) Haske, there's always going to be pressure."

For Glen Lake, 0-1, Mike O'Brien had 16 points and Matt O'Brien added 14.

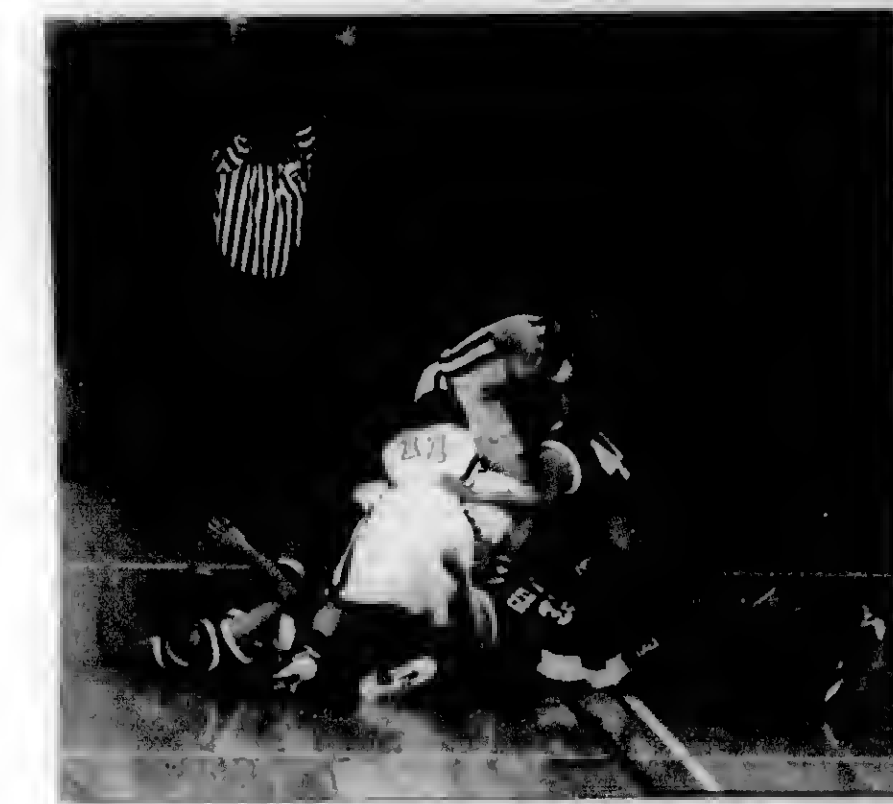

Charlie Hamilton scored 21 points to lead Charlevoix to a 72-64 win in the JV game. Sawyer Russell added 15 points for the Rayders, while Tanner Catt had 14 points, eight rebounds and seven steals.

The boys were scheduled to be back in action on Tuesday to take on the Gaylord at home. The Rayder will then take on Traverse City St. Francis at home on Thursday, Dec. 16. The JV game starts at 6 p.m., the varsity game tips off at 7:30 p.m.

5 Rayders earn medals at Manton Invitational

MANTON — Five Charlevoix High School wrestlers earned medals Saturday at the Manton Invitational.

Charlevoix's Chris Kele placed second at 171 pounds, while teammates Austin Cesaro, 103; Austin Lobenherz, 119; Ryan Penfold, 130; and Alex Waha, 160; each placed fourth.

Kele, who was seeded third, opened with a pin in 1 minute, 15 seconds, of Brent Shipman of Elk Rapids. He followed with a 19-5 major decision over Zack Randall of Grayling, then was pinned by Derek Sovo of Holton in 1:55 in the championship match.

Penfold finished 3-2, while Waha, Lobenherz and Cesaro each finished 2-2.

Cesaro was pinned in his opening bout by Tyler Slater of Kingsley in 1:48; he then came back to pin Andrew Davis of Boyne City in 1:15, and Ghaige Toomey of Grayling in 4:47. Cesaro then dropped a 12-6 decision to Slater in the third-place match.

Lobenherz opened by pinning Waylon Henning of Boyne City in 1:59, then was pinned by Boyne's Conner Mills in 45 seconds. Lobenherz rebounded with a pin in 3:24 in his third-round match, then was pinned by Derek Arit of Kingsley in 3:44 in the third-place match.

Penfold was pinned by Jacob Moreen of Holton in 1:43 in his opening match, then won three straight matches, two on pins, to reach the third-place match where he was pinned by Kaid Brookshire of Elk Rapids in 3:49.

Penfold's victories came on a pin of Devon Burke of Fife Lake Forest Area in 1:45, and Josh Moore of Manton in 1:50, and on a 7-4 decision over Ryan Edwards of Kalkaska.

Waha pinned Nathan Zeener of Kingsley in 1:08 in his opening match, then was pinned by Jason Taylor of Holton in 3:53. Waha came back to pin Blake Warner of Manton in 4:49, then bowed to Ty Jensen of Grayling, 9-4, in the third-place match.

The Rayders go to Kalkaska for a Lake Michigan Conference dual meet on Thursday, Dec. 16, then to the Bridge Brawl at Ruyard High School on Friday, Dec. 17.

Still Time for Year-end Financial Moves

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

Now that 2011 is almost here, you may want to make some New Year's resolutions. Planning to volunteer? Go to the gym more often? Learn a new language? All worthy ambitions, of course, but this year, why not add some financial resolutions as well?

Which resolutions should you make? Here are a few ideas to consider:

- Boost your retirement accounts. No matter how old you'll be in 2011, one thing is certain—you're a year closer to retirement than you were in 2010. And that's why you'll want to increase your contributions to your retirement accounts. If your salary is going up in 2011, boost the amount you defer for your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan, such as a 403(b) plan (if you work for a school or other tax-exempt organization) or a 457(b) plan (if you work for a state or local government). With tax-deductible contributions, tax-deferred growth of earnings and several investment options, these types of plans are tremendous ways to save for retirement. And try to "max out" your traditional or Roth IRA, too.

- Look for opportunities. With the uncertainties in the economy and the volatility of the financial markets, many people decide to head to the investment "sidelines" for a while. Yet, this environment may actually be a good one for investors with patience, discipline and the ability to look beyond yesterday's headlines. For one thing, many quality securities are now good values. Also, we're still seeing low inflation and low interest rates — factors that may lead to greater economic demand and improved strength in the financial markets.

- Don't over-react to market swings. Over the past few years, we've seen plenty of sudden, sharp swings in the financial markets, and you're likely going to see more of them in 2011. Don't over-react to either the "ups" or the "downs" of the market. Over-reacting leads to short-term thinking — and successful investors are the ones who can maintain a long-term perspective.

- Rebalance when necessary. At least once a year, review and rebalance your portfolio, as necessary, to make sure it still reflects your goals, risk tolerance and family situation, all of which can change over time.

- Reduce your debts. While the sluggish economy of the past couple of years has obviously been a cause of concern for everyone, we have seen one "silver lining" in that many people, concerned about overspending, have shed some of their debt load. The less money you have to spend on your debts, the more you'll have available to invest for your future, so do what you can to cut down on what you owe.

- Maintain adequate cash levels. As an investor, you've got at least two good reasons for maintaining enough cash in your portfolio. First, having adequate cash available means you'll be ready to act quickly to take advantage of good investment opportunities. And second, by having a cash cushion, you won't be forced to liquidate long-term investments to pay for short-term needs such as a major car repair, a new furnace, a big doctor's bill, and so on.

By following these suggestions, you can position yourself to make progress toward your long-term goals in 2011 — and in all the New Years that follow.

Icing on the breakwall

Strong winds accompanying this past week-end's storm not only drove windchill values well below zero, they also created large waves on Lake Michigan, the spray from which coated the Charlevoix breakwater with ice.

BASES announces goals, board officers

The board of directors for the Charlevoix-based BASES (Bay Area Substance Abuse Services) recently set its budget and appointed its slate of officers for 2011.

Among the major goals for the year set out for the year, BASES hopes to raise $25,000 from local contributions.

BASES has served more than 4,500 clients since its founding in 1993. One of its major programs includes working with Charlevoix County Probate Court and Boyne City Alternative Education to provide residential treatment services to teens age 14 to 17 through the Recovery High program. Now in its 13th year, Recovery High has served more than 470 teens and their families from 44 different counties in Michigan with more than 100 from Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

BASES is also involved in the Juvenile Drug Court Programs in Charlevoix and Emmet counties to assist teens and their families.

Local teens that don't need residential services have access to all of BASES classes and groups at no cost. These local teens are provided an opportunity to develop skills to make healthier choices in hopes of avoiding lengthy and costly interventions. Each year, local teens access approximately $50,000 worth of substance abuse services at no cost to their families, organization officials said.

"It is through local donations from individuals, churches, service and social groups, businesses and foundations that our local teens and young adults as well as their families can access these life changing services. In these difficult economic times," the board said in a news release. "Your support is needed to maintain these vital community services."

Those wishing to make a donation to the origination may send it to: BASES, 208 West Lincoln St., Charlevoix, MI 49720; or by using BASES web-site at: BASESTeenCenter.org

Library closed Friday, Dec. 17

The Charlevoix Public Library will be closed all day on Friday, Dec. 17, to allow crews to perform computer server upgrades.

The one day closure was approved by the library board at its Dec. 9 meeting. Library director Valerie Meyerson said the work will require all of the library's computers to be down for much of the day and noted that the work is expected to be complete more efficiently if the library is closed.

Anyone with questions about the closure should contact Meyerson at (231) 547-2651.

Toys for Tots wrapping up

As the end of the annual holiday Toys for Tots holiday toy collection drive draws near, the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital recently turned over the fruits of their collection efforts this year. Staff at the hospital focused many of the collections on items for teens. All of the items collected through the Toys for Tots campaign will be handed over to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project which will be making its distributions to families in need this Friday, Dec. 15. Pictured above on hand for the donation hand-off last week were representatives of the hospital staff and Northern Michigan Marine Corps League (from left) Debbie Cesaro, George Wahl, Russ Bolt, Charlie Butcher, Beth Schmidt, Tina Foltz, Ken Staley and Kris Hoeksma.

DDA to maintain programs

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Despite an expected dip of about $63,000 in tax revenue, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority is planning no significant reductions in programming for its next fiscal year.

The authority's board unanimously approved its budget for the 2011-12 fiscal year (which begins April 1) at a special meeting Monday.

As passed, the authority's budget does, however, call for about $20,000 less in non-debt service spending for the next fiscal year.

Authority executive director Keith Carey said the savings will come from three primary areas: Contractual services (mainly lower maintenance costs associated with the East Park water fountain); about $7,000 in repairs to the Bridge Park building that won't be repeated next year and some efficiencies gained in the concert in the park series.

The approved budget calls for the following major programs to continue:

— The eight-event summer concert series at a cost of $12,000

— Flurry Fest at a cost of about $3,000

— Three "Movies in the Park" at a cost of about $1,500

— Downtown street-side tree light maintenance at a cost of about $7,500.

— $4,000 each for a downtown map and store directory and promotional postcards to be inserted in the annual visitor's guide.

The downtown development authority gets the bulk of its funding through tax increment financing — that is, a portion of the property taxes collected on properties in the authority's district are "captured" to be used to correct and prevent deterioration in the downtown development district; to encourage historic preservation; to create and implement development plans, and to promote economic growth.

In the current fiscal year, the authority saw tax revenues come in about $70,000 less than the previous year and about $40,000 less than it had budgeted. For next year the budget anticipates another $40,000 drop in tax revenue. The revenue decreases are a result of declines in taxable values in the district. However, despite these revenue declines, authority officials expect to still spend $79,000 less than expenses at the end of this fiscal year and about $35,000 less than expenses at the end of the next fiscal year. Of the $702,000 the authority expects to take in next year, about $507,000 is expected to be spent on paying of the its various debts incurred from past projects.

Carey said he's pleased that, in the face of the reduced revenue, the authority will not see any significant cuts to its programs.

"This is a fiscally responsible budget that continues to fill the basic obligations of the DDA and then some," Carey said. "We're able to continue popular programs, such as the downtown concert series, with the same number of concerts using a professional sound engineer, and the movies in the park."

At Monday's meeting, Carey also was seeking the board's endorsement of an updated work plan for the coming year. Carey said the plan — essentially an ongoing "to-do" list for him, had no significant changes or major additions.

However, much of the discussion among the board Monday centered around an interest in renewed cooperative marketing efforts with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau. The consensus among the board was to look into the possibility of such a cooperative effort early in 2011.

Jerry Matelski remembered for service to community

BOYNE CITY — People in many parts of Charlevoix County are remembering a man who had a dream of helping his community and who had the drive to make his dreams a reality.

On Friday, Dec. 17, Gerald "Jerry" Matelski, 57, lost a nearly yearlong battle with esophageal cancer and died at the Hiland Cottage of Hospice of Little Traverse Bay in Petoskey, but he left behind a legacy of service to the community.

"Jerry did a lot for this community. He had visions of helping people and managed to accomplish his goals," said Hugh Conklin, manager of the Boyne City Main Street program.

Matelski was born April 11, 1953, to Verna and Bill Matelski. He graduated from Boyne Falls High School and then entered the construction field where he worked for many years while raising his family.

Later in life, Matelski became an active part of the development of Boyne City, or-Santa secrets...

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

It's no secret — Christmas is just a few days away and that means there are a lot of last minute holiday details to get wrapped up before the big day arrives. And no place is that is that more true than at the North Pole where Santa Clause is making last-minute preparations for his upcoming visit to homes all over the globe. But there are also some last minute details boys and girls might want to brush up on before the big night arrives. And for that, the Courier has turned to an organization that has become one of the foremost authorities on Santa's Christmas Eve activities for more than 50 years: NORAD, that's the North American Aerospace Defense Command — the same people who keep constant watch on the skies over North America for any airborne threats.

And who would be better equipped to track a man who flies all over the world in one night?

The folks at NORAD have been tracking Santa's travels on Christmas Eve since 1955 when a misprinted telephone number caused children to call into the command center seeking updates on Santa's whereabouts on Christmas Eve.

Since 1998 NORAD has been posting it's Christmas Eve efforts to follow Santa around the globe on its website, www.noradsanta.org.

The advent of the Internet has added a whole new dimension to the amount of information Children can see about Santa's travels. Videos taken from pre-positioned cameras around the world and escort fighter jets give children an up-close status on the Jolly Old Elf's whereabouts.

But the site provides a wealth of additional information on Santa and his travels including frequently asked questions about what the reindeer like to eat, how Santa manages to get down chimneys and specifications on Santa's sleigh.

The site even provides a convenient "Countdown to Track Santa."

While NORAD Tracks Santa might have most of the available intelligence on Santa, one tidbit of information they don't have is that he and Mrs. Claus will be available for a special, last-minute visit with children in the Charlevoix area from 6-9 p.m. on Christmas Eve, Friday, Dec. 24, at the home of Dale and Marilyn Boss on Maple Street in Charlevoix Township.

Two injured in traffic crash

Two people were injured in a two-vehicle traffic crash at the intersection of Bridge and Carpenter streets around 7:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Further details about the condition of the injured and what led to the crash were not available from authorities before the Courier's deadline Tuesday morning, however authorities said the victim's injuries did not appear to be life-threatening.

Holiday Hours

DEAR READERS:

Because of the upcoming holidays and staff vacation time, the Charlevoix Courier office will be closed much of the remainder of the year. City council approves historical society kiosk

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday approved a request by the Charlevoix Historical Society to place an informational kiosk in East Park.

Tentative plans call for the kiosk to be placed in the area of the Clinton St. intersection, but the exact location was not specified by the city council. Instead the council agreed to take consider the exact location after the kiosk is constructed an can be placed in various locations on-site.

The kiosk, which will be paid for by the historical society, will include historical photographs and information about the city, information about the historical society and have a location that where information on upcoming historical society events can be updated.

Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson said the justification for allowing the historical society kiosk in the park is that it would mostly be promoting the city (and its history) as a whole.

He also noted that plans call for the kiosk to include historical photos of how that location appeared many years ago, allowing the viewer to compare past to present-day Charlevoix. The kiosk is expected to be ready for placement in the spring.

In other business, the council approved a proposal by Keith Alessi to build a 56-foot by 56-foot airplane hangar in the midfield complex of the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. Under the agreement, Alessi would lease the land from the city for 25 years, after which time the building would entirely become the city's.

Airport manager Matt Bailey noted that although there are about 10-12 people on a waiting list for space in current city-owned hangars at the airport, Alessi's request was the first to construct a new hangar at the airport in some time.

The council also gave its approval for three grant applications to the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians. One request was on behalf of Colorado Challenge, an outdoor recreation camp for underprivileged teens. The second was for $15,205 for in-car video and audio equipment for the city's police cars, and a third was for $22,529 for engineering service for the proposed Lake to Lake Trail.

Women's recipe for holiday cheer: Slow down

I read somewhere that the busiest time of a woman's life is when she turns 33. The reasons for this: Most women who reach this age are busy with balancing the tasks of raising children, keeping up a home and having a career that takes time away from both. If a woman is recently divorced double that stress. So, if you are one of these women, I send peaceful, positive thoughts your way.

I thought about what my life was like at the ripe old age of 33, and to tell you the truth, whoever documented this information is correct. I can't remember what my life was like back then. It's a blur, but then again, my lack of memory may have more to do with age. I lose things a lot and lately can't remember where I parked my car. Just ask Rita or John at Glen's Market. Thanks, guys, for picking up my debit card I left behind. To the nice polite policeman, I promise I won't call my car in stolen anymore.

I started thinking about the added stress of the holidays and decided that women in their 30s should follow my rules. Take a break from sending greeting cards, hosting family gatherings and finding the perfect gift for every family member.

If you are a spouse to one of these women, or a father, or significant other, just take note that "if momma's not happy no one else will be either."

For holidays and weddings, my advice is always the same when it comes to the male gender. Just look lovingly into her eyes and say the following, "What can I do to help?" Even if she doesn't want your help she'll be a happy camper that you at least offered.

Fortunately there is light at this end of this tunnel without me waving a flashlight in front of you. By the time a woman reaches 50 years of age her family, career and life in general is usually on track. I skipped over forty because many of you will still be on speed dial attending myriad sporting events your child is involved with. By the time you reach 50, you'll have more time to look at photos to view the blur of your 30s. Enjoy this period because by the time a woman reaches 60, she'll be busy again with grandchildren, aging parents, and maybe a child returning home to the nest.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Now a woman in her 70s is beginning to sound pretty good as long as health and mental prowess are intact. Between HRT therapy, crossword puzzles and the camaraderie of a few good friends, this chapter should be pretty good. Shall I move forward to the 80s and 90s? Grandchildren are grown, children should be settled or better yet retired and you can then follow my holiday rules for the 33 year old. Few if any greeting cards to send; besides you can't remember names and you're not certain if the person you are sending it to has the same address. You should be the guest at all family gatherings. After all, you hosted a hundred gatherings in your lifetime already. Regarding gifts; well, a limited income takes care of that.

So now we have come full circle in the realm of the feminine world. What I'm trying to convey is that women, in general, put pressure upon themselves and we allow others to do that as well. It's OK to say "no" now and then and when you do slow down a moment, make it a "Kodak" one because those very pictures will remind you of times spent celebrating with family and friends. Every chapter in life has a sweeter part and we need to savor those because they provide comfort during our elder years. Fond memories are like a fuzzy, fleece blanket. So, like Simon and Garfunkel said, "Slow down you move to fast..." (As a side note: For my female counterparts who are single and without children the rules may not apply.)

LETTERS to the editor

THANKS TO FAMILY OF FAITH CHURCH

Editor:

My daughters attended a wonderful event (Freeze Out - Reach Out) put on by the Family of Faith church here in Charlevoix that was such a blessing. I would like to thank all who were involved in the planning and carrying out the event as it was, in my opinion, a huge success. Many parents gave of their time and sleep to provide our teen youth with an experience they are not likely to forget. It was a night of fun but also about realizing how they can help others, especially in these very difficult times. My daughters were so touched by their role in raising money to provide Christmas for two families the church is giving a hand up to. They were able to go shopping, at 1 a.m., and personally purchase items for the children in the families. They learned about being homeless and what families go through. They came home thankful for their beds, the food on the table and the warmth of the wood stove. The message was in the experience — the experience that Family of Faith, Tahitha (the coordinator) and all the volunteers who stayed up all night with the kids gave. My girls are looking forward to next year and joining the event again and I will totally support them and this church in their efforts to bring this to as many youth as we can.

Thank you,
Shelia Davis

Bishop's Christmas message: Are we more like the innkeepers or the Lord?

Editor's note: The following is a Christmas message authored by The Rev. Bernard A. Hebda, bishop of the Diocese of Gaylord

"She wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn" (Luke 2:7)

In many Catholic parishes throughout the country, particularly in areas that have seen immigration from Mexico, young children dressed as Joseph and Mary and the townsfolk of Bethlehem will reenact Las Posadas—the search for shelter on that night that Jesus was born. Each time that a grumpy innkeeper, roused from his sleep, turns the couple away I find myself wondering how welcoming I have been in my own life to the Lord, who so often visits us in what Mother Teresa would call the "distressing disguise of the poor." How sad to have the Messiah at our door and to turn Him away because we see only the stranger, the foreigner, the substance abuser, or the one who knows just how to try our patience.

For 18 Christmases, I had the opportunity to join thousands of Romans who wander the streets of their city during the 12 days of Christmas to visit the elaborate nativity scenes that would be erected in each Church. Following the Neapolitan tradition, the nativity scene would normally include not only the stable so familiar to us in the United States, with a smattering of shepherds, angels and kings, but also representatives of everyday Italian life — the baker, the butcher, the mayor, the barkeep, and perhaps even a few soccer players — all centered around the newborn king greeting the world from the simplicity of His manger. The message could not be any clearer: while there may have been no room in Bethlehem's inns, the Messiah makes sure that there's always room for everyone at His threshold.

With the celebration of Christmas 2010, the Diocese of Gaylord is beginning a year-long celebration of its 40th anniversary. We are hoping and praying that this year of jubilee, centered on the actual anniversary date of July 20, 2011, will be a time when we imitate our Redeemer in welcoming all to encounter and embrace the joy and peace that always surrounds His presence. We have learned from the experience of the innkeepers. We know that we need to move over to make room in our pews and in our classrooms and in our homes for all who share our longing for a Christ-centered world in which no one is a stranger because they all bear the image and likeness of Jesus, our brother.

In my first year as bishop, I repeatedly experienced the welcoming spiritual embrace of a Church that seems much more mature than a mere 40 years would warrant: a Church that prays well, that serves well, that looks for opportunities to interact with other communities of faith. But I'm hoping that we can use this jubilee year to see what more we can be doing to "radiate Christ" and to dig deep to find the zeal and enthusiasm that characterized those early days when Pope Paul VI appointed Msgr. Edmund Szoka to be our first Bishop.

As we once again bend our knee in adoration, awe and amazement before the Christ-child, please join me in asking God's blessing upon all who live and work and recreate in this incredibly beautiful corner of the Lord's vineyard.

May the Prince of Peace, whom we will strive to welcome and glorify at Christmas, and throughout this year of jubilee, be the true source of our joy and our strength.

The Rev. Bernard A. Hebda,
Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Gaylord

A CHRISTMAS Miracle

All the time, every day, we all complain about something; a bad dinner out, our car, our circumstances and much more. The picture below shows us that we can all do better!

Here you see Marine Cpl. Todd Nicely, age 26, and his wife Crystal, age 25, at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington DC last month.

You notice that he has no left leg. Then you notice he has no right leg. Then you notice he has no left arm. Then you notice he has no right arm. Todd was massively wounded by an IED defending you, me, our families and our country. He was on patrol in Afghanistan earlier this year chasing the Taliban and Al-Queda when after crossing a bridge he stepped on the mine.

Then you see something you do not believe – you feel the tears going down your cheeks, as they did mine, – you know that here is something truly remarkable. Then you see and feel “The Unbroken Spirit” of Todd and Crystal. You feel them uplift us all to the meaning of Christmas with their smiles and joy of each other. No matter how difficult their future may be they still have each other. That’s all that counts for them.

Now, let’s look at the picture below. We see Todd (with his new arms and legs) Crystal, me and my wife at our corporate headquarters in Northern Virginia.

During this visit we had a ceremony to thank them both for their service. We wanted to show our appreciation and that of a grateful nation. Todd and Crystal received from us a new Toyota truck, free college educations and financial help. Please find room in your hearts and lives to help a veteran or someone else in need this Christmas season in any measure large or small.

So, as these young adults move on with their lives we bless them both for raising up our spirits and our humanity. They make us so proud and make us better people. A Christmas gift that no amount of money can ever buy.

For more of the Nicely’s story visit www.washingtonpost.com and search Todd A. Nicely.

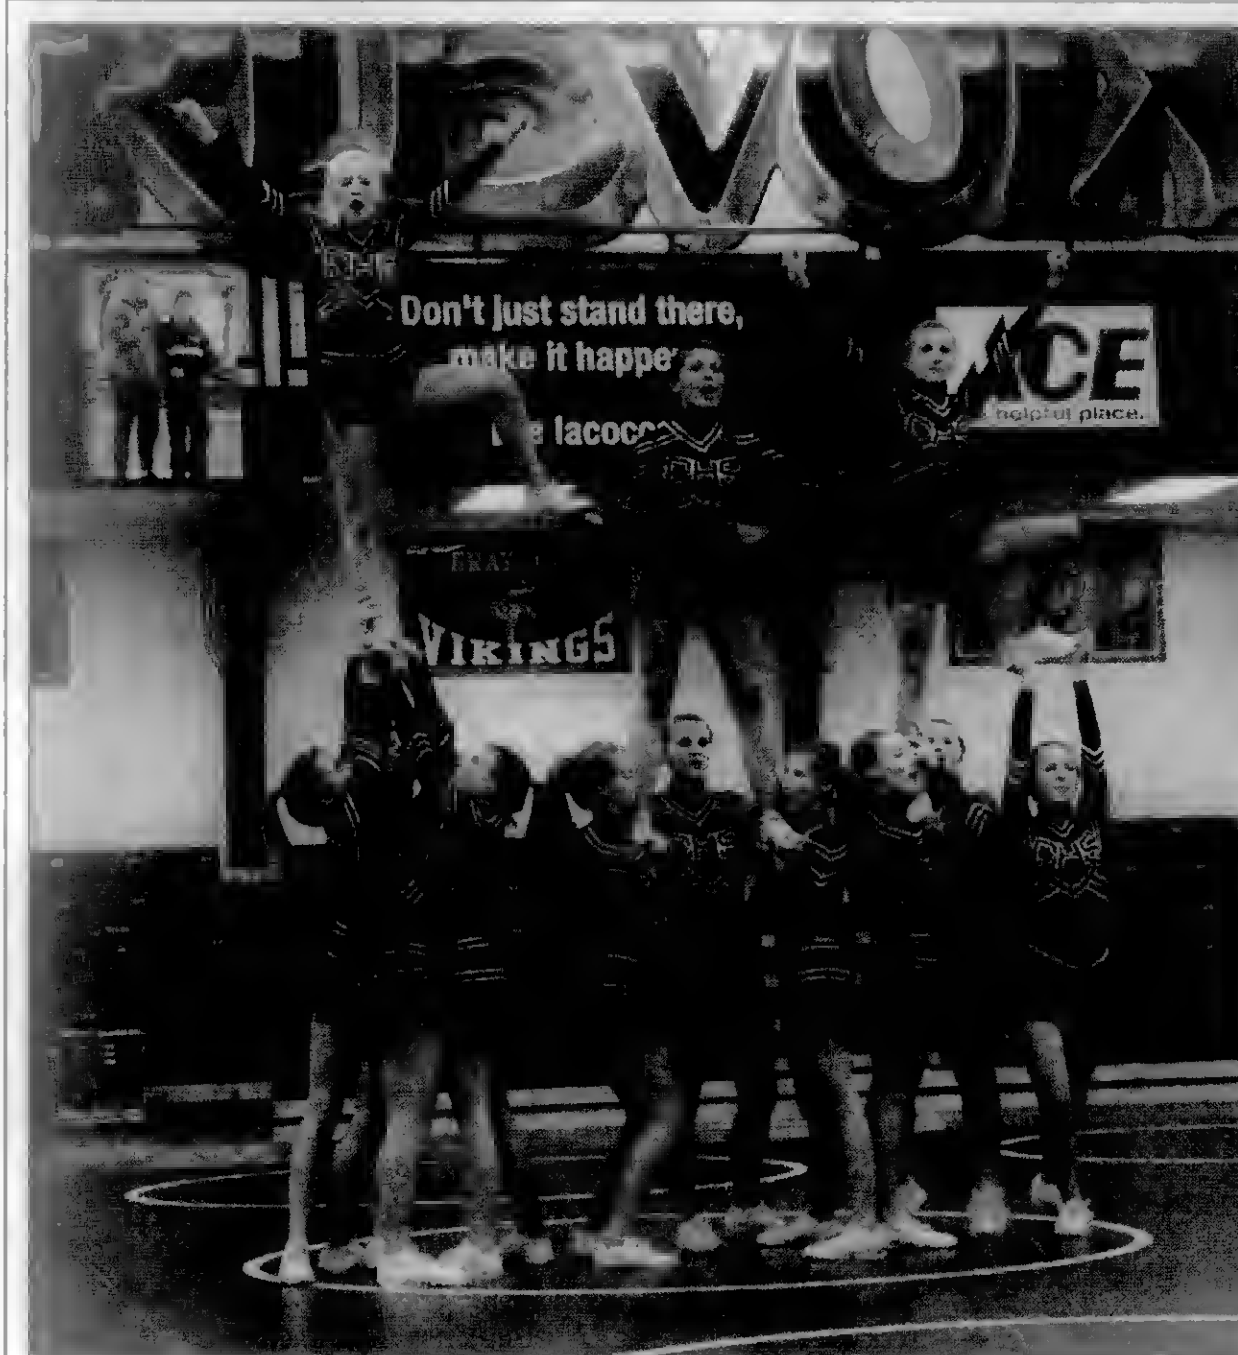

The true meaning of Christmas for us all – An unbroken spirit of eternal love and caring.

Merry Christmas to you all, especially Todd and Crystal!!!

ganizing groups to better the lives of area residents. In 2007, he laid the groundwork to get the Alano Club in Boyne City up and going.

After the Alano Club was up and going at Unity Hall in Boyne City, Matelski continued to support the Alano mission, helping locals recover from alcoholism.

Matelski was also instrumental in the repairs done to Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in 2008. He lived off the road and wanted a safe and smooth road for residents and vacationers to travel on, and he rallied people together to make a change.

"He almost single-handedly got the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road repaved from the city to (Young State Park). He got residents from along the road to go to meetings, to make things happen," Wright said.

In 2007, Matelski organized the group called the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County. They put up signs at either end of the road to alert motorists to their cause, set up a website, called elected officials, attended township board meetings and circulated surveys to share their views about the condition of the road.

Matelski's dream became a reality in 2008 when voters in Charlevoix County narrowly approved a 15-year, 1-mill road improvement and repair millage by a narrow, 96-vote margin, which provided the funding for the repairs to Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Even more recently Matelski was the driving force and idea behind converting the vacant Carter's Grocery Store in Boyne City into a youth activity center.

"I was taking a nap one day and I woke up with this idea for a youth center," Matelski told the Petoskey News-Review in March of 2009. "I started investigating. I did some research and found out that this is really a possibility."

The funeral Mass will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 22, at the St. Matthew Catholic Church in Boyne City. Visitation will be 5-8 p.m. today, Tuesday, Dec. 21, at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City with a vigil service at 7 p.m. Burial will be in the St. Augustine Cemetery in Boyne Falls.

Police plan holiday drunken driving enforcement

Law enforcement officers across the state are taking part in a drunk driving crackdown Dec. 16-Jan. 2.

More than 200 law enforcement agencies in 35 counties are conducting drunk driving enforcement during extra patrols funded by the Office of Highway Safety Planning through federal traffic safety funds.

In Michigan, it is illegal to drive with a blood alcohol content of .08 percent or higher, although motorists can be arrested at any BAC level if an officer feels they exhibit signs of impairment while driving. As of Oct. 31, under the new high BAC law motorists face enhanced penalties if arrested with a .17 BAC or higher.

State officials said in 2009, there were 299 alcohol-related traffic deaths, a decrease of 5.7 percent from 2008. Although the number of alcohol-related traffic deaths declined last year, crashes involving alcohol are eight times more likely to be fatal.

During last year's Christmas and New Year's holiday periods, 10 people died in traffic crashes. Four of those deaths were alcohol-related.

A motorist convicted of drunk driving can expect to face serious consequences including:

- Up to 93 days in jail
- Up to a $500 fine
- Up to 360 hours of community service
- 180 days driving suspension
- Six points on a driver's license

If convicted under Michigan's new high BAC law, in addition to points on their driver's license and community service, enhanced penalties for first-time drivers include:

- Up to 180 days in jail
- Up to a $700 fine
- One year license suspension with restrictions permitted after 45 days
- One year mandatory alcohol treatment program or self-help program

Motorists who wish to have limited driving privileges following a 45-day license suspension may do so only after a breath alcohol ignition interlock device is installed on their vehicle. Installation and monthly fees are the responsibility of the driver.

An ignition interlock requires a driver to blow into the device and prevents a vehicle from starting if it measures a BAC of .025 or above.

In addition, the device requires periodic retests when driving longer periods. The device records the date and time of each test and any violation is reported to the Department of State.

In addition, all convicted drunk drivers are subject to a $1,000 fee for two consecutive years, for a total of $2,000 in additional costs.

Anyone who refuses a breath test the first time is given an automatic one-year driver's license suspension.

For a listing of planned enforcement times, dates, and locations, visit www.michigan.gov/ohsp.

Rayders spoil Haske's homecoming with 66-58 win RECORD IMPROVES TO 3-0

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

The reception was warm, as most people believed it would be.

However, the end result was even better for the Charlevoix High School varsity boys' basketball team in former coach Keith Haske's return to school at which he served and enjoyed terrific success for 13 years.

Charlevoix jumped out to a quick start and never trailed en route to topping Lake Michigan Conference rival Traverse City St. Francis, 66-58, in both teams' league opener Thursday at a packed Charlevoix High School gym.

The game featured the return of Haske, who received a warm ovation from the Charlevoix crowd and plenty of handshakes, hugs and greetings during the pre-game warmup, and then again postgame.

Haske, who left his Charlevoix coaching position to take over at St. Francis in early June, said his return to the visiting sideline was "bittersweet."

"I have a great relationship with the kids over there," Haske said, glancing at the Charlevoix bench where he went 240-77, earned 10 district championship, six regional titles, four state semifinal appearances, and two state runner-up finishes. "It was kind of weird, but once the game started and you start competing, it all starts to kind of wash away."

Charlevoix 6-foot-7 senior center Brennan Ackerman finished with a team-high 18 points - 11 of which came in the second quarter -- eight rebounds and five blocks, while senior guard Dylan Putman added 16 points and six rebounds as the Rayders held off the Gladiators and their former coach.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 3-0 overall, 1-0 league, while St. Francis falls in 1-2, 0-1.

The two teams will meet again on Feb. 4 in Traverse City in what could be - and typically is - another key league contest.

"Obviously, it's very satisfying for various reasons," said first-year Charlevoix coach Adam Wood, who played at Charlevoix for Haske and coached under him for four seasons. "Charlevoix and St. Francis has been a rivalry now for 10-plus years or for as long as (Haske) has been around. Both teams have been good that whole time."

"We're excited about that in itself."

Charlevoix led 16-13 at the end of the first quarter and stretched its advantage to 32-26 at the half behind Ackerman, who not only collected 13 first-half points, but did an admirable job defending St. Francis' 6-9 center Sean Sheldon, an NCAA Division I recruit.

Ackerman blocked Sheldon's first shot attempt early in the first quarter, then collected four more blocks inside.

"That was his best game by far," Wood said of Ackerman. "Something really got him riled up. He didn't have a great practice yesterday, but something stirred him up. I'm not sure if it was the rivalry, the challenge of guarding Sheldon or what, but he wanted to take him and he got a block on the first play and that really helped his confidence."

The Glads cut the deficit to 32-30 early in the third quarter behind four straight Rayder turnovers. The Rayders regrouped to up their advantage to 41-34 behind a Keegan LaBlance 3-pointer and a long-range jumper.

Charlevoix led 46-41 heading into the fourth.

"I thought (Charlevoix) rose to the occasion," Haske said. "Keegan stepped up for them in the third and we weren't near him. They created some things for him and we just needed to be better on him."

St. Francis again cut the deficit to two points, 50-48, early in the fourth on a pair of Austin Currie free throws, but again the Rayders responded as Andrew Potter drained a triple, Matt Murray converted inside, and Putman added three straight free throws to make it 58-52 with under three minutes to go.

A Sheldon triple made it 59-55 with 1 minute, 18 seconds to play, but the Rayders closed the game out at the free throw line as Josh Nitchman hit two free throws and Putman shot 9-of-13 from the stripe in the final stanza.

"I thought Charlevoix played great," Haske said. "I saw them play Tuesday night (against Gaylord) and I thought they played (tonight) up from what they did Tuesday. They did a great job with our pressure and Brennan Ackerman played the game of his life. He really hurt us inside."

"They (Charlevoix) have some good quickness and I was just impressed with the way they played to be honest with you."

Also for the Rayders, who shot 46 percent (25-of-54) from the floor, Potter finished with eight points, while LaBlance added seven points and eight assists, and Nitchman collected six rebounds.

"It's a big win," said Wood, whose team is off until a Jan. 4 date at Suttons Bay, where they will face Michigan State-signee Dwaun Anderson, rated the No. 3 player in the state by Detroit Free Press prep writer Mick McCabe. "But I cautioned the kids to not lose perspective. Everybody is going to get better and our goal is to get better every day. We definitely didn't play our best game, we had some loose balls we didn't get to, some turnovers and rebounding issues, but we're happy to go into the break 3-0."

"We feel really fortunate to be where we're at."

For St. Francis, Sheldon finished with a game-high 21 points, while Christopher Miller and Riley Bulough had eight points apiece.

"We have a lot of things to work on," Haske said. "We're giving up too many easy things on the offensive glass and that's early season stuff, we can work through that."

"We have to finish better. But my hats off to Charlevoix, they played great and we look forward to playing them again at our place."

"It's always a great game." Charlevoix also won the JV game, 61-42. For the Rayders, 3-0, Charlie Hamilton and Sawyer Russell had 18 points apiece.

GAYLORD — Keegan LeBlance had 17 points and Joe Filipiak and Andrew Plude added 10 each Tuesday, Dec. 14, to offset a 26-point effort by Gaylord's Troy Galm as Charlevoix downed the Blue Devils, 73-66, in a non-conference high school boys' basketball game.

"It was a big win for us early in the year," said first-year Charlevoix coach Adam Wood, whose team improved to 2-0. "It was a great test to see where we are against the bigger schools."

The Rayders open Lake Michigan Conference play at home on Thursday, Dec.

16, against longtime rival Traverse City St. Francis.

The game will mark a homecoming for former Rayder coach Keith Haske, who led Charlevoix to unprecedented success during his 13-year tenure as coach.

The Rayders went 240-77 under Haske and captured 10 Class C district and six regional championships, and reached the state Final Four four times, and twice finished as the state runner-up.

Charlevoix won the JV game, 53-50. Tanner Catt scored 22 points and Sawyer Russell added 11 for the Rayders.

EJ Scouts brave cold to help the needy

EAST JORDAN — The Grand Army of the Republic Park in East Jordan may have looked a little like a shanty town on Saturday night, but it was just a local group of Boy Scouts camping out to help families in need.

For the third year in a row, Boy Scout Troop 17 from East Jordan camped in the park in cardboard boxes and tarps to get a small feel for what it's like to be homeless and to gather canned goods to help the needy.

"We've camped out in the winter before, but this gives them a reason to be out here. The food goes to the pantry and helps people," said Tom Grutsch, troop 17 scoutmaster.

The scouts started their night in the cold at about 3 p.m. on Saturday by shoveling away the more than a foot of snow to put down their makeshift shelters for the night.

"The scouts build their own boxes and bring them down. In the morning most of them just burn the boxes in the fire so they don't have to take them home and to warm up after the night," Grutsch said.

The boys spent the evening making their boxes comfortable for the night with sleeping bags and blankets, and by huddling around a campfire to stay warm, but their most important task was collecting food from the community. Cars pulled up to the park one after another to present canned goods.

"Every year we get about 40 cases of food that goes to the Care and Share Food Pantry here in town," Grutsch said.

The Care and Share Food Pantry in East Jordan picks up the food from the scouts in the morning to offer it to local families who are experiencing tough times.

The boys learn valuable lessons about giving to the needy from their experience in the park every winter and they also advance their status in the Boy Scouts by earning badges.

"I'm cooking stew over the fire to earn my cooking badge. I get a community service badge for this, too," said Parker Demars, 13, from East Jordan.

The scouts packed up their equipment early on Sunday morning to go home and warm up.

"I learn a lot in the Boy Scouts. I'm out here learning how to stay warm in the cold. It's not easy. It must be hard for homeless people," said Daryan Swanson, 12, a Boy Scout from East Jordan.

2010, a look back

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

In the Chinese tradition, 2010 was the Year of the Tiger, but in the Charlevoix area it might be more accurately known as the "Year of the Scissors."

As the Courier took a look back at the area's headlines for the year, one common thread ran through many of the year's most notable stories: Budget cuts.

While nearly every sector continued to feel the pinch from the country's — and especially the state's — recent difficult economic times, few have felt it more than the state's public schools.

Charlevoix Public Schools were particularly hard hit. Facing declining enrollment and state funding, in May the Charlevoix school board cut more than $1.4 million from its budget including 14 teaching positions, 1.5 administrative positions and 166 in non-personnel reductions in areas such as food service and technology.

Based on the most recent projections — which factor in somewhat higher-than-expected student counts and funding levels — district officials are hoping that they might break even for the year.

The Charlevoix School District wasn't the only governmental body to make major cuts. In February, the Charlevoix City Council approved $500,000 in cuts from its formerly $3.7 million budget.

Among the more notable items cut from the budget included pausing the Downtown Development Authority's $30,000 annual contribution to the Charlevoix Public Library debt service, lifeguards at the city's Ferry and Depot beaches, $20,000 in contributions to the city's well-know Operation Petunia.

In a related, and somewhat rosier side to all the withering budgets, the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful organization was able to continue its nearly three-decade tradition of lining U.S. 31 from the north to south city limits lined with petunias despite reduced funding. Organizers were able to accomplish this through seeking additional donations from private sources and through costs savings through changes in planting procedures and using inmates at the Charlevoix County Jail to do most of the weeding.

Shirley Roloff has been a fixture on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for 14 years, but on Wednesday she sat on the board for last time.

Challenger Richard Gillespie defeated Roloff in the August Republican primary election and again as a write-in candidate in November. Gillespie will take the seat for the 6th District in January.

"It has been a pleasure and an honor working with the county. It's been 14 wonderful years. I've seen a lot of good come and go," Roloff said.

During her time on the board of commissioners, Roloff has been involved with many committees and projects, but is most proud for her participation in the development of the county's recycling program.

"We started at zero and we accomplished great things with the recycling program," Roloff said.

She has put a lot of work into the program during her time on the county commission, but she isn't done with it yet. She will remain on the recycling committee and claims she'll have even more time to work on the program now that she's not on the county board.

"I can really work on expanding the recycling program now," Roloff said.

She went on to explain that she would like to acquire compactors for the Charlevoix and Boyne City stations so they can better handle the items dropped off. She would also like to get a truck for the recycling program one day so they can do road-side pickup.

She will also remain on the parks committee and be involved in other areas of the county.

Fellow board member Chris Christensen noted that Roloff

United Way makes year-end allocations

Char-Em United Way has made a special community allocation investment to meet critical needs. More than $33,000 from United Way's Emergency Needs Fund has just been awarded to several local agencies.

Good Samaritan Family Services, Northwest Michigan Community Action Agency, and the Salvation Army have all received grants earmarked specifically for emergency utility assistance and energy conservation, and eviction/foreclosure avoidance. In addition, grants have been made to two innovative new programs. These include the Early Childhood Mental Health Initiative, being coordinated by the Health Department of Northwest Michigan and a new "Food 4 Kids Backpack Program" initiated by the Manna Food Bank. This will provide weekend food for children who depend upon the school breakfast and lunch programs for a majority of their meals.

"We are very pleased to be able to provide additional funding at this time," said Therese Green, chair of United Way's allocation committee. "During last spring's community investment allocation process, we set aside a small percentage of the available funds into an emerging needs fund. This fund gives us flexibility to meet community needs that might arise in between our annual investment cycle."

"The emerging needs fund was conceived to meet new needs or to fund promising new solutions to existing needs, and the grants for the mental health and food programs are a good fit for that goal," continued Green. "The United Way board of directors again felt that providing immediate support to the many families facing financial crises continued to be an important use of the majority of the funds."

The funds have been made available to all agencies immediately, and the utility and shelter services will be provided to residents of both Charlevoix and Emmet counties within the next three months.

"We were able to provide this special funding because we had such a successful campaign last year," said Martha Lancaster, United Way executive director. "Last year we raised a record amount of funds and this enabled us to invest a record amount of money back into the community. As the community need is greater than ever, we hope that we will be able to maintain this level of investment again this year. However, that will only be possible if we reach our current campaign goal of $350,000. Our campaign now stands at 80 percent of goal, and we still have a long way to go to meet that mark."

The Frey Foundation has offered United Way a challenge grant of an additional $20,000 if it meets the campaign goal this year. Contributions to the campaign can be sent to Char-Em United Way, P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey Mich. 49770 or made online at www.char-unitedway.org, selecting the "Give" button.

Firefighters rescue man from icy Lake Charlevoix

A Charlevoix man likely owes his life to the quick work of water rescue crews from the Charlevoix Fire Department who pulled him from the icy waters of Lake Charlevoix after the boat he was in capsized Saturday.

Officials with the Charlevoix Fire Department and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office said rescue crews were called to the area off shore from the C & O club shortly after 3 p.m. to a report of a man in the water. Charlevoix Fire Department water rescue and dive team members used the department's small rescue boat to pull Raymond McManus, 23, of Charlevoix from the water about 200 yards off shore, where fire officials said his boat had capsized while he was fishing.

The air temperature recorded at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport at the time of the incident was 24 degrees. Winds were recorded at about 5 mph.

Rescuers transported McManus to shore where he was treated for hypothermia by Charlevoix Ambulance crews and transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was initially listed in critical condition. He was released from the hospital the following day.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said reports indicate McManus' body temperature was dangerously low when he was pulled from the water. Schneider said the incident remains under investigation by the sheriff's office marine division. He said alcohol may have been a factor in the incident.

Grandvue administrator to commissioners: Let's work together

DAVID HOPKINS
(231) 439-9346

ahead to do what's best for the county and for Grandvue," Evans said.

The issues that Evans was speaking of date back to April when an employee of Grandvue was fired and later filed a lawsuit against the facility under the Whistle-blower Act. The case has since been settled out of court, but tensions continued for several months while the county commission worked to select a new member to the Department of Human Services committee.

"I'm here today because a lot has happened this year, particularly in this chamber as it relates to Grandvue. My goal today is to see what we can do to move positively together the county.

Board member Ron Moore's term expired in October and the county commission discussed refilling the seat for more than a month before they replaced him with John Vrondran earlier this month.

The Grandvue administration was upset with the way the commission was proceeding with the selection, stating they didn't have a system in place or a set of qualifications in mind for the board position. And despite their continued success at the facility and recommendations about the selection process from several sources, the commission moved forward with their choice of a Department of Human Services board member.

Evans said he was concerned about commission members comments about selecting a board member who would work to remove him (Evans) from his administrator position prior to their nomination to fill the position in November.

"On Nov. 10 you (the county commission) said: 'I'm going to disagree with what the (Department of Human Services) board says, I'm going to disagree with what your liaison says, I'm going to appoint somebody to replace him, and John Vrondran was the name of that person that was nominated at that point,' Evans said.

When Evans was done speaking to the board, county commissioner Chris Christensen responded say he felt the board was "respectfully admonished" by Evans' comments and felt they (the board) were ready to make some changes in their communication with Grandvue for the sake of their mission.

"Sometimes you take a lesson in an interesting way,"

Christensen said.

According to Christensen, over the past year the commission has been telling the Grandvue administration what it feels is right and wrong in dealing with the situation of the fired employee, but after listening to Evans' comments, the message they should take away is that (the board) should be listening to (Grandvue's) needs and doing what is best for the residents of Grandvue.

"There's this guy here telling us we shouldn't be doing this and shouldn't be doing that. The reality is that in some capacity we had done the same thing to him. So, therefore I think the lesson is not lost in the message. Grandvue is a jewel in the crown of the county and it continues to be, and hopefully we'll continue to move forward and it will continue to shine," Christensen said.

has used her time on the board to accomplish things for the people of the county, but she has also played the role of a mentor for others on the board.

"You've been a great mentor. Thank you for everything. You've been a beacon in some situations and you've taught me a few lessons. I appreciate you for that," Christensen at Wednesday's meeting.

Right down to the end, Roloff was advising the commission as they prepare to move into another year.

"What I'd really like this (commission) to do is, I want you to keep moving in the direction you're going. You've got things going the right way. I know I didn't always agree with all of you, but when we walked out the door we were all still friends and I think that's the way it should be," Roloff said.

Roloff said she is bidding farewell to her seat on the board, but she will still be working for the county and will still be there for the people.

"I'll miss everyone in the building and on the board, but I'll be around. I'll be in town. I'm not going anywhere," Roloff said.

A reason to celebrate: Solstice means daylight lasting longer

It should come as no surprise that for much, if not most of human history, we have considered the sun some sort of deity. There are temples to the sun and pyramids to the sun that suggest we have considered the sun worthy of worship. Like all deities, the sun has a tendency to be unpredictable. The sun may shine on the just and the unjust equally, but that does not mean it is all that dependable. Here in Northern Michigan we seldom see the sun itself during much of the winter season. What is true here has been true most places. Some days the sun shines, and some days it does not.

A much more serious problem for early human sun worshippers who lived on the northern half of the Earth globe, was the seasonal fickleness of the sun. Long before clocks and calendars, it was difficult not to notice that during the autumn months, the sun appeared lower and lower in the sky. It provided less and less warmth and it must have looked like the end was near. What if the sun did not come back? Like any fickle deity, worshipped for its power, the sun had to be lured back from its trip to the south. People tried any number of rituals. Giant fires were built, sacrifices of maidens or wealth of some other sort were made. Celebrations of many kinds were initiated around the time of year when the sun was at its weakest.

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

Well folks, we have done it again. We have celebrated, sacrificed, and lighted thousands of small electrical fires in an effort to lure the sun back. And it seems to be working. The sun-lighted part of our days is a few minutes longer than it was only a week or so ago. We must have sacrificed and celebrated effectively, and so we can expect that spring will again arrive on schedule.

In short what we call the winter solstice, around Dec. 21 has passed. While many calendars identify the solstice as the first day of winter, I personally, am pleased to consider it the first day of a far-off spring.

Celebrate the solstice. It is humanity's longest running and most universal holiday.

YOUR GIFT TO UNITED WAY CREATES OPPORTUNITIES FOR A BETTER LIFE

Editor:

As the year draws to a close, we would like to thank the hundreds of people who have already contributed to Char-Em United Way's 2010/2011 campaign.

As the economic downturn continues to affect our community, many generous people want to do what they can to help. Many donate to charities we know well and to which we regularly make donations. Consider adding United Way to impact a broader community need.

Char-Em United Way has identified the most pressing needs in our community and ensures that the personal investments we make in United Way will have the greatest impact on those needs. United Way supports programs impacting education, income and health needs in our two counties.

In addition to providing support for basic and urgent needs, Char-Em United Way invests in longer-term solutions to help create long-lasting changes. Supported programs include: financial literacy education for youth, early childhood education programs, health services, programs to keep senior citizens independent, and much more. Last year, they lead the development of the Volunteer Connections program, and introduced the 2-1-1 information and referral system to our community. We are also working collaboratively on poverty reduction initiatives and to expand public transportation solutions.

We're co-chairing the United Way campaign this year, because we believe it is the most effective way to impact the challenges facing our community now and in future years. You can be sure that your donation to United Way will be well invested in local efforts.

Our 2010-2011 Campaign goal is $350,000, and we are now near the 80 percent mark. The Frey Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge if we make that goal.

Please support United Way at the most generous level you can. If you work for one of the 100 businesses that allow you to donate through payroll deduction, that is the easiest way. If your employer doesn't offer a workplace campaign, please ask if they will start one. If you've received our letter in the mail, please reply. You can also donate online at: www.charemunitiedway.org (select the Give button) or by mail to PO Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770.

We encourage everyone who can to make a donation to Char-Em United Way before year end. Together, united, we can inspire hope and create opportunities for today and for a better tomorrow. That's what it means to Live United.

On behalf of our community, we thank you.

Carlin Smith and Erin Bemis, Char-Em United Way campaign co-chairs

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTERS SAYS 'THANKS'

Editor:

It's 2011 and the staff and volunteers of the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan are looking ahead to a new year filled with possibilities. Yet, as we look to the future, we also reflect on the past year and give thanks to the community in which we live and the generous individuals and businesses who have helped us provide critical services and programs to the women, children and families in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

We thank those who donated nonperishable food items, household supplies and personal care items and those who made financial contributions during our Harvest Food and Supply Drive this past November and December which will be used by survivors of domestic violence and their children staying at our Safe Home.

We thank the 112 men who contributed financially to the 100 Men campaign and who, more importantly, agreed to take a public stand to end violence against women.

We thank our new and longtime donors who help us continue to provide the myriad programs and services on which this community has come to rely.

We thank our board members and volunteers who work countless hours to help us improve the lives of women, children and families.

Your support and belief in the Women's Resource Center are gifts for which we are grateful. No matter how, you have given over the past year — in dollars, food, clothing, time — know that your gift has been put to good use by granting a voice to those silenced by some of life's most difficult challenges.

Happy New Year and thank you for caring.

'THANKFUL' FOR SUPPORT OF SWIM EVENT

Editor,
Another Thanksgiving has come and gone and once again it found a few hundred spectators on the shores of Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix cheering on the 50 or 60 hearty souls willing to take a breath and take the plunge into those frigid waters and I am thankful. Thankful to each and every one of them, too many to list here, because of what they have helped us do. Their generosity, amplified by the Charlevoix Elks Lodge 2856, has allowed us to donate more than $3,825 to local charities during the next few weeks.

If you've never witnessed the swim, you should mark your calendar for next Thanksgiving at 11 a.m. In the half-hour the entire event takes, you will see and hear laughter and hugs and heartfelt handshakes and, yes, a few shrill shrieks as we take the plunge. But you will also see a community that comes together and comes to life with the holiday spirit. You will see young and old and in-between united with joy in a simple moment of silliness that allows us to help our community a little bit. You will see a type of love that only a small town can generate.

These are some of the things I observe every year and it is always humbling for me to see my friends and neighbors and acquaintances and even strangers pitching in. These are the things I am thankful for on that day and every other day of the year. As my son, who started this whole thing nine years ago, would say: "CHARLEVOIX ROCKS!"

Happy holidays to all,

year. Some notable personnel changes also made headlines. In early June longtime Charlevoix Middle School principal and well-known Charlevoix High School varsity basketball coach sent shockwaves through the "Rayder Nation" when he announced he would retire from both positions and take a position as an administrator and head varsity basketball coach at conference rival Traverse City St. Francis. Haske cited concerns about job security — especially the possibility that the middle school principal's position could be eliminated to save money as the motivation for his career move.

In 13 seasons, he guided the Rayders to 10 Class C district championships, six regional titles, four state semifinal appearances and state runner-up berths and compiled a 239-78 record. Not surprisingly, some Rayder faithful told the school board they were unhappy that it did not take action to prevent Haske's departure. However, when Haske returned for his first game in Charlevoix's gym as the Gladiator's coach, he was warmly received by Rayder players and fans alike. (The Rayders won the game, too.)

Some other staffing surfaced to allow a production company to burn the structure for filming of an upcoming movie, the "Frontier Boys." The house ultimately burned before the cameras on the night of March 24. The movie, which involved filming in various Charlevoix locations including the high school gym, is slated for release in the spring of 2011.

from coaching at the end of the season, said the bus incident was the culmination of discord that had been brewing between him and the team.

In May Charlevoix City Manager Rob Strabel fired long-time city recreation department director Ike Boss, who had served in the position for more than 35 years. Strabel cited poor work performance, including Boss' handling of a stalling accident at Mount McSaba in February. After initially claiming his termination was related to his objections to cuts in lifeguard staffing at city beaches, Boss ultimately accepted a severance package that included three months pay.

The year also saw some fiery debate between the city and surrounding townships regarding what the townships pay the city for fire and or ambulance services. Ultimately the townships agreed to the new contracts with the exception of Marion Township who decided to switch its fire protection to Charlevoix Township.

On other notable fire-related debate that simmered for the first part of the year involved the fate of a 1870s-era city-owned house at 108 Park Avenue. The lot on which the house sat had been slated for additional parking since the 1990s and early in the year a proposal surfaced to allow a production company to burn the structure for filming of an upcoming movie, the "Frontier Boys." The house ultimately burned before the cameras on the night of March 24. The movie, which involved filming in various Charlevoix locations including the high school gym, is slated for release in the spring of 2011.

Grant will support Charlevoix County child, parent programs

COURTESY PHOTO

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan community playgroup participants work on a holiday craft project at Christ Lutheran Church in Boyne City.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded a grant of $6,000 to the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan for its community playgroups offered in Boyne City and East Jordan. This free community service is also offered in Petoskey and Alanson and served over 310 unduplicated adults and children during the past year.

The playgroups help parents and primary caregivers learn about early childhood development, age-appropriate toys and activities and positive approaches to discipline under the guidance of trained playgroup leaders. The program also helps build supportive friendships among young parents and serves as a social outlet for young children.

"We greatly appreciate this generous grant," Women's Resource Center director Jan Mancinelli said. "We are proud of the supportive network and enriching play experience provided through our free community playgroup program. In the most recent survey of parents and caregivers served through this program, we found that 100 percent learned new play activities to share with their children, 98 percent learned a new parenting technique and 90 percent met at least one support person through the group."

The center's playgroup program is free and available to all children 0-60 months and their preschool age siblings. To obtain a playgroup schedule, call the Women's Resource Center administrative office at (231) 347-0067 or visit their web site at wrcnm.org.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HALEAH, FL. — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorses' legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Shopping with a hero

East Jordan Fire Chief Glen Thorman helps Juajuan Sanchez, 8, from East Jordan, do some last-minute Christmas shopping for his family at Meljer in Petoskey on Thursday. The shopping trip was part of the Shop with a Hero program, which provides kids in need with money to get food and presents for their family members. This year emergency service workers and Meljer officials were able to offer the program to a second group of children because money was left over from the first Shop with a Hero day earlier in the month.

Char-Em United Way funding applications available

Char-Em United Way's 2011 Community Investment Allocation process has begun. Non-profit agencies which provide programs and services meeting the health and human service needs of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are encouraged to submit a letter of intent to apply for funding.

Letter of intent applications can be requested by contacting Char-Em United Way at (231) 487-1006. Applications may also be downloaded from United Way's website www.charemunitedway.org. Letters of intent are due by Jan. 14. The submissions will be reviewed by the United Way Allocation Committee, and agencies which meet United Way's funding criteria and priorities will be invited to submit a complete application.

"We are pleased to announce this year's funding availability," Char-Em United Way Executive Director Martha Lancaster said. "In 2010, we made Community Investment Allocations of $168,175 to 29 programs of 26 agencies in grants ranging from $1,000 to $18,000. This year, we expect to be able to provide even more funding. We have increased our campaign goal to meet the increasing community need and hope that we will reach it. We are still accepting contributions, and all donations received through the end of April will be awarded in this investment cycle."

The organization's 2011 funding priorities focus on meeting the community's needs for education, income and health, Lancaster said.

More information on these priorities, as well as other criteria for eligible programs and agencies is available from United Way.

"These priorities will ensure that, with the increased need in our community for health and human services and with limited dollars available, our Community Investment Allocations are being made as wisely as possible," Lancaster added. "And our investors (donors) want to know that we are making the greatest possible impact in the areas of need identified by our community. Therefore, the Char-Em United Way is focusing on measuring results in programs and sharing our priorities with the community more effectively."

Agencies invited to submit a full application will be scheduled to make a presentation to United Way's citizen review panel in April. The citizen review panel reviews the requests for funding, hears presentations, seeks additional information, and makes recommendations to the United Way board of directors. The board of directors will meet in May to consider the recommendations of the panel and to make Community Investment Allocation decisions.

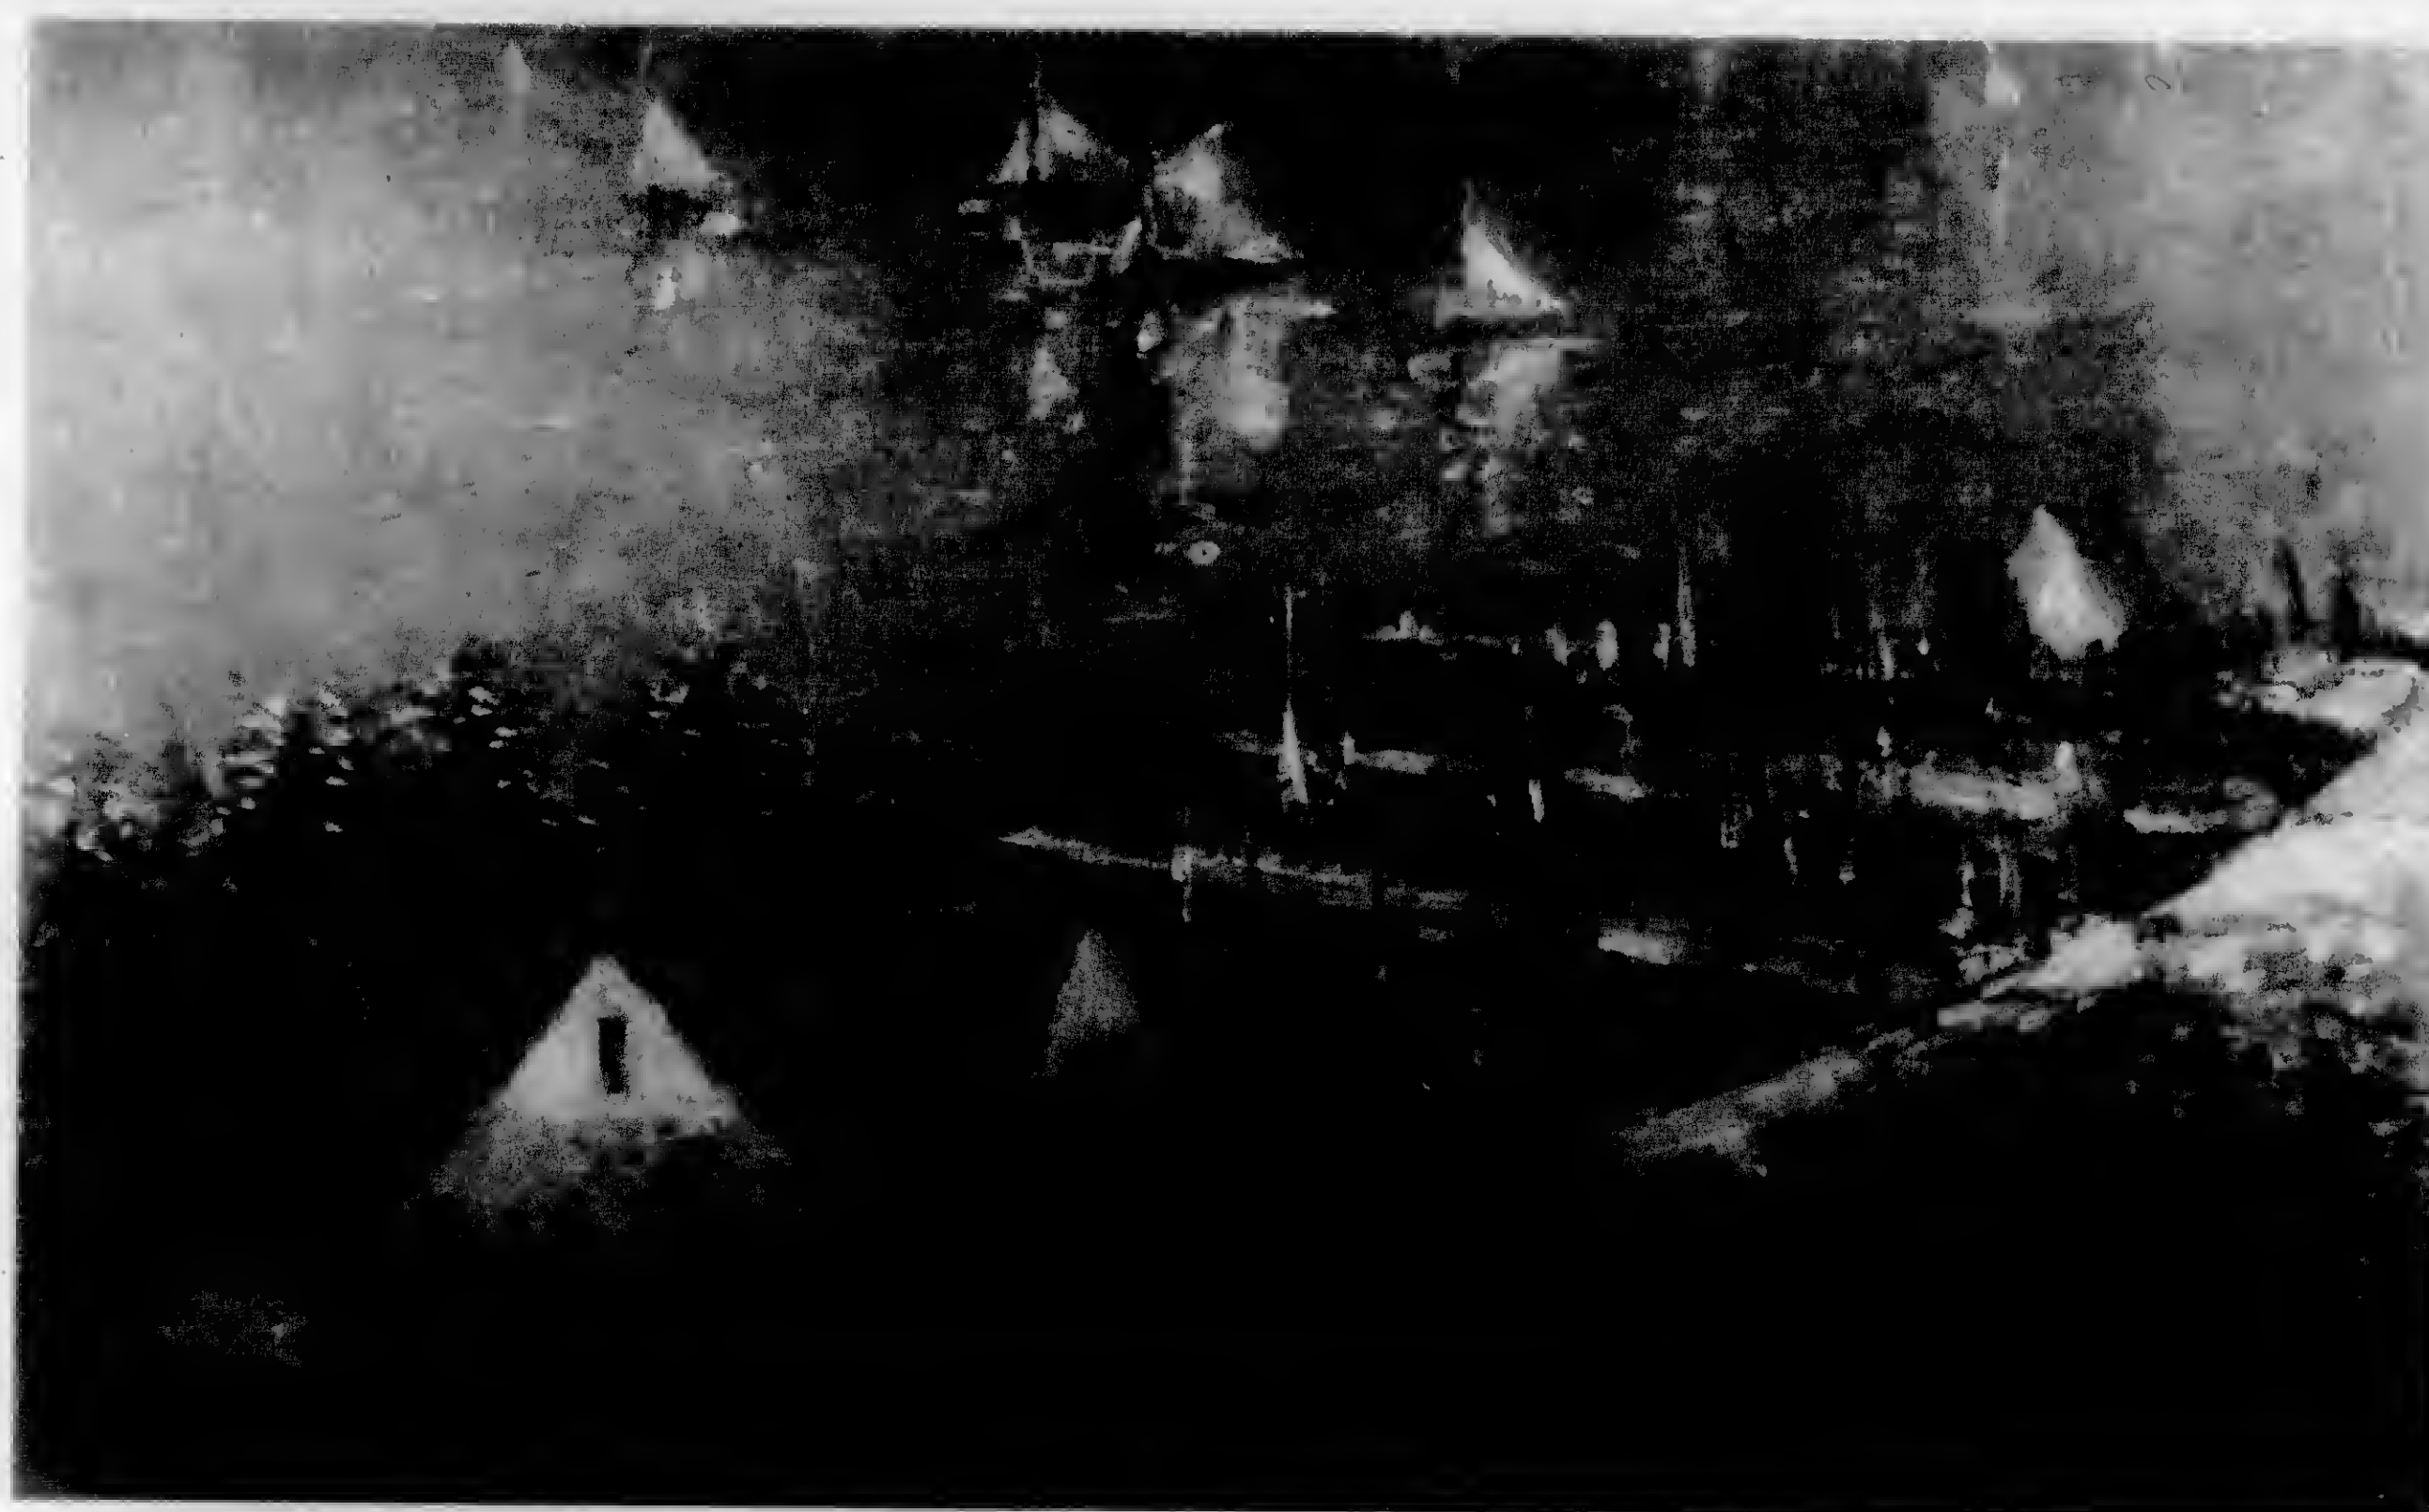

For more information about Char-Em United Way or the funding allocation, contact the organization at (231) 487-1006 or info@charemunitedway.org or write P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey Mich. 49770. Complete application information is available online at www.charemunitedway.org.

MARK LINDSAY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Renovations on the old Northwestern Bank building in the Glen's Plaza at the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31 in Charlevoix are still under way for the new law practice of Telgenhof and Snyder P.C. but they are open for business.

at Charlevoix High School.

The new firm is full-service, handling various matters such as estate planning and administration, civil and criminal litigation, real estate, business formation, advice and litigation, zoning and planning and family law. They employ two people aside from themselves, Mary

Shepard as receptionist/legal secretary and Vicki Voisin as legal assistant.

Library plans teen-focused events

There will be many upcoming opportunities for teenagers to express their creative and artistic sides at the Charlevoix Public Library.

On Saturday, Jan. 8, or Sunday, Jan. 9, teens may stop at the library to help decorate the Teen Lounge windows. Window markers will be available.

Or, if film is your mode of expression, prepare to participate in the teen film festival in February. Make a film, submit it to the library and then have the opportunity to watch it with your friends on the library's big screen. Films must be submitted in DVD format with required film application and be less than 10 minutes long and rated G or PG. Talk to the librarians at the youth desk for more information and to get a copy of the application: youth@charlevoixlibrary.org or (231) 237-7350.

The Charlevoix Public Library will also be hosting another prom dress exchange coming this spring. Local teens will be able to select, try on, and go home with the perfect dress for prom — and it's free.

To make this event happen, the library needs a variety of "like new" dresses to be donated. Anyone who has a formal dress hanging unused in a closet, may bring it on a hanger, in "like new" condition to the Youth Department of the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St. For more information about this or other library programs, call (231) 237-7350.
